Chapter 01: The Grass Mat

Twelve Chapter 1 page-scenes are live on the board.

Page 01 - Childhood sunlight

Before the world learns how to take, morning still knows how to give. A small hand reaches into sound, and the house holds its breath around love.

Page 04 - Zeth waking on the grass mat

Some mornings do not wake you; they return you. Under the thin green weave, tomorrow waits with its shoes already on.

#Bekbeka #Zeths #TheGrassMat #ZethMnguni #Soweto #ComicBookPage

Page 05 - KB and the Polo keys

Friendship arrives jangling in one hand, laughing before the fear can stand up. The road is not mercy, but it offers a way out.

#Bekbeka #Zeths #PoloKeys #KB #TheGrassMat #SouthAfricanComics #IndieComics

Page 06 - The business started outside

Every empire begins somewhere ordinary: a yard, a joke, two boys refusing to stay small. The gate remembers who dreamed aloud first.

Page 07 - Thobile at the fence

A fence can hold a whole history if both sides pretend not to look. Her voice finds the crack where memory keeps breathing.

Page 08 - Don't let them make you boring

The warning smiles because it knows him too well. To stay alive is one thing; to stay awake is another.

Page 09 - Gogo's room

Some rooms are built from prayer and old fabric. Here, truth does not shout; it waits until he sits down.

Page 10 - Your mother would be proud

Pride arrives with a bruise inside it. The words land softly, and still they open the wound by name.

The place lets him go without releasing him. Behind the car, the morning folds itself into a memory he will keep meeting.
