What AVN have you read where you would just beat the MC's ass?

by: u/Player1Mario

I'm talking for being a complete idiot. I'll start: Altered Destiny. Even for a fun plot, the writing for MC is terrible.

*I've just started playing the Tales From The Unending Void, and it was kinda hard to cringe through the MC boneheaded-ness, that starts the plot. At least the plot armor to cover it wasn't completely untouchable; but then again, they got back on track too easily. I wonder if he grows up and wises up later in the game.*

—u/Global-Method-4145

*The MC from Deviant Anomalies. A hate he is supposed to be this investigator but then acts like a douche braggart right in front of someone he suspects without knowing it because she was hot and he wanted to impress her. The infuriating thing was that it was clear from the start. If you know you know.*

—u/Lonley_Island_Games

Bad Memories MC.

He harbors incredible anger at his stepmother for only scolding him when he was little. He tries to have sex with the sister he traumatized years ago when he finds out she's not his own sister. He harasses his sister's therapist. The most degenerate, asshole MC I've ever seen in a game.

—u/KutadBilig

*I think the two most tolerable MCs are Being A DIK and Leap of Faith's protagonists. Jake from Race of Life is not so badly written as well. The rest all have some very punchable moments.*

—u/kevinjames41

Doormat, rapey, creepy and stupid MCs usually give me the urge to beat them up.

I hate MCs that just take everything and let people walk over him. Not having the option to push back is infuriating. Some creepy behavior like peeping at girls changing or showering and even some extremely fucked up inner monologuing, more specifically the incestuous ones, put me off completely. Sometimes everyone's IQ drops by half just for the sake of plot progression and it honestly makes me angry, especially if the MC has been portrayed as a smart/intelligent guy before.

—u/giggling_raven

Imma be honest... any game that has a focus on creeping on a girl. I won't get mad for checking someone out or maybe letting your eyes linger a bit too long or in a specific place, that's just human nature. What I'm talking about is an MC who actively watches someone sleeping or showering or doing some other activity where she doesn't want to be watched. Double the points if he gets rapey. That's fucking disgusting. I'd rather play a game where MC actually spends time getting that girl to genuinely like him (or thirst after him; whatever).

—u/Ksteekwall21

Jonas (Acting Lessons) not trying to save both Melissa and Megan still angers me to this day. Yeah... As soon as he saw them both lying on the ground, dude decided that he could only save one. Wtf was that? How about you try to save them both first? Carry them, drag them, try something first before giving up, ffs! It's a life and death situation, and he fucking crumbled under the pressure. Then the next scene you see him crying in front of his therapist and I'm like... Oh don't give me that crying shit, you bigtime fumbled that one.

—u/13thdeux Drunk Idiot

That's a tough one for me because most of the times when I see a whimp of an MC is just immediately quit the game and don't care to remember it. I think MC from college kings tbh, dude has the body of a middle schooler.

—u/BrawnyDevil

MILFS of Sunville.

First, let me extend an olive branch. The renders and animation are some of the best in the business, and the women are attractive while still looking 'realistic'. With that being said, let's talk about the MC. To call him a douche would be an understatement. When he leaves high school, he burns every bridge, shit-talking the entire town. He goes off to live with his rich father who eventually cuts him off and tells him to move back home with his mother. He is forever whinging and moaning about how he 'deserves' the good life, while doing nothing to gain it. He asks his mother for some financial help when they are struggling too. They manage to scrounge up at least something and yet again he complains about the amount he is given. At school almost every guy hates him because of not only the said shit talking, but because he is constantly flirting with every woman in a 2km radius and making fun of the 'nerds.' My head canon is that the only reason he loves MILF's because when he was a kid he was the type that would play victim and cry to any woman to get his way. Buddhists on the final test before enlightenment read through what this character does on a day to day basis. An endlessly infuriating person that even though gets their arse beat, it is not enough.

—u/LTPrototype2

Doormat

Little Troll

Creepy Pervert

I love summer gone. But sometimes I hate the MC random rude behavior.

—u/asdfbliss

Three Rules of Life - the MC is a doormat for every single person on the game. He has no spine and consistently makes the worst decisions. I had to quit playing it because the idiocy of his choices, regardless of what you pick made the game unplayable. Summer With Mia, Return to Mia (or whatever they had to change the name to for Steam purposes) - the MC is an intolerable, rapey douche. No redeeming qualities at all.

—u/Astrocreep137

College Kings MC. The very first episode/chapter, I wanted to beat the crap out of him. While I can't think of any right now, I'd also add the MCs of any ntr AVN I've ever played in the past. Just for how pathetic they were, they'd all get a few smacks to snap them back into reality.

Edit: Also the MCs that knowingly creep on girls. I passionately hate rapey MCs. No amount of porn logic will ever make it ok for a guy to creep on someone. This was one of my main issues with Milfy City, because the main LI that I pursued, had a storyline where the MC basically assaulted her while she was asleep. I hated him since then, and wanted to beat the everloving crap out of him for the remainder of that playthrough.

—u/Endless_Alpha

To be fair most of them are fucking idiots at times.

—u/Interesting_Ice_8498

I'm a pacifist, I just delete the game instead. Honestly, I quit an AVN before it infuriates me. Live's too short to read bad fictional porn stories.

The Nymphomaniac

An underrated gem deserving of a little more love.

by: u/Tak_Mycket

TL;DR: Sub to the dev's Patreon for $2 and play the game! It's worth it! (You can also try out Chapter 1 for free.)

Chapter 1 (Free release, windows link) - <https://www.patreon.com/posts/initial-episode-89964677>

Dev Patreon page - <https://www.patreon.com/OrigamiGamesInteractives/posts>

The Nymphomaniac

I guarantee many of you haven't heard of it before. I hadn't heard of it either, until about 1 month ago, when I first played Chapter 1. After having played it, I was very impressed. Just today, I played the newly released Chapter 2... and boy, what can I say... except, download the game! Let me convince you...

The game starts with an intro scene... similar to Being a Dik where the dev has actual dialogue lines, and asks if you're 18 etc, etc. Generally I'm not a fan of these intro scenes, and I wasn't really a fan of this one either... except for when the MC was introduced. I would be gushing over it right now, except for the fact I'm not a fan of intro scenes... so moving on.

Opening Scene

After the intro scene, we are hit with scene one. And by hit, I mean hit. The Nymphomaniac's Scene One is perhaps the best scene one in any AVN I've played to this date. It manages to do what most AVNs dream off. It characterises the MC, introduces some internal conflict, builds suspense and to top it off, it includes some lewd content which doesn't feel forced.

Lewd Content

Speaking of lewd content that doesn't feel forced... The Nymphomaniac excels in this department. Many devs often struggle to include early lewd scenes in their AVNs without making them seem forced or out of place. The Nymphomaniac has a total of 3 lewd scenes in about an hour long chapter 1, all of them feeling natural, and all of them adding towards the characterisation of the MC.

Alice

Moving onto Alice. When I was first introduced to Alice, alarm bells were going off in my head. Not because of Alice, but rather because of the stereotypical character she was portraying. In my experience, characters similar to her are very poorly portrayed, and I was quite concerned The Nymphomaniac would be unable to pull it off. Once again, Origami (the dev), surprised me. Not only did I not dislike Alice, I actually rather enjoyed her character.

MC's Parents

Three more positive points to make regarding Chapter 1. Firstly, I'll start off with MC's parents. Particularly his dad. MC's dad in The Nymphomaniac wins dad of the year (AVN version) award. Not only is he alive... but he actually cares about MC. The way he's portrayed is also excellent. Moving onto the Mum. You would be surprised to hear that the Mum is actually the one with a problem with MC. The game hints something bad happened in the past, and while both MC and his Mum seem to want to move past that event and rebuild their relationship, they can't seem to put their inner demons aside and move on. I love the fact their relationship isn't just hate... but rather a lot of sorrow and a desire to fix things.

Sound

Now onto SFX and music. While I'm not blown away by the sound, it certainly is of good quality. The sounds always fits in with the scene quite well. I also want to highlight the scene in which Cassandra is introduced. In that scene, the sound is spot on, and does a perfect job at building tension throughout that scene.

MC

The final positive point I want to make is MC's personality. It's definitely unique. You've probably guessed from the name, and you would be right... the MC is obsessed with sex. Once again, alarm bells ringing in my head. Heading into this game, I was a little concerned that there wouldn't be much substance to the MC's personality, apart from "let's fuck her". But, following the pattern, Origami managed to surprise me in a good way. The MC is probably my third favourite MC (behind Race of Life's MC and Yesterday's Crossroads MC), meaning he's surpassed some pretty good MCs on my list.

Renders

I also want to stress... these aren't the only positive points in Chapter 1. In fact, 99% of the game is overwhelmingly positive. However, it wouldn't be a good review without a little constructive criticism. The render quality in Chapter 1 isn't the best, as a few images are a little grainy. However, I want to stress this point... the renders aren't bad. The composition (what's in them) of these renders are actually very, very good. They reveal each character's emotions superbly, something more AVNs should take notice of.

Now, that's just Chapter 1... just wait until you hear about Chapter 2.

LIs

In the back of my mind, while I was enthralled in The Nymphomaniac, there was a massive question mark in the back of my mind. LIs? Chapter One introduces a couple of LIs, but they only get a couple of renders each, and the one that we get an actual scene for, it's unsure whether or not she was an LI or a side girl. All I will say is Chapter 2 eased my concerns. LIs can make or break an AVN, and I can comfortably say they didn't break the AVN in Chapter 2. They aren't cliched, and each have their own story and their own personality. Personally, my favourite was Violet.

Plot

The next thing I want to discuss is the story. What's awesome about The Nymphomaniac is the slow reveal of clues that the reader can pick up on, and piece together what happens. We still have a lot to learn about the mystery, but Chapter 2 reveals the intentions of a few important characters, as well as doing a good job at advancing the story at a comfortable pace. My message to Origami, is the story is the most important aspect. Continue to give the reader clues and let them slowly piece together what is happening.

Dialogue

However, by far the best aspect of this update was the dialogue. It felt like a real conversation between two real people. It also did the following three things brilliantly. Consistency. Each character spoke consistently throughout multiple scenes, and never once did a character speak out of character. Plot. The dialogue did a really good job at advancing the plot, and hinting to the reader clues which will play a part in unravelling the mystery later on. The last part is tension. The dialogue did a superb job at building tension, whether that be romantic tension, sexual tension, or conflict tension. I also love the fact there's barely any descriptive language, and the dev employs "show, don't tell" brilliantly.

Animations

In regards to the grainy renders I mentioned in Chapter 1. In Chapter 2, they are still present, but they're less prevalent, which is a good sign. The other thing I want to mention is lewd animations. Each lewd scene has animations, which is a very good sign. I would call them good, but not great. They have some improving to do, but considering this is the dev's first project and first couple of chapters, the fact there are good lewd animations already in the game is an extremely positive sign.

SCORE

I have a scoring metric below, for anyone who is interested:

PLOT → 9

DIALOGUE → 10

LI VARIETY → 7

LI LOVE → 7 (A lower score is very common for games early in development, as there's not much time to develop romantic tension between MC and LI. This is higher than I would give most games with this amount of content, mainly due to the awesome dialogue.)

CHOICES → 7

MC → 10

RENDERS → 8

HOTNESS → 9

SOUND → 8

MISCELLANEOUS → 10 (My overall feel for the game and how likely I would recommend it to someone else.)

This puts it as a TOTAL OF 85. For comparison... that would be equal 4th on my list, draw with both Ripples and Artemis, and behind Yesterday's Crossroads, Race of Life and Summer's Gone. Yes, I rank it that highly... hence why I'm making this review. For more references, I have 36 AVNs currently on my list, with an average rating of 73.

Last Words

If you have any question or queries regarding this review, I would happily answer them below. As I mentioned in the TL;DR, Chapter 1 is free, while Chapter 2 is only $2. Super value if you ask me. It took me roughly three hours to get through Chapter 1 and Chapter 2 (though I am a fast reader, and I do tend to click quite fast through renders.)

Are Games With More Mature MC Better?

by: u/Games4Adults

As most of the MCs in games are college Freshmen with one parent dead and living with a hot "landlady". Whenever I play games which has a more Mature MC like in Race Of Life or Leap Of Faith, it's just very refreshing to see.

Do you think a Mc makes the game better with a more Mature insight instead of a freshie Mc having no clue on what's happening around him.

It depends on if an older MC fits the story. I grow tired of the cliché stories about a college kid who is still wet behind the ears and fucks everything that moves, but if the story is good then eh... why not?

I do try most games if the synopsis catches my attention no matter what the age of the MC. The same goes for older MCs. If the story is good then eh... why not?

I will give you an example: Defending Lydia Collier is a game with an older MC but he fits the story.

—u/bophed

I also prefer games with more mature MCs, but it's fully dependent on how well the developer writes them. The best games I've played had mature MCs, but the worst games also had mature MCs. Being mature is not enough

—u/Endless_Alpha

I don't particularly care either way but relationships with LIs that are still in their early 20s at oldest can feel a bit ick unless it's done REALLY well.

Bigger issue though is day to day life. When MC is 18-23ish, he typically doesn't have a day job. So he's either unemployed and can do whatever he wants or he's in school (HS or College) which is far more likely to have interesting drama and put him in easy proximity to his LI. When you are him older, you need to go the AL route to explain why he doesn't need a job or you'd have to write around it. Because if I was an MC, my normal life would be boring. Nobody needs to hear about me spending 8 hours doing data analysis and cleaning spreadsheets.

—u/Ksteekwall21

I think as long as the guy is a good dude deep down it's ok. Example: MC in Being a Dik is a dumb college kid but when it comes down to it, he's a nice dude who takes care of everybody.

—u/LuckyRaven23

One issue with "older" MCs is that, due to the conventions of the genre, you're likely going to have a number of very young girls as LIs. It's fine when an 18 year old girl and an 18 year old guy hook up, but if your MC is in his 30s, you're going to quickly run into some very questionable issues about consent and power dynamics.

Look at Now and Then which is a very good game, but spends a lot of time justifying the fact that a mid 30s dude is banging two 18 year olds. Now and Then's unique story makes this kind of relationship acceptable but I'd struggle to see a more "normal" game have something similar.

—u/imjustthereforpron

I prefer younger MCs though cause most of the developers who have a middle aged man as MC don't have any clue about their mindset and maturity, it's like middle aged men having teenage brain their behaviour just looks weird, there are few decent ones like you mentioned but leap of faith MC is just not to my liking and I think he's mid 30s never able to get his personality, he's simply not fitting with me.

—u/Commercial_Welder_93

I prefer younger MCs myself. Makes it easier for me to self insert.

—u/giggling_raven

—u/Commercial_Welder_93

More dependent on the writing level of the author.

—u/TenebrisLux60

I agree with u/TenebrisLux60 that it's more dependent on the writing level of the author; characters can only be as smart as their writers so that should say a lot about everyone's favourite and non favourite avns.

A freshie MC having no clue on what's happening around him. this is basically just a literary trick, have the protagonist also be an audience surrogate of sorts to allow a copious amount of backstory and info dumping, it's not bad per se but the way avns use it is middling at best and dubious at their worst.

I think what avns need more is a protagonist who already has emotional depth be able to grow even more as a character. half the time the playable male protagonist we have are self inserts with characters so flat you can use it as an ironing board - they're usually just meant for a power fantasy type stories and all that jazz; it's not inherently a bad thing, that's what fiction is for but there are so many of these coming out that it has to be balanced out with something more nuanced.

Now I wanna take a moment to gush about unbroken's protagonist, there are scenes in it where he showcases a healthy dose of emotional intelligence to be a strong supporting figure for younger characters like Ines, Vi and Amrit and amazingly it doesn't even feel as creepy and exploitative as they should sound (that's fucking something in a pool game!) and other characters like Mcnab comment his appreciation for this as well as other characters but valentine cannot accept a pat in the back as his inner demons won't let him, there are also instances where he's really not really as stupid as he makes himself out to be and you can feel this mask slip off in certain conversations with other characters and Elseph (best girl) is the one to point it out and it's the core of their fascinating banter.

I want more protagonists like Cal Valentine from Unbroken; characters with vulnerabilities and faults, inner demons that they wrestle with in their heads because that reflects a good chunk of people in the real world and have these characters succeed in exorcising them and or at the very least learn how to fend them off alongside a support system of sorts (i.e. other characters/ love interests) to potentially bring about catharsis depending on its execution.

Being a DIK or Eternum?

by: u/Soggy-Bumblebee-2245

I've seen so many people arguing about being a dik and Eternum and which game is better than the other but now I really wanna know so let's do this, according to you which game do you think is better, gameplay, story, good written character's wise??

Personally I like being a dik not that Eternum is a bad game I like Eternum too but I prefer BaD, let's see what this reddit thinks is better.

The more anime-ish design and unique setting of Eternum draws me in way more than BaD does. Although both are top tier AVNs, the whole DIK-Chick stat in BaD bothers me a lot and detaches me from immersion. It doesn't make sense to me like I can be a calm person but throw down and be rude when necessary. Eternum has a serious-ish plotline and knows when to humour itself.

—u/RaylynFaye95

Very much an Eternum fan. I know everyone says the replayability on BaD is better, and I suppose that's true from a "different paths perspective" but I've replayed Eternum more than BaD. The story in Eternum is just better to me, and deeper emotionally. I would play an entire game based around getting to know Luna's entire family just on their own. The scene where the grandma puts on the Dios de Los Muertos makeup and has you take the picture with Luna is incredibly touching, while the meal with her father and uncle are hilarious, as is the scene with the chicken in the pool. Then you have the massage and the MC leaving, terrified that he screwed everything up only to have her come and give him a kiss. I think the emotional complexity of that single narrative arc is deeper than the entirety of BaD, personally.

And that's not even touching on Alex's search for her Prince (and rejection of her family), Annie's growth into maturity and womanhood, Penelope and Nova's burgeoning friendship, your best friend and his unlikely relationship (and the fact that he's an absolute ride or die in the best way possible)

I just think the entirety of Eternum's story is more wholesome, heart warming, and well developed than BaD, and I LOVE BaD. I get some people might not like the harem thing, which, fine, but I think that each relationship is individually well developed and thoughtful, to the point that it's more romantic vignettes than true "harem" (ala something like WVM which I think is just boring)

—u/Wolfish_Jew

Eternum by far... And I won't even explain why because I'm against badik so it's just not worth wasting time for it.

—u/According_Brain_2071

I just got BaD a couple days ago on some recs from here. It's very enjoyable. I played Eternum a while ago but I still say for me, it's Eternum. However BaD has more content. Take it as you will.

—u/Player1Mario

Being a DIK

Eternum

Results

mean, we all dislike DPC and that's fine, but credit where credit is due. Eternum is certainly one of the best AVNs, top 5 no problem, but it's just too far behind BaDIK in many respects, but to be fair, again, so is every other AVN.

Once both are finished, and if the world' hasn't been destroyed by then, we might be able to make a better comparison tho, but it's hard seeing other AVNs catch up to Badik in overall terms, tbh, although some are def. up there in a lot of aspects, and some are even better than Badik too in terms of visuals or animations or story... the problem is Badik just does everything well enough and has a fuckton of content.

If I had to break it down right now:
Story: eh... both are meh, tbh... I'd give a slight edge to Eternum because it feels slightly more focused, but barely so.
Writing: I think both DPC & Caribdis are great dialogue writers, but I'll give it to DPC just because he has a lot more variety due to the branching scenarios.

Visuals: well this one will depend on people's taste for the more "anime" look, but I feel Caribdis has a better overall grasp of visual story telling, so Eternum it is.

Animations: This one is hard, Eternum's animations have been quite disappointing until recently, but BaDIK's ain't that much better, however it has A LOT more, so point for BaDIK.

Music: I mean, do I even need to say it? This is the one thing where BaDIK will probably remain untouched.

Gameplay: This will obviously depend on people tastes too, but DPC does put a lot of effort into his gameplay stuff, like the minigames.

Replayability: Well, again, no contest, BaDIK has easily the most complex branching in any AVN out there at the moment, which means tons of replayability.

Amount of content: lol.
