IIT-BHU students to show their skills at Technex-19

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Varanasi: IIT -BHU is going to hold its 80th edition of the three-day techno-management festival — Technex-19 — from March 8 to 10. The festival will witness a series of events showcasing the innovative skills of budding engineers.

Talking to reporters on Wednesday, dean student affairs Prof. BN Rai said that for the first time the exhibition would feature government agencies like BrahMos Aerospace, Archaeological Survey of India (ASI), Research Design and Standards Organisation (RDSO), and Diesel Locomotive Works (DLW).

space would showcase prototypes of the BrahMos missile, Sukhoi Su-30MKI, and land-based and naval-based launch pads, WAGC3, that recently created history by being the first diesel locomotive to be converted into an electric locomotive, would feature among the exhibits of DLW.

The fest would feature events like model exhibition, robotics, aero-modeling, start-up fair, aerobatics, corporate conclave and others.

Besides, it will also feature special events like 'Pahal' to present innovative ideas to provide engineering solutions to environmental problems and social initiatives to help the city and the country be a better place.

He said that many personalities, including Garrett Brown, a US inventor known as the creator of Steadicam, Dr John C Mather, a US astrophysicist, cosmologist and Nobel Prize Laureate in Physics (2006), American computer scientist Nathaniel Borenstein and others would take part in the fest.
