ABOUT KATA KATA CARTOON MAGAZINE

Kata Kata is an authentic African cartoon magazine with both online and printed versions. In a humorous way, Kata Kata tries to discuss and sensitize typical African / global socio - political issues, mainly through illustrations, animations etc. Furthermore, through its social network (Kata Kata Community), it tries to keep those cultural entities alive by stimulating personal interactions and exchange of ideas amongst the readers.

At the same time, Kata Kata equally offers a maxim that life is perhaps not all about seriousness. One needs some laughs and relaxation to face serious challenges in life.

The duality of Kata Kata is such that it tries to discuss serious issues, at the same time, it offers a therapy for the problems through laughter.

The quarterly printed edition of Kata Kata is widely available in the Netherlands and some countries in Europe. Equally, the digital version of Kata Kata can also be read online or subscribed to via Kata Kata website or Magzter, the world's largest digital newsstand with more than 20 million readers.

Publisher's note

Knowing The Right Time To Act

Imagine. Imagine a car without a driver. Or without a break. In both cases, the result can be terrible – and perhaps, fatal, to be honest.

Clearly, life is a journey that requires clarity and a sense of direction and purpose. That calls for knowledge of the route to your destination and where and when to draw a line. Leaders are not born, but rather made through hard work, sacrifices, principles, conduct, ethics, motivation, persistence and ability to make the right choices and decisions, based on the needs of those you lead, which bear the desirable fruit of success and create a positive impact in the lives of others. Leadership is, therefore, not necessarily about searching for consensus but, in fact, moulding the consensus.

Your intention as a leader is not to be recognised, but to be remembered by the footprint you have left behind through your actions. In order to leave that necessary imprint, you must get people from where they are to where they are supposed to be or where they have not been. As a leader, you must be able to translate the vision of those you lead into reality. You can only achieve this by first believing in those you lead and having the conviction that they desire better. By valuing your subjects, you are simultaneously adding value to them.

In reality, leadership is not about control, but rather the ability to make sacrifices, right decisions and to know when to say yes or no. This way, you automatically produce more leaders – not followers – after you. Effective leadership is, therefore, judged by the results, achieved through sacrifices and definitely, not attributes. With this in mind, you could say that success – whether as a person, leader, or a group has a unique price tag attached to it, which can only be achieved through making the right decisions. The question, of course, is: Are you willing to pay the price in order to achieve that success? Will the greed be an obstacle towards achieving your goal? How about honesty, hard work, endurance, integrity?

Back in Africa, leaders have unfortunately failed to set a standard or border. Nor do they know where or when to change their directions. The result is that they keep on making the same mistakes that have kept them and the continent perpetually saddled in the socio-political and economic web. It is, definitely, not bad to make mistakes, but it is unacceptable not to learn from those mistakes. Unless you are bold – and indeed smart – enough to look back at your failures, bad experiences, mistakes and accept that they are in fact a positive teacher – and if you wish, a classroom – you learn from and make corrections in life, you hardly can make a tangible progress and success in your life and that of others around you – including those you lead.

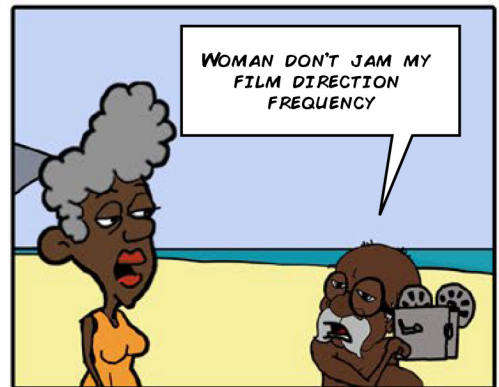

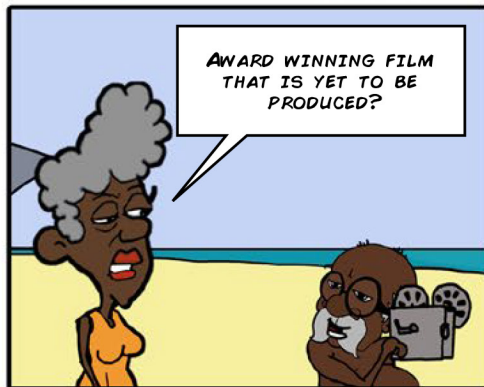

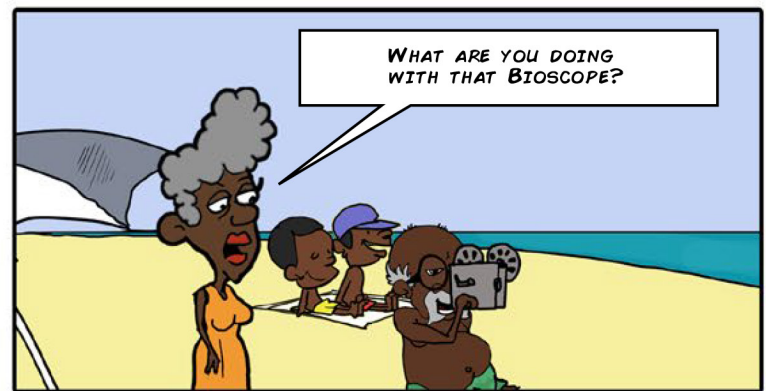

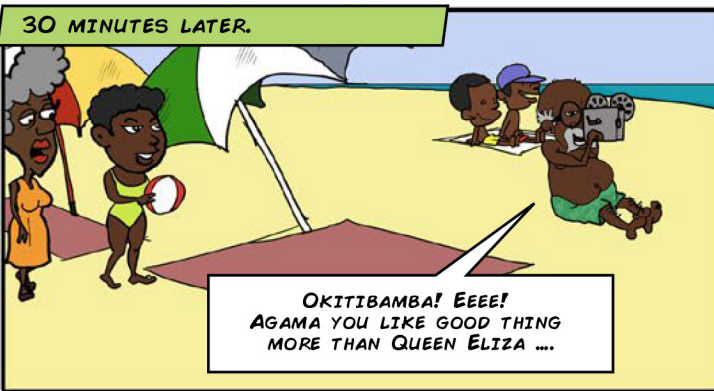

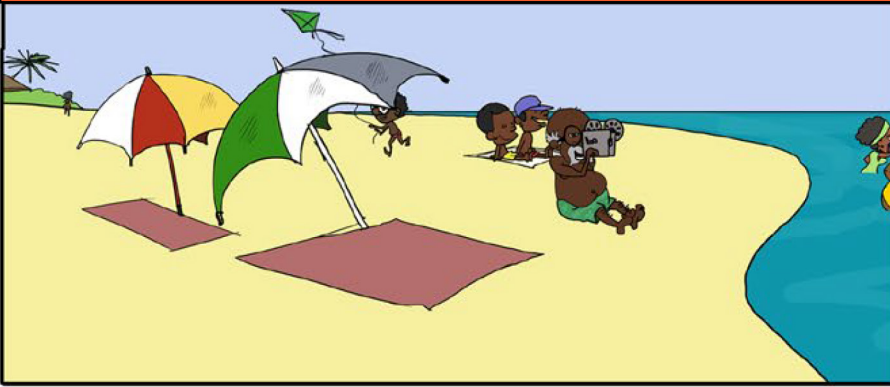

The Kata Kata Village tries not to repeat the mistakes of many African leaders. Yes, Agama may have made wrong choices in life, but this time, he knows exactly the right time to leave – especially when the danger is imminent. Are African leaders listening? Can they borrow a leaf from Agama? Oh, I heard Agama has boastfully told the Kata Kata Village Assembly that African leaders are remorsefully on the way to the Kata Kata Village to ask for his advice - despite flaws in his character. Trust Agama!

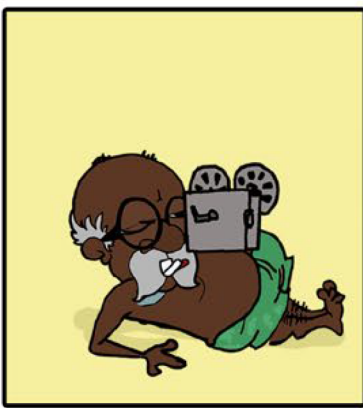

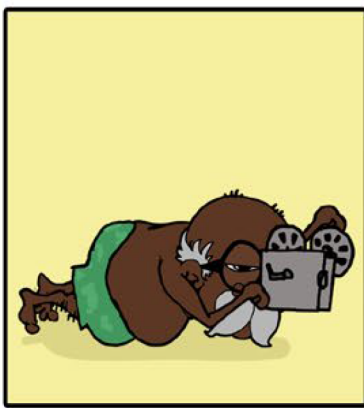

Yours in Kata Kata,
