Then we are looking for you as a Senior Fullstack Developer (f/m/d)!

Your tasks

As a Senior Fullstack Developer, you will be responsible, among others, for the following tasks:

- Designing and developing structured, readable and testable code
- Testing, monitoring and documenting the developed software
- Collaborating in the team and performing regular code reviews
- Support less senior Engineers and coach them to continuously improve their skillset

Your profile

Must have:

- At least 7 years programming experience
- Degree in computer science or similar (ideally master's degree)
- Experience as a Fullstack Developer using the following technologies: JavaScript, Angular, Java, Springboot
- Experience developing cloud native applications and using technologists such as: Docker, Kubernetes and Terraform, running on one of the common cloud providers

Nice to have:

- Experience in mobile app development using Ionic
- Writing end-to-end tests using Cypress
- Ideally experience with Google Cloud Services
- Experience in the startup environment and affinity for technical topics
- Flexible thinking and can-do, will-do attitude

Your advantages with us

- The opportunity to work on the number one topic, personal health, and create something from scratch truly relevant for society
- An attractive remuneration model that is based on your experience
- An ambitious, innovation-driven and goal-oriented management team with strong entrepreneurial experience
- A young, open and dynamic company-culture that fosters transparent communication and respectful interactions
- A high degree of personal responsibility, flexibility and a steep learning curve for personal growth
- The unique combination of a newly founded start-up, with the financial security and network of an industry-leading consortium

About us

The new digital success story

Well is driven by an ambitious growth vision, initially focused on the Swiss market with the potential to scale across Europe. Our digital health platform integrates and coordinates top-notch digital health services across all levels of care, to create a more convenient and cost-effective way to get the right treatment at the right time, ultimately ensuring better treatment of patients. A symptom checker for an initial diagnosis, medical assistance through telemedicine, booking a doctor's appointments or ordering medication - that is the vision of the digital health platform. The platform is open to anyone living in Switzerland, as well as all health insurers, doctors, hospitals, pharmacies and other health care providers. Initial funding is secured by Allianz, CSS, Visana and Zur Rose. Find more information here.

Our recruitment process

The process includes the following steps:

- Send your application (CV / Linkedin / Xing) to: William.Gueissaz@well.ch
- If the profile matches, personal meeting with company and company presentation
- Online Coding Challenge
