IS YOUR COMPANY COMPLIANT?

WE'VE GOT YOU COVERED!

Here's what you need to know for ANSI Z308.1-2015!

The 2015 revised standard updates and expands the 2009 standard. It classifies first aid kits based on the assortment and quantity of first aid supplies meant to deal with most types of injuries and sudden illnesses encountered in the workplace. Major and minor wounds, minor burns, sprains, strains and eye injuries were considered. These types and quantities of supplies were based upon a review of increased workplace incidents requiring first aid treatment as well as international standards & current practices in treating injuries.

What are the changes?

1. The 2015 revision introduces two classes of first aid kits. Class A - Contents designed to deal with most common types of workplace injuries Class B - Broader range and quantity of supplies for more complex or risk environments.
2. New required supplies have been added to the list. Many "recommended" items in the previous 2009 standard are now required for both of the newly designated A & B class kits in the 2015 standard.
3. Quantities have been modified based on the number of employees and types of injury.
4. Scissors are to be included in both classes of kits.
5. A splint and a tourniquet are both required for a Class B first aid kit.
6. Specific requirements for unitized first aid kits have been removed from the 2015 standard.

Class A

Designed for common workplace injuries such as major and minor wounds, minor burns, & eye injuries. Class A kits also include Bloodborne Pathogen Kits.

Class B

Designed for high-risk work zones such as construction, utilities, industrial and manufacturing. Suggested for any work zone where personal protective equipment is required.
