

“The Fire In Me”

Jan. 10, 2025

By: Laterina Taylor

Published: Purnev Literary Magazine

The Fire in Me

I was born with a spark in my chest,
small, quiet—waiting.
The world tried to drown it,
storms poured, winds howled,
but fire? Fire does not beg to burn.

Now I walk like a flame untamed,
heat in my bones, light in my veins.
I do not flicker.
I do not fade.
I rise—blazing.