77. The good book of the hour, then,—I do not speak of the bad ones—is simply the useful or pleasant talk of some person whom you cannot otherwise converse with, printed for you. Very useful often, telling you what you need to know; very pleasant often; as a sensible friend's present talk would be. These bright accounts of travels; good-humoured and witty discussion; lively or pathetic story-telling in the form of novel; firm fact-telling, by the real agents concerned in the events of passing history;—all these books of the hour, multiplying among us as education becomes more general, are a peculiar characteristic and possession of the present age. We ought to be entirely thankful for them, and entirely ashamed of ourselves if we make no good use of them. But we make the worst possible use, if we allow them to usurp the place of true books : for, strictly speaking, they are not books at all, but merely letters or newspapers in good print.

How, according to the author, is the good book of the hour very useful ?

(a) Because it gives the information required by you
(b) Because it is in printed form
(c) Because it gives you pleasure
(d) Because it is in the form of conversation
