Panama Canal Tour

PARTIAL TRANSIT

Tour description (5-6 hrs):

Our tour starts at the Panama Canal Dredging Division in Gamboa which is located at the north end of the Gaillard Cut, where the Chagres River flows into the Canal. The Gaillard Cut (also known as Culebra Cut because its curves resemble a snake) is one of the main points of interest for visitors because it was carved through the Continental Divide and this section of the Canal is full of history and geological value. Our ship will travel the Cut's 13.7 kilometers on the way to Pedro Miguel Locks. As you transit the Cut you will be able to appreciate the continuous maintenance that this area requires, because it is very susceptible to landslides.

Before reaching the Pedro Miguel Locks at the southern end of the Cut, you will be able to view the new Centennial Bridge which crosses over the Canal. Next, we will enter Pedro Miguel Locks, which is one of the two sets of locks on the Pacific side, and here the vessel is lowered 9 meters in one step. You will then enter Miraflores Lake, which is a small artificial body of fresh water that separates Pedro Miguel from Miraflores Locks, the latter being the final set of locks before reaching the Pacific Ocean. At Miraflores Locks the vessel is lowered 18 meters in two distinct steps.

Once in the Pacific Ocean the vessel will sail to the beautiful Flamenco Marina where passengers disembark. On the way to Flamenco, you will pass under the Bridge of the Americas, and later, you will be able to admire the Bay of Panama and Panama City's splendid skyline.

Tour includes:

Bilingual guide/narrator

Lunch is served on the boat and includes various Panamanian dishes.

Soft drinks and water

Transport to and from The Executive Hotel

Partial Crossing Dates

All Saturdays of the year (2007)

Panama Canal

Panama City Tour – 2

This tour will let you take in the architectural wonders of the Panama Canal as well as the vibrancy and beauty of the capital of the Republic!

Our day will start at the Miraflores locks, located at the Pacific entrance to the Canal where our expert guide will let you in on the secrets and histories surrounding the building of the Canal while you experience this magnificent architectural masterpiece and have a breathtaking view of the ships transiting through the 8th wonder of the world.

The trip then takes to the city, where you will be able to experience not only the banking capital of Central America but also the beauty of the colonial city of Panama. We will visit the Causeway, a leisure paradise with shopping, restaurants and bars that offers spectacular views of the modern city and its skyscrapers.

In contrast, the oldest sector of the modern Panama City founded in 1673, has a charming mixture of colonial architecture, cobblestone streets and ethnic diversity. UNESCO recently named this area World Heritage Site.

It contains a wealth of history in its churches, museums and streets carefully restored to their former colonial beauty and is also home to the Presidential Palace, the National Theatre, the 17th century Church of the Golden Altar, Las Bovedas, church of San Francisco, the National Cathedral, the Independence Square and much more.

Before returning there will also be an opportunity to visit a local handicraft market, where an array of native art and craft is on offer.

Includes: Transportation, English- Speaking tour guide, entrance fee to Miraflores Locks.

Death Road

Yungus Road, or “Death Road” as it is known to the locals, has often been described as the most dangerous road in the world.

Running from Bolivia’s capital La Paz into a rainforest region known as the Yungas, the road has no barrier to the edge, and the two-way traffic shares a space just 12ft wide.

From the aerial shots, the road looks relatively safe as it casually winds through the trees. But load up the terrain layer in Google Earth, and you’ll see scary hairpin bends leading around the edge of a cliff face.

In fact, it seems “Death Road” is a very suitable nickname, as it’s estimated between 200 and 300 people die in this area each year!

Notoriety hasn’t helped the death toll here, as thrill-seeking tourists now visit the area just to drive on the road and it’s even popular with mountain biking lunatics.

La Paz, Bolivia

This is the highest capital city in the world, situated 3,632 metres above sea level. The city is overshadowed by Mount Illimani and plays host to a number of impressive sights. The Presidential Palace can be found in the city, which is also known as the 'Burnt Palace' because of a repeat number of fires the building has endured in the past. La Paz Cathedral can be found in Plaza Murillo, next to the Presidential Palace, and was built in 1835 with an intricate and impressive design. If you are interested in religious symbolism and imagery, there are a number of churches located across the city boasting paintings, relics and statues from important religious dates.

Casa de Pedro Domingo Murillo was once the house of Pedro Domingo Murillo, the martyr of the independence movement in 1809. His house displays a collection of furniture, textiles and art from colonial times. If this house gives you a taste for history, visit one of the city's many museums where you can learn about the country's volatile past and the indigenous people as well as prehistoric times in Bolivia. If this is not enough for you, La Paz is also home to an abundance of art galleries and the famous Witches' Market.

Moon Valley

You will find exceptional rock formations in the eroded hillsides of Moon Valley. The top of these hills offers stunning views across the countryside as well as a perfect place to sit back and enjoy a picnic.

Machu Picchu

Machu Picchu (Quechua: Machu Picchu Old Peak; sometimes called the "Lost City of the Incas") is a well-preserved pre-Columbian Inca ruin located at 2,430 m (7,970 ft)^[1] on a mountain ridge. Machu Picchu is located above the Urubamba Valley in Peru, about 70 km (44 mi) northwest of Cusco. Forgotten for centuries by the outside world, although not by locals, it was brought back to international attention by archaeologist Hiram Bingham who rediscovered it in 1911, and wrote a best-selling work about it. Peru is pursuing legal efforts to retrieve thousands of artifacts that Bingham removed from the site.

All visits to Machu Picchu at some point leave from Cusco, which can be reached via a domestic flight from Lima, or international flight from La Paz, in Bolivia. Taking the tourist train from Cusco (which takes 3.5 hours to get to Machu Picchu), you have several options.

The most common way is to take the train to Machu Picchu in the morning, explore the ruins for a few hours and return to Cusco in the afternoon. The train terminates at Puente Ruinas station, where buses take tourists up the mountain to Machu Picchu. Strangely, Machu Picchu station is at Aguas Calientes (2km before Puente Ruinas station) but is not the station used by tourists on a day trip.

Machupicchu Tour (1Day)

A full day visit to the world famous Inca citadel of Machupicchu, departing Cusco in the early morning to reach Aguas Calientes town after a 4-hour train ride. From this point, a bus will take us up to the ruins to start a full-guided tour of the Inca city lasting between 2-2,5 hours, after which you will enjoy free time to further visit this impressive archaeological site. In the afternoon, bus ride back to Aguas Calientes to board the train that will take us back to Cusco, with an estimated arrival time around 8.30-9.00pm.
