HISTORY

Jacobsbaai, a picturesque coastal village in South Africa, was founded in the late 18th century. It was established in 1853 by Michael Jacobs, who owned the farm where the village now stands. The area was originally known as Jacobs Bay, named after its founder. Daai Plekkie in die Weskus is situated on the tip end of Jacobsbaai next to the shoreline of the “baai”, providing breathtaking views of the ocean and surrounding areas.
