Blessing and Greeting:

I am in receipt of your (undated) letter.

You are certainly right in recognizing that every Jew is obligated to conduct his or her life in accordance with the Will of the Creator, as set forth in His Torah, called Toras Chaim, because it is the Jew's true guide in life. And since this is what G-d expects of every Jew, it is certain that He provides the necessary capacities to carry it out in the fullest measure.

Where there are certain problems involved, the usual thing to do is to consult with an Orthodox Rabbi, to whom it is possible to explain personally and in detail the various aspects of the situation, and he is then able to provide the true Torah guidance.

Wishing you a joyous and inspiring Purim,

With blessing,
