KWANELE — END GBV NOW!

Nyatee Foundation and JA Project Unite to Confront Gender-Based Violence

A landmark dialogue at Constitutional Hill, Johannesburg brought together leaders, activists, and communities in a powerful call to action.

On 27 March 2026, the Nyatee Foundation, in partnership with JA Project, hosted a critical dialogue at Constitutional Hill, Johannesburg — one of South Africa's most symbolic sites of justice and human rights. The event, held at midday, centred on the urgent need to end Gender-Based Violence (GBV) in South Africa.

The dialogue brought together a diverse coalition of voices — community leaders, activists, survivors, and advocates — to confront the hard realities of GBV and to explore concrete, community-driven steps toward protection, support, and healing.

GBV remains one of the most pressing crises facing South Africa. The choice of Constitutional Hill as the venue was deliberate — a reminder that the fight against GBV is inseparable from the broader struggle for human dignity and constitutional rights.

*“This is more than a conversation.
It is a call to action.”*

— Nyatee Foundation

The partnership between Nyatee Foundation and JA Project reflects a shared commitment to amplifying the urgency of ending GBV — not just through awareness, but through meaningful, accountable action within communities.

For those who were unable to attend the dialogue in person, the Nyatee Foundation will be sharing key insights, learnings, and calls to action across its social media platforms. The conversation does not end at Constitutional Hill — it is only the beginning.
