ABOUT KATA KATA CARTOON MAGAZINE

Kata Kata is an authentic African cartoon magazine with both online and printed versions. In a humorous way, Kata Kata tries to discuss and sensitize typical African / global socio - political issues, mainly through illustrations, animations etc. Furthermore, through its social network (Kata Kata Community), it tries to keep those cultural entities alive by stimulating personal interactions and exchange of ideas amongst the readers.

At the same time, Kata Kata equally offers a maxim that life is perhaps not all about seriousness. One needs some laughs and relaxation to face serious challenges in life.

The duality of Kata Kata is such that it tries to discuss serious issues, at the same time, it offers a therapy for the problems through laughter.

The quarterly printed edition of Kata Kata is widely available in the Netherlands and some countries in Europe. Equally, the digital version of Kata Kata can also be read online or subscribed to via Kata Kata website or Magzter, the world's largest digital newsstand with more than 20 million readers.

I HEAR YOU

Ente encheke achwe ekinaga egamba, "Kiki kyonansindikire!"
(Bunyoro)

Ng'ombe dhaifu kavunja nyungu kasema "Namlaumu mtu aliye nisukuma." (Swahili)

La vache faible brisa le pot et dit, "Je condamne la person qui m'avait pousse!" (French)

The weak cow broke the pot and said, "I blame the person who pushed me". (English)

Explanation: A We should not blame others for our failures, rather we must take responsibilities for them and try to make things right. Hence, we must be encouraged to make an attempt and fail, rather than not making any attempt at all or blaming others. Shifting blames on another is a sign of irresponsibility and weakness, which must be discouraged if we want to make a meaningful progress in our society.

Publisher's note

Use Your Talent And Skill

Every individual is naturally empowered with, at least, a talent, which is clearly different from a skill. For the sake of clarity, talent is one's natural ability, which allows them to demonstrate some immediate skill, especially, without practice. On the other hand, a skill is something we learn through practice, experience and development. Music, advertising, public speaking, drawing, all fall under skills. When we talk about talents, issues like entrepreneurship, honesty, adaptability come to mind. You need both talent and skill to make your life meaningful, as well as change your life positively.

However, to achieve that aim, one needs to first discover their talents and skilfully utilize them well. To each according to their ability, you would say. You may as well ask yourself: what are my talents and skills, and how best can / have I use(d) them? Have you used them to move your life and those of others forward and positively? Or are they used to impend on other individuals' progress? To rather make life more difficult, if not impossible for yourself and others?

Sadly, our inability to discover our talents and skill leads to making wrong choices and decision in life. On the other hand, those wrong decisions hardly make our lives and future anything meaningful. Yes, one might not have a given talent, but commitment and determination could help one acquire the necessary skills needed to get things done.

African societies, just like many other countries in the world have unique talents and skills. You only need to harness and put them into good use to move the countries forward. One needs to be encouraged. For example, Africa is naturally blessed with constant sun, which can easily be converted into solar technology and help make life meaningful for Africans. The ability to acquire skill in solar energy technology would drastically change African lives and societies in a positive way. What makes more sense: to import generator plants from abroad in order to provide electricity or invest in the solar energy expertise skill? Would to become experts in solar technology increase productivity? Definitely, yes. Unfortunately, one of the greatest mistakes Africans make is to look down on their talents and skills and rather try to copy those of others. But often, different talents fit better in different environments. Hence, developing one's skills and talent pays off.

Is Nza listening? His father has just discovered that the son has an extraordinary talent. Nza must be fully encouraged to put his talent into use so that the talent can help the Kata Kata Village. Unless Nza is encouraged immediately to harness his talent, he might end up mis-using it. That could obviously put his life in jeopardy – and indeed, his future, in a precarious condition.

Follow me to the Kata Kata Village and let us advise Nza before it is too late. Coming with me? Cool, join the train.

Yours in Kata Kata,
Ogo Ubabukoh
