CAREER SUMMARY

I am a result oriented software developer with over six years of experience in iOS development, tech leadership and product management. I have developed and managed over 20 applications in various fields like e-commerce, navigation, finance, social network, location-based, news and, multimedia. I always care about creating applications with reusable components and intuitive user interface experience. I also comprehend the importance of creating a highly clean, testable, maintainable, and readable code. I am always eager to learn new technologies and keep myself updated. I have always invested time and effort in core skills for building software and this approach has seen me pick up new skills quickly and succeed in challenging projects many times.
