ABOUT

Self-taught iOS Engineer with 3+ years experience. I spent half my career leading client side iOS development for small startups in Silicon Valley, and the other half independent contracting.

I've contracted on multiple iOS applications ranging from payment tracking, real-time voice communication, food tracking to elementary education. I also run a YouTube channel teaching iOS development and Swift to tens of thousands of aspiring developers.

HISTORY

July 2018 - Present	Aluna iOS Engineer Leading all aspects of iOS development for a gamified pediatric asthma product set to launch Q1 2019.
Mar 2017 - June 2018	Independent Contracting iOS Engineer Worked on 7 client projects in Swift with development agencies. Portfolio can be found at seanallen.co.
Nov 2015 - Mar 2017	Breathometer iOS Engineer Led client-side development and designed the UI/UX for their iOS apps. Built Mint from zero to launch, and prototyped another product, Burn.

SKILLS

Swift

Writing Swift full-time for 3+ years and following its evolution since 1.0. I've built or worked on 10 codebases that were 100% Swift, and host a weekly show, Swift News, discussing the latest developments in Swift and mobile app development.

Front End - Consumer Facing

Heavily experienced in building adaptable UI's for many screen sizes via Interface Builder as well as programatically. Passion for elegant and intuitive UI/UX. Took on the role of Designer at Breathometer along with my Engineering duties.

Zero to Launch

I've spent the bulk of my career building iOS applications from an idea to a version 1.0 (or MVP) launch for clients and small startups. While I've specialized in the phase of app development, I'm looking to get into larger, more mature projects.
