Uncle

I remember when I was small,
And you were kind and strong.
You really haven't changed a bit,
As life has moved along.

I knew that you were thoughtful,
And, today, you're still the same.
You're always helping others,
And that has never changed.

You've always been right there for us,
In good times and in bad.
You laughed with us in happy times,
And hung us from an old clothesline.

You are a special uncle,
As special as can be.
More than that, you've been a friend,
A cherished friend to me.

To Win To Lose To Race

You have your favourite driver,
You love to watch him run.
And here's some facts that you should know,
To understand him some.

We have the same desires,
Our blood runs thick and thin.
But everyone knows, the driver goes,
Each night to try and win.

He pushes hard till he feels low,
And the oval becomes a drag.
But his heart is blessed with the wonderful sight,
Of the gracious checkered flag.

His ego sores enormously,
He knew that she could win.
And he shines her up for the next event,
They must charge on again.

Your running hard, your running fast,
In this race your chance is small.
So, you push beyond your chariots will,
And slam into the wall.

You undertake that feeling of guilt,
You've wrecked your precious friend.
So, sob a bit, you deserve that much,
Now fix her up again.

Then come back proud and come back strong,
And run with all your grace.
She's looking good, she'll win again,
The name of the game is..... Race.
