This excellent little volume is must reading for anyone interested in Chinese ceramics for it tells the actual story of China's most famous ceramic centre Jingdezhen from its first known ceramist a man named Tao Yu during the Tang Dynasty 618-907 to today. It is a tale worth knowing for in all the years I've been studying. This book's title: China's Porcelain Capital: The Rise, Fall and Reinvention of Ceramics in Jingdezhen is always there in my bag. In any spare time it was easy for me to read China's Porcelain Capital: The Rise, Fall and Reinvention of Ceramics in Jingdezhen despite having read repeatedly.
