Questions 1 to 5 are based on the following document.

Many of the law offenders arrested recently are drug users. The term “drug-related crimes” has been subject to criticism, as it does not define the specific nature or range of such crimes. Crimes that occur as a result of drug use, crimes that emerge as the result of offender’s need to support his/her drug consumption, and crimes that occur as a result of drug trafficking and distribution are all considered “drug-related crimes”. While most drug related crimes can be in one of these categories, some may include more than one classification.

Some studies conducted by non-governmental organizations have shown that addiction can lead to property crimes and robberies. Drug and alcohol abuse are behind higher rates of domestic violence, child abuse and sexual violence. Drug use is more closely linked to robbery and property crime than to violent crimes. Many addicts commit crimes in order to get enough money to buy drugs. In prisons, those convicted of violent crimes are less likely to have used drugs than those convicted to property crimes. Yet, at least a quarter of men who commit crimes of domestic violence also have drug abuse problems. Women who are drug addicts are more likely to be the victims of those abuses.

Drug use and criminal behaviour certainly seem to be correlated. It is more likely for drug users to feel the urge to commit crimes than non-users.

Questions 6 to 10 are about the following document.

There are some important things to consider when you set up a B&B (Bed and Breakfast) business. First of all, you need to think about the location of the B&B. Tourists need to be able to find it easily, and it needs to be near to places that tourists will want to visit. It should also be close to shopping facilities because tourists will need to buy food and refreshments, and they may want to shop for arts and crafts as well.

Communication is also very important. Tourists need to be provided with information about their booking, the facilities at the B&B and directions to get there before they arrive. E-mail, telephone, fax and cell phone communication is therefore essential.

Another thing that is important is parking. Tourists need a safe place to park their vehicles.

Security is also important. Tourists will need to feel safe and comfortable in B&B.

And finally, tourists are more likely to come back again- and to recommend the B&B to others- if the staff at B&B treats them in a friendly and helpful manner.
