New Delhi: The last thing vou would associate with electric mobility and green two-wheelers would be a company called Jitendra EV, a small-time establishment based out of Maharashtra. And if that's not surprising enough, there are other similar ones with not-soimpressive names. By way of example there is Kabira Mobility, which is a e-bike seller that assembles its rides in Dharwad. Karnataka as also M2Go, a company headquartered in the Punjabi Bagh locality in Delhi.

These companies are part of a large group of start-ups - and their numbers are growing by the day — that have sprang up across the country over the last couple of vears looking to tap into the growing push towards electric mobility in what are the tech's early days in India.

The gameplan is simple: source batteries, controllers, and body parts and stitch them all together (many of the companies proudly call it 'local manufacturing' though it's not much more than just cosmetic, small-time assemblv), before selling it under the 'Make in India' tag.

The sourcing is done mostly from China (and now even from India) and is akin to what happened in the early days of the mobile phone industry in India. People (some from non-related fields) bought the some times nearly completed parts from China, assembled them here at small establishments, and then passed them off as local products under their own brand names.

Many of the products, which cost between Rs 45,000 to Rs 1.1 lakh, offer a mobility range of 60 km to 100 km (under different driving conditions) with a charge time of around 4 hours. Some of them also offer the convenience of portable batteries, weighing about 12 kg, that can even be carried home.

Experts believe that unlike traditional petrol automobile products that need high-tech engineering for designing engines and transmission systems, the heart of e-bike technology is its battery and motor, which is mostly imported from China. The rest of the components are either locally manufactured or are imported as kits to be assembled and sold in the Indian market.

And, while small startups are trying to find their feet in the e-bike segment, the bigger ones such as Bajaj Auto, TVS, Hero Moto-Corp and Honda 2wheelers are yet to show any serious intent with the last two not having launched any EV products yet.

WHY HEALTH EPIDEMIC IN CHINA CAN SPARK AN ECONOMIC PANDEMIC

Amid the lockdown and travel bans triggered by the 2019 novel coronavirus outbreak in China, fears have been expressed about its impact on the health of the global economy as a whole. Research by Australian think tank Lowy Institute suggests these concerns are legitimate: China now has a much bigger imprint than US on world trade and between US and China more countries now have the latter as their largest trading partner

HOW CHINA GOT HERE

> When China acceded to the World Trade Organisation in 2001, over 80% of countries (for which data is available) did more trade with America than China. Cut to 2018, and that figure had dropped to a little over 30% of countries with US as their biggest trading partner while two-thirds, that is, 66% or 128 of 190 countries trade more with China than US

► Lowy Institute, which adds that 90 countries traded more than twice as much with China as with US, says the "turning point was the global financial crisis" when China overtook US as the larger trading partner for more than half of all countries

Note: Data for the research was taken from IMF's Direction of Trade Statistics database and the focus was on gross trade flows (exports plus imports)

WHAT IS ECONOMIC IMPACT 2019-NCOV CAN HAVE?

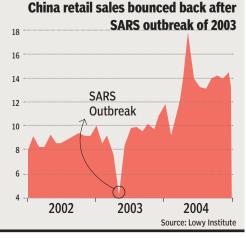

> Banks and asset managers have forecast that the 2019nCoV could reduce global GDP by 0.2 to 0.3 percentage points. Some strategists noted that this scenario "assumes that the spread of the virus slows down in February and is contained by March/April". While the response to the disease has been urgent, it is uncertain when it will be declared as having been contained

> Also, in the wake of the outbreak, ratings agency S&P on Friday lowered its forecast for China's economic growth this year to 5% from 5.7%. However, the ratings agency said it expects growth to rebound to 6.4% in 2021

> Experts are optimistic that things will be back to normal and cite the SARS outbreak of 2003 in China, when retail sales fell only to recover shortly after the disease was contained

Between 1995 and 2018, China nudged past US in global trade

A Look At Asking Rate For BJP, AAP And Cong In Poll Field

TIMES INSIGHT GROUP

New Delhi: Which party has to play catch-up in these assembly polls and just how much of a mountain does it have to climb to reach the top? The answer to that question depends on what we take as the reference point. If it's the last assembly polls, it is BJP that has to do a lot to overhaul AAP, if it's the 2017 civic polls or the 2019 Lok Sabha election, the roles are reversed.

In 2015, AAP's near-total sweep came on the back of a  $54.6\sqrt[6]{v}$  vote share, which comfortably eclipsed BJP's 32.8% and, of course, the 9.7% that Congress won. If we take this as the starting point, therefore, the minimum swing needed for BJP to catch up with AAP is 10.9 percentage points. In other words, if 10.9% of voters were to shift from AAP to BJP, both parties will end up with vote shares of 43.7% (54.6 minus 10.9 and 32.8 plus 10.9). Of course, if there is a swing away from AAP, but only a part of it goes to BJP and the rest to Congress or others, the asking rate for the saffron party will become even higher.

If, on the other hand, we

MIND THE GAP

If the last assembly polls are taken as a reference point, it is BJP that has to do a lot to overhaul AAP. If it's the 2017 civic polls or 2019 Lok Sabha elections, the roles are reversed take the 2017 civic polls as our about half as tough as what starting point, BJP's 36.1% BJP needs to do vis-à-vis the was well ahead of AAP's last assembly polls. Again, and Congress' this is assuming a neat swing 21.1%. To close the gap, AAP from BJP to AAP. will need to wean away 5%

The gap between BJP and its rivals in 2019 was even larger than AAP's lead in 2015.

Court seeks report on plea against Sisodia

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

New Delhi: A Delhi court on Friday directed Delhi Police to submit an action-taken report on a plea seeking an FIR against deputy chief minister Manish Sisodia for allegedly making a provocative statement during the Jamia violence.

Additional chief metropolitan magistrate Vishal Pahuja sought the report and posted the matter for February 24. Seeking a direction under Section 156(3) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the plea had urged the court to issue a direction to Delhi Police to register an FIR against the deputy chief minister.

HC stays govt's move to increase auto fares

Shaheen Bagh shooter's brother joins investigation

The saffron party got 56.9% of the votes, Congress was second with 22.6% and AAP third with 18.2%. Since by all accounts, Congress is not really in the race to win in Delhi this time round, let's look at what it will take for AAP to close this gap. That works out to a swing of 19.4 percentage points from BJP to AAP, which will leave them almost level at about 37.5%-37.6%.

THE TIMES OF INDIA, NEW DELHI SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 2020

None of these swings barring the one needed from 2017—looks like an easy task to achieve. But the good news for both sides is that they have already done it in the past, between 2015 and 2017 in the case of BJP and between 2014

The fact that Delhi's electorate grows so rapidly could also help. Between 2015 and 2019, the electorate grew from 133.1 lakh to 143.3 lakh, an increase of 10.2 lakh in justfour years. By the time of the current elections, that has already grown by another 3.7 lakh to reach 147 lakh. Some of this addition is young people becoming old enough to vote, but a lot of it is also adult migrants coming to the capital. Could they hold the keys to these swings?

New Delhi: Delhi high court on Friday stayed AAP government's decision last year to hike autorickshaw fares. The court acted on a plea filed by an NGO, Aiding Hands Foundation, which had challenged the increase in fares on the ground that the notification revising auto fares was issued without the approval of the competent authority — the lieutenant governor — and that it would severely impact people. # Criminal with 10 cases of murder held in Doon

Kautilya.Singh@timesgroup.com

Dehradun: Anil Pehelwan alias Leela, one of the most wanted criminals of Delhi and Haryana carrying a reward of Rs1lakh on his head, was arrested by Dehradun police late on Thursday. He had jumped parole in October 2018 and had been elusive since then as he was believed to be staying at different locations to evade arrest.

Police officials said that on a tip-off, a team was formed led by SP Dehradun (rural) Parmendra Dobhal, which tracked his location for several weeks before arresting him. A.32 bore pistol was also seized from his possession. Leela had 10 criminal cases - including those of murder of a police inspector in Rohtak city besides kidnapping and extortion—against him in Delhi and Haryana.

Leela was lodged in Tihar Jail in 2014 and during his stay there, policemen noticed in CCTV footage that a woman would come to visit him often. They suspected the woman to be his wife and traced her location to Dehradun. Further investigation took police to Doon Vihar locality and the cops zeroed in on a house in the area where they believed Leela could be hidden. Dehradun senior superintendent of police (SSP) Arun Kumar Joshi said, "A police team worked as LPG cylinder delivery boys and even sold vegetables in the area to find out his whereabouts."

After the house number — where Leela could be holed in — was confirmed, police prepared a blue print of all routes leading to the house. "There was a possibility that Leela's accomplices may open fire at our team if he was arrested, therefore we decided to carry out the proceedings very quickly. Wearing bullet-proof jackets, our team members apprehended Leela's car outside the house and arrested him," Joshi said.

A resident of Bahadurgarh in Haryana district, Leela was a state-level weightlifter. After completing his studies from a Delhi college, he along with his cousin Babloo opened a gym. Inspired by Babloo, who murdered his wife's boyfriend, Leela performed his first crime and looted a car.

His crime trajectory then took off and of the 10 cases against him, seven were registered in Haryana and remaining in Delhi. In 2014, Delhi Crime Branch arrested him and he was sent to jail till 2017.

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

New Delhi: Two days after being served a notice by the Special Investigation Team (SIT), the brother of Shaheen Bagh shooter, Kapil Baisla, joined the probe on Friday Sachin Baisla was questioned regarding Kapil's associations and asked to hand over the mobile handset that Kapil regularly used.

The handset from which the cops had found the photographs of Kapil and his father purportedly joining Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) had only a handful of numbers saved in it. Most of them belonged to Kapil's friends.

Kapil was taken into two-day police custody on Thursday. During this period, the cops scanned through his bank accounts to establish whether a large sum of money was transferred into his account. Sachin too was guestioned regarding this. Sources said that Kapil's all claims are being cross-verified since he has been changing his statements.

While scanning through Kapil's phone, police have also come across some coded words, which were used during the chats in some WhatsApp groups. Sachin too was a member of some of the groups. He is being questioned to get further clarity in this regard.

Sources said that when Sachin was questioned about his affiliation with AAP or any other political party, he did not give a clear reply. "He has been changing his versions every now and then," said a police officer. "Sachin first claimed that he was unaware of Kapil's plan as the latter had left home unannounced on February 1. But he retracted his statement when confronted by the cops. Police are now waiting for Kapil's father, Gaje Singh, to join the probe," the officer added.

Meanwhile, source of the weapon used by Kapil still remains shrouded in mystery. Kapil initially claimed that he had the weapon since seven years, but failed to identify the arms dealer. He has even been changing his statements regarding the identity of the dealer.

Nearly 1.5cr Voters Will Pick Winners For 70 Seats Atul.Mathur@timesgroup.com

New Delhi: The stage is set for the capital's close to 1.5 crore registered voters to elect 70 members for the seventh term of the reconstituted Delhi assembly on Saturday.

The voting will take place at 13,750 polling booths in 2,688 locations across the city from 8am to 6pm. Elaborate arrangements have been made to ensure "free and fair' polling, said a senior Delhi election official.

A total of 672 candidates -593 men and 79 women — are in the fray this year, the lowest since 1993 when the first election of the reconstituted assembly took place. The counting will take place on February 11 and the new assembly will have to take oath before February 22, when the term of the current House will expire. While the coveted constituency of New Delhi, from where chief minister Arvind Kejriwal is seeking re-election, has the highest number of candidates at 28, the reserved constituency of Patel Nagar has just four contestants With over 4.2 lakh registered voters, Matiala is the largest constituency in terms of electors, followed by neighbouring Vikaspuri. Chandni Chowk is the smallest with a little over 1.2 lakh voters, followed by Matia Mahal.

Poll officials have identified over 3,700 critical polling booths across 516 locations. Around 40 of these booths are at five locations in south-east Delhi's Shaheen Bagh, where the anti-CAA protests have been going on for almost two months. All critical polling booths are under "tight vigil" and will also get paramilitary cover.

Apart from 40,000 Delhi Police personnel, 190 companies of paramilitary and 13,000

However, if a name is missing in the electoral roll, that person won't be allowed to vote even if he has a voter's ID, said another official.

The Election Commission has marked one model polling booth in each constituency while each district will have one polling station that will be managed by an all-woman team.

To help elderly citizens and persons with disabilities, the polling stations will have ramps, wheelchairs and volunteers. The office of Chief Electoral Officer, Delhi is also offering a pick-anddrop facility for the disabled and 80+ voters

For the first time, over 2 lakh 80+ and 50,000 disabled voters have also been offered the postal ballot facility, but less than 3,000 have registered themselves.

AAP to deploy 1.6 lakh booth-level volunteers

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

New Delhi: Aam Aadmi Party will deploy an army of 1,65,000 volunteers at all the 13,750 polling booths across 70 assembly constituencies going to polls on Saturday. At each polling booth, 12 AAP volunteers, including two booth agents and 10 mobilisers, will be deployed to encourage people to come out and vote. The activities of all the booth-level workers, who are locals, will be closely monitored from assembly-level war rooms.

AAP chief Arvind Kejriwal will be monitoring the party activities from his residence. An additional war room created at the city-level will keep a tab on the party's trained volunteers on the ground. While the assembly-level war rooms have 20 persons each, the central war room will be manned by 80 party volunteers.

BJP hopes its aggressive campaign will end wait

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

New Delhi: BJP on Friday exuded confidence that it would win the assembly elections and return to office after 21 years in exile. A senior BJP functionary said the party had conducted an internal survey in the last week of January, which concluded that almost a third of Delhi was still unsure about whom to vote for.

'We reacted immediately and launched an outreach programme. We are banking on our aggressive campaigning to win the polls," he added. In the last two weeks, BJP had brought in senior leaders, including union ministers, chief ministers from different states and several MPs to campaign for the party in the crucial Delhi assembly polls. Union minister Amit Shah and party president JP Nadda also participated in over 100 public meetings, including padyatras and roadshows, besides door-to-door outreach programme.

Jamia students move protest site for polls

New Delhi: Jamia Millia Islamia students who have been protesting at gate number 7 of the university have been shifted to gate 4 on the campus for the elections. The students have decided to continue their silent protest for the next two days from the new location. As per the decision taken on Thursday, Joint Coordination Committee (JCC) Jamia decided to shift the protest site to gate number 4 as the site was within 100m range of a polling booth.

Suyash Tripathi, member, JCC, said, "We are planning to set up a stall to provide free water to those who come to vote. We have already shifted to the footpath near gate number 4 and are avoiding using microphone and speakers." JCC said that the students would return to gate number 7 on Sunday. TNN

Two men open fire on shop in Jafrabad, spark panic

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

New Delhi: Two men opened fireoutside a shop in Jafrabad on Friday afternoon. The incident was captured in a CCTV footage, which showed two bike-bornemenfiring indiscriminately. While no one was hit by the bullets, the incident triggered panic among the residents and sent cops into a tizzy.

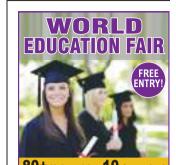

The shop, which was targeted by the gunmen, is located close to Jafrabad police station.

DCP (Northeast) Ved Prakash Surya said that around 2.15 pm, police received a call from a local resident, Shabbir, about the firing incident. The cops reached the spot and found at least four used cartridgeslying on the road. Murtaza, the shop owner, later told the cops that the men had fired two rounds at his shop, while the other two hit the road and ricocheted elsewhere. The CCTV footage showed a woman customer of the shop having a close shave. She ran to save her life. The crooks, who were wearing helmets, fled the spot immediately after creating a scare.

A monetary dispute could have triggered the firing incident, said police sources.

Murtaza is being questioned to find out whether he was threatened by someone in the past. A case under sections of attempt to murder and Arms Act has been registered and a manhunt launched to nab the criminals. Taking no chance in view of the assembly polls, the security in the area was intensified following the incident. The cops even conducted a march in the evening.

Shikara (Drama, Historical, Romantic) *** Cast: Aadil Khan, Sadia Direction: Vidhu Vinod Chopra Duration: 2 hours Language: Hindi (U/A)

Δ

Centred around the mass evacuation of Kashmiri Pandits in 1990, the story traces the life of young newlyweds Shiv Kumar Dhar (Aadil Khan) and Shanti Dhar (Sadia), who flee their homeland and take refuge at a camp in Jammu, with the promise that they will return home someday.

The setting is late 80s and the communal tension in the picturesque valley of Kashmir is increasing at an alarming rate with every passing day. Yet, literature enthusiast Shiv and his docile and demure wife Shanti are convinced that they are safe in the neighbourhood they have called home for decades now. But, as years pass by, the intensity of widespread religious violence surpasses the supposition of the couple and that of thousands of other Kashmiri Pandits, and then, they are struck with the horrific exodus of January 19, 1990. Standing at the threshold of losing everything they ever had, Shiva and Shanti are now torn between two equally tough choices save their lives and leave behind their beloved birthplace or stav back and face the aftermath of a battle against their community.

If it's not already evident, Vidhu Vinod Chopra's Shikara is an attempt to bring to light the plight of Kashmiri Pandits and their insurmountable strength and courage in the face of adversity. Staying true to the 90s era and the hostility prevalent during that period, Chopra, very systematically, rolls out his historical romantic drama through an innocent love story between two perpetual optimists. Then, he blends it with the real-life story of constant conflict between the Muslim extremists and the Kashmiri Pandits in the valley, eventually wrapping it up with the theme he had originally started out with how pure love can withstand many a battle. even of war and bloodshed. Throughout the film, the writer-director throws in various subplots — both real and reel — without derailing from the central theme even once.

actor for a boyfriend (played by Siddharth Makkar). So, what could possibly go wrong?

Turns out, everything. Vikram Bhatt's depiction of the digital world evil called 'hacking' seems like an offshoot of the central character's own misdoing first. But,

soon after, the plot directs us towards the twisted psyche of a sick computer genius — extensive stalking, blackmailing and malicious intent to tarnish the reputation of an accomplished individual. All in the name of 'love'. The narrative of this crime thriller is something that has been significantly explored in the West and even on home ground. Unfortunately, despite

Hina Khan's glammed up Sam and Rohan Shah's

venomous Vivek, Hacked fails to strike a chord

However, the narrative is a tad bit more visually exciting and cinematically engaging in the first half, as there are multiple elements to keep one guessing about what's going to unfold. While the second half is more invested in the love story — which does feel far-fetched, predictable and dated at times. Also, considering it's a historical drama, it is rather disappointing to witness that the film does not go beyond a few fleeting mentions of the ordeal of the people from the other side of the incident; a one-sided approach. Not to mention, some parts of the screenplay of Shikara seem all too convenient; almost like it was written in haste to rush back to the theme of romance. Debutants Sadia and Aadil Khan make an attractive pair to watch on screen. Sadia, with her infectious smile, is natural in portions where she is playing the younger part. Aadil's depiction of an amateur poet does not resonate half as much as his portrayal of an older man.

The music and background score (AR Rahman and Sandesh Shandilya) of Shikara is like balm for the soul, with able support from lyricist Irshad Kamil.

To sum it up, Vidhu Vinod Chopra's Shikara will cater to the cinematic sensibilities of a certain section of the audience. As a love story, it works at some level, but in the bigger picture, this old-school romance doesn't really grip you and keep you engaged for too long.

with the audience. It neither instils fear in the minds of the wrongdoers in the world of dark web, nor does it manage to highlight the predicament of a woman facing the wrath of a violent cybercriminal.

Hina Khan, as this drop-dead gorgeous editor, is personable in scenes involving slightly mature actors like Mohit Malhotra and Siddharth Makkar. But, when left alone with Rohan Shah, her act undergoes extreme changes — either she is too dramatic or plain flat. Rohan Shah tries to be this conniving sociopath, wreaking havoc on the life of his subject of obsession, but what he does end up looking is a harmless kid — even the forced wide-eyed act and trembling with anger bit doesn't work for this young actor. Mohit Malhotra, as the lovesick neighbourturned-friend Rohan Malhotra, looks pretty on screen but puts up a lacklustre show.

The music is above average, and it is safe to say that a few of the love ballads are hummable, which comes as no surprise given the fact that the Bhatt camp has always been known for its impeccable taste in music.

In a nutshell, Hacked feels like an exposé of some sorts at the beginning but gradually, one learns that it is just a half-baked attempt. Do not let this film 'hack' away your weekend!

New Delhi: On polling-day eve, there was plenty of nervous energy among the candidates from all parties. With a high-decibel — and mostly acrimonious—campaigning drawing to a close, those in the fray put their guard down in their own ways.

Some visited places of worship, others spent quality time with family; and still others rushed for last-minute checks with booth-level workers. Chief minister Arvind Kejriwal, along with his family, visited Hanuman Temple in CP. He said God had told him that he was doing good work for the city and that he should leave the rest to the almighty. In a tweet, Kejriwal stated: "CP ke prachin hanuman mandir jaakar hanuman ji ka ashirwad liya. Desh aur dilli ki tarakki ke liye prarthana ki. Bhgwan ji ne kaha: 'Acha kaam kar rahe ho. Isi tarah logo ki sewa karte raho. Fal mujh par chhod do. Sab acha hoga'

Delhi BJP chief Manoj Tiwari, though not in poll fray, has been in the mix from the word go. On Friday too, Tiwari could be seen temple hopping. He began the day by offering prayers at Kalkaji temple; in the evening, he visited Katyayani temple in Chhatarpur. In between, he had tea with party workers and played cricket.

Amanatullah Khan AAP's candidate from Okhla one of the seats expected to be hotly contested spent most of the day closeted with party workers. "People's blessings are with us," Khan said. Leader of opposition Vijender Gupta was busy strategising with his team. "Campaigning is over and, now, we have to execute the final part. Today, I am spending most of my time with booth workers. I will visit a temple later, even bhagwan ji says karma karo, mandir to mere paas kabhi bhi aa jana. I will relax only after polling is over," Gupta said.

A bench of Justices R Banumathi, Ashok Bhushan and AS Bopanna, however, turned down solicitor general Tushar Mehta's plea that the court should issue notice to the convicts so that they could also be heard on delaying tactics adopted by them frustrating execution of sentence.

Criminally sinful to hang convicts at this point: Court

Aamir.Khan2@timesgroup.com

New Delhi: It is criminally sinful to execute the condemned convicts when the law permits them to live, a Delhi court said on Friday while dismissing a plea of the Tihar Jail authorities for a new date and time of hanging for the four death-row convicts in the Nirbhaya gang rape and murder case.

In the light of Delhi high court's direction granting the convicts a week's time to exhaust their remaining legal remedies, the court called Tihar's plea "premature". "Admittedly, Delhi high court, by an order on February 5, 2020, permitted the convicts in the interest of justice to exercise their legal remedies within a week of the order," said additional sessions judge Dharmender Rana.

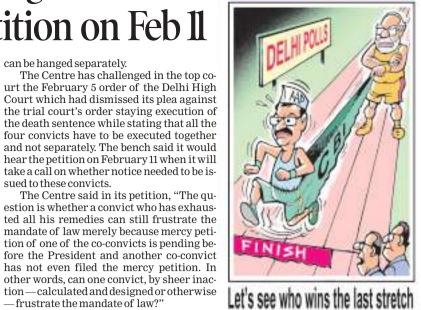

Finding substance in the submissions of amicus curiae Vrinda Grover and Soutik Banerjee appearing for convict Mukesh Singh, the court noted that the date for execution couldn't be fixed merely on the basis of surmises and conjectures. The application "is premature and, therefore, deserves to be dismissed. However, the state is at liberty to move an appropriate application as and when required", it held.

Grover argued the high court had allowed not one but all four convicts to resort to their available legal remedies. Special prosecutor Irfan Ahmed, appearing for the jail authorities, earlier claimed there was no legal impediment to a new date.

Appearing for the victim's family, advocates Jitender Kumar Jha and Seema Kushwaha supported the prosecutor's submissions and said not fixing a date would unjustifiably delay the hanging.

Appearing for the other convicts, Pawan Gupta, Akshay Thakur and Vinay Sharma, advocate AP Singh stressed they deserved protection under Article 21 of the Constitution till their last breath. The Supreme Court has neither stayed nor passed any direction over the trial court's order postponing the hanging, he added.

While dismissing the Centre's plea challenging the order, the high court had said all of them would have to be executed together.

Why onions are making you cry despite enough supply

Retailers Keeping 100% Margin Against Wholesale Prices

THE HIGHS AND LOWS.

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

New Delhi/Nashik: Are onions still wreaking havoc on your monthly budget? For once, supply issues are not to blame, with around 50 trucks of onions coming in from Gujarat and Maharashtra at Azadpur Mandi every day, each bringing in around 20 tonnes of the essential commodity.

The reason why they continue to cost you a bomb then is the high retail and wholesale price differential in Delhi. While the wholesale price currently ranges between Rs 15/kg and Rs 25/kg, retailers are selling onions for anywhere between Rs 40/kg and Rs 60/kg. Usually, sellers keep a margin of Rs15/kg to account for transportation, storage and other costs. A 100% margin, which even some traders find hard to explain, is biting consumers hard.

This has led to a drop in the average wholesale price. "Production is good in Gujarat, Madhya Pradesh and Tamil Nadu too. This has led to a drop in demand for Maharashtra's onions. As a result, the average wholesale onion price has dropped," Suvarna Jagtap, chairperson of Lasalgaon APMC, said. She said continuous fluctuations in the wholesale price were also responsible for the selling price not stabilising. The Centre had yet to lift the stock limit on wholesale and onion traders, which had been cut from 50 tonnes to 25 tonnes for wholesalers and from 10 tonnes to 5 tonnes for retailers, Jagtap said.

"The government needs to lift the restrictions on onion traders — both wholesalers and retailers," she added

HC rejects plea challenging DCW appointments

New Delhi: Delhi high court on Friday rejected a plea challenging the appointments to Delhi Commission for Women (DCW), including those of its chairperson and members.

A bench of Chief Justice D N Patel and Justice CHari Shankar made it clear they were not inclined to grant any relief to the PIL petitioner, an advocate himself, after which he withdrew the plea.

Terming the appointments to DCW "illegal" the petition had sought the court's intervention, arguing that the public has been kept in the dark about the manner in which candidates were selected and appointed to the statutory body. In the plea, the petitioner claimed he got first-hand experience of workings of DCW when he filed a case and attended a few hearings. "It was found the chairperson and members lacked knowledge of provisions of the Civil Procedure Code and adequate training to hold hearings in matters of public grievances relating to Alleging that the chairperson and the institution itself often indulged in "dharnas' and protests, the advocate's plea said an RTI is still pending with both DCW and the women and child development department where he has sought to know the number of leaves taken by the office holders and rules governing participation in protests.

Standing counsel of Delhi government Ramesh Singh opposed the plea, arguing that under DCW Act itself, the qualification of chairperson is different from that of the members and both can't be mixed up.

The men, who travelled from Kabul in an Air Ariana flight, were taken for a medical examination during which doctors found the capsules in their stomach. "They said a man based in Kandahar had hired them. packed the heroin and made them ingest the capsules. He asked them to deliver the drugs to a contact in south Delhi," said Malhotra. Based on the inputs, a team started tracking the Nigerian supplier, identified as Nicholas NZube Ukaegbu (23), and caught him along with Rajender Kumar and Sukhwin der Singh, who had come to receive a supply from him. Kumar and Singh told police that they had known Ukaegbu for some time and were to fi nalise a deal for a consignment of 270gm heroin, which was to be sold at parties. Ukaegbu was to hand over the drugs at a pre-decided place in Dwarka's Sector 19 and Kumar and Singh came in a car to receive it. Ukaegbu is overstaying in India without valid documents, a source said.

'Do Not Name New Shrine After Babar' Arshad Afzaal Khan TNN

Ayodhya: More than 24km from ground zero of the Ayodhya movement, where the Babri mosque once stood, Dhannipur village is a just speck of green on the map of the erstwhile Faizabad district.

Suddenly, this obscure sleepy hamlet that's also home to a famous Sufi shrine is basking in its new-found glory after UP government allotted the court-mandated five-acre alternative plot for building a mosque here. And while the Sunni Waqf Board may be still iffy about accepting land, Dhannipur is already celebrating.

And majority Muslims of the village are unanimous about one thing — the mosque should not be named after Babar. "Mughal emperor Babar was not a representative of Indian Muslims. Sufis like Hazrat Nizamuddin, Khwaja Moinuddin Chisti and ulemas who sacrificed their lives for independence represent the Indian Muslim ethos. We want the mosque to called 'Aman Masjid' or mosque of peace," said Mohammad Faheem Khan, throng to the shrine in the whose views were echoed last week of April. Most deacross Dhannipur village.

Dhannipur is home to the 18th-century Sufi shrine of Shahgada Baba, believed to be a disciple of Sufi saint Syed Makhdum Ashraf Jahangir

MP's Cong govt gives breather to Anil Ambani firm, criticised

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Bhopal: A decision by Kamal Nath government in MP to give four more years to Anil Ambani's Sasan Power Project to repay dues of Rs 450 crore in instalments has triggered a political row, with BJP accusing it of using public money for the "convenience of industrialists", and Congress pointing out that the breather is part of industrial policy framed by the erstwhile BJP government. PCC media department chief Shobha Oza said, "These dues had accumulated during BJP government's tenure. The Congress government is only trying to recover the money owed by Reliance Power Limited." "Knowing the circumstances of the economy and the firm concerned, the Nath government's aim is to recover dues, which is why four years' time has been given," Oza argued. Leader of opposition Gopal Bhargava said, "The Congress government has decided to exempt recovery of Rs 450cr dues from Ambani in four years. This proves that it's a government of industrialists and capitalists. The CM himself is an industrialist. He is worried more about increasing capital of industrialists"

Kerala sends BJP message with 'Death of Gandhi'

he Kerala government on Friday triggered a row by using artist Tom Vattakuzhy's painting 'Death of Gandhi' for the cover of the state budget. Finance minister TM Thomas Isaac attacked BJP over the Citizenship (Amendment) Act and NRC and said, "The message is, yes, we remember that Mahatma was murdered. Murdered by Hindu communalists who are today revered by the ruling party and the central government. We just want to say that we will remember it, people will not forget it."

"These are very different times that we live in. For the Centre, NRC is the greatest and the most urgent reform that needs to be implemented. It is a divisive attempt to mobilise population on communal lines. This has to be countered at every level,' Isaac said. Leader of the opposition Ramesh Chennithala (Congress) felt the picture could have been avoided. "I don't think this is an appropriate gesture for the budget," he said. Meanwhile, chief minister Pinarayi Vijayan asked Prime Minister Narendra Modi to rectify his statement that "maligns" the anti-CAA protests in Kerala.

"It is unbefitting for a PM to be a part of those who are disappointed with the fact that Kerala is leading the struggle against the communalism of both RSS and SDPI", he said reacting to Modi's Rajya Sabha speech on Thursday in which he quoted Vijayan as criticising SDPI for infiltrating anti-CAA protests and engaging in violence. In New Delhi, BJP de fended Modi. "The Prime Minister just stated what Vijayan had said earlier this week in the state assembly where he referred to SDPIa close ally of the Congressled UDF in Kerala — as an extremist group plotting to stoke violence in anti-CAA protests in Kerala," said BJP spokesperson GVL Narsimha Rao.

SC overcrowded, CJI bats for new building

Since '58, No. Of Lawyers Up 50 Times, Judges 5 Times

Dhananjay.Mahapatra @timesgroup.com

New Delhi: The Supreme Court complex, built on 17 acres in 1958 to serve as India's top court, is bursting at its seams with a huge spurt in litigation, 50 times increase in the number of lawyers and a five-fold rise in the number of judges.

Attorney general K K Venugopal, 89, who shifted his practice from Madras high court to a sparsely crowded SC 40 years ago, has been complaining about his daily jostle through crowds of lawyers and litigants in the corridors and the courtrooms to reach the front rows to address judges. "I fear getting run over by the crowd," he often said.

An unusually crowded Chief Justice of India's courtroom got his goat on Friday. "It is a shame. I have to push my way through the crowd daily to address the court," the AG told a bench of CJISA Bobde and Justices BR Gavai and Surya Kant during hearing on a plea for live streaming of court proceedings.

When the Supreme Court started functioning from its present building, inaugurated on August 4, 1958, there were seven courtrooms, which have now gone up to 16. Lawyers have increased from a few hundred to nearly 3,000. More and more litigants throng the court daily. strength has in-Judges' creased from seven to 34. Number of cases till 1960 were in the hundreds. Now, over 50,000 cases are pending and 16 benches hear around 1,000 cases each Monday and Friday, the two days when it becomes more crowded than a weekly market. When the CJI acknowledged the problem, senior advocate Indira Jaising suggested, "If a new Parliament can be built, why not a new Supreme Court building?" The CJI was quick to accept the suggestion and said, "Tell that to the AG. They have to give land and money. Turning to the AG, the CJI said, "We have no problem if a new SC building is constructed." Married to tra-

"Can the facade of the building be The Supreme changed? Court judgment on live streaming can be implemented to ease pressure on courtrooms," he said.

The CJI said the courtrooms need to be bigger to accommodate the growing crowd of lawyers and litigants. "We have to have anoth er building," he said. However, no one appeared to agree on relocating some courtrooms to the new, state-ofthe-art annexe complex of the Supreme Court across the road. The CJI further said that the Supreme Court was consulting a architecture firm which specialised in crowd circulation in public buildings

Apex court stays Bombay HC order to sell HDIL assets

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

New Delhi: The Supreme Court on Friday stayed a Bombay high court order directing setting up of a three-member panel to supervise sale of assets of HDIL promoters Rakesh Wadhawan and his son Sarang to recover money due to investors in the PMC Bank scam.

Senior advocate Rakesh Dwivedi, appearing for the RBI, argued against the high court order directing the RBI to hand over documents relat ing to HDIL assets. A bench headed by CJI S A Bobde ordered complete stay on the high court's January 15 decision. It had on January 16 stayed the HC's order for conditional release of the fatherson duo to help facilitate sale of their assets to recover investors' money. The Wadhawans are accused of fraudulently getting Rs 4,355 crore loan from PMC Bank.

The PMC Bank scam came to light in September last year after RBI found that the bank had allegedly created fictitious accounts to hide over Rs 4,355 crore of loans extended to almost-bankrupt HDIL. According to RBI, PMC Bank had masked 44 problematic loan accounts, including those of HDIL, by tampering with its core banking system.

SC: Prepare a list of Sabarimala jewellery

New Delhi: In order to protect the orna ments of Sabarimala temple, which is in possession of Pandalam royal family, the Su preme Court on Friday appointed a onemember committee headed by former Kera la HC judge CN Ramachandaran Nair to prepare an inventory and description of the treasure of Lord Ayyappa temple.

A bench of Justices N V Ramana, Ajay Rastogi and V Ramasubramanian said the court is worried about the safety and security of the sacred ornaments and there is need to prepare inventory for them. The court asked the former judge to take the assistance of a jeweller for valuation of the sacred ornaments and file report in sealed cover.

The court also granted four weeks' time to Kerala government to bring legislation regarding administration of the historic Saba rimala temple. It also asked how the royal family can claim ownership of the orna ments and said it will decide the issue after taking note of internal bickering within the royal family. TNN

E-Tender Notice No. 81 of 2019-20 (Open)- Engg/DDU On line ( through e-tendering) for the

This common enemy has united India and Pakistan

Even during the worst hostilities, both countries worked together to tackle an enemy that has resurfaced again — locusts

Vikram Doctor

This morning the trees are almost denuded and the locusts, hanging on the twigs and branches, appear to have changed the colour of the foliage, for the tops of the trees seem covered with a yellow blight, which on close inspection turns out to be locusts...' That description, from a Times of India report from 1902, describing the devastation of mango orchards in Trombay, near Bombay, is a reminder of how terrifyingly transformative a locust attack can be. It is now being experienced in districts of Punjab in both Pakistan and India, an ancient plague that seems, mystifyingly, to have come to life again.

Locust swarms were once so common that TOI carried very detailed reports about them. In 1879, a correspondent noted the cruel way in which they fol lowed other disasters: "In the famine districts these winged armies made a clean sweep of all the vegetation for miles around, while the moral effect of their presence upon a famine-struck population was so great that the population completely lost heart and ceased to try and battle...

So sudden and punishing are the attacks that is not surprising that they have commonly been given a divine interpretation, like the swarms that formed one of the plagues of Egypt in the Bible.

STEEDS OF SHIVA

In 1929, TOI noted that in some districts locusts were called the horses of Ma hadev (Shiva) and "were actually caught alive, treated with utmost respect, offered the best of food, worshipped with due reverence." The belief was that "if the wrath of the god has been appeased and his depredatory appetite satisfied, then the avenging army received marching orders..

The British might have sneered at these beliefs, but their more vigorous responses to locusts didn't seem to do much good either. In 1899, TOI reported the police superintendent of Panch Mahals, Mr R P Lambert, firing blank guns to scare away swarms.

A suggestion from 1929 to use aircraft to control locusts was abandoned because it seemed more likely to kill the pilots as their engines clogged with the insects. One correspondent admitted that the main satisfaction of another solution. tar-coated screens, was watching the insects struggle and die, but it made little difference to the huge numbers

LOCUST ROAST WITH GHEE

Perhaps the only solution was the natural one noted by the writer in 1879; feast on them like the birds and animals do. It was suggested that even humans could do the same: "Pull off the legs and wings and roast with a little ghee in an iron dish, adding curry powder, pepper and salt to taste... locusts are said to be in flavour not unlike shrimp," Eating locusts is, in fact, a common survival strategy in places ravaged by them, simply because there is little else left. The Hebrew scriptures specify that, unlike other insects, the locust is kosher to eat. Entomologists had always been mystified by the way locusts suddenly seemed to swarm out of nowhere, and it was Russian entomologist Sir Boris Uvarov who made an important connection in 1921. Locusts and grasshoppers were the same species, but under stressed conditions of drought and diminishing food, grasshoppers laid eggs that became locusts. These locusts could swarm and fly far off in search of food and, when this was found in abundance again, future generations could revert to being solitary grasshoppers. This insight transformed locust control because now field workers could look for conditions in which grasshoppers were getting stressed and trans forming into locusts — and if these were controlled, the larger swarms might never form.

Insights like these led the British to set up a Locust Warning Organisation (LWO) in 1939, to focus on the most vulnerable areas for locusts like the semi-

tralia that their locusts are becoming increasingly adapted to the hotter and drier conditions created by climate change, it seems that the Indian description of them as the deadly horses of

4 astronaut picks leave for Russia for training

our astronaut picks from the Indian Air Force (IAF). who had undergone a rigorous selection procedure conducted by Indian Space Research Organisation (ISRO), left for Russia on Friday to sustain the training ahead of the country's maiden manned space flight mission. ISRO chairman K Sivan. who was awarded the prestigious Viinan Ratna Award in the city on Friday. revealed this during his speech. Sivan said, "ISRO is making efforts to launch the maiden human space flight venture 'Gaganyaan' by the end of this year. The four astronauts have been selected from a pool of IAF pilots and have been sent for training." He said that ISRO had aimed for a short-term plan for two manned missions, one in December and another in June 2021. TNN

Jammu: Expressing deep anguish and concern over slapping of Public Safety Act (PSA) on erstwhile J&K state former CM Omar Abdullah National Conference on Friday described it as PSA on the entire mainstream political ideology of J&K.

The J&K Union territory administration had on Thurs day slapped PSA on Omar Ab dullah and ex-CM Mehbooba Mufti of People's Democratic Party (PDP). The stringent Act had already been invoked against Omar's father Farooq  $Abdullah {-\!\!\!-} a five-time ex-CM$ and former Union ministernearly six months ago.

&K police on Friday said they have busted a Jaish-e-Muhammed module and arrested three people, including the nephew of a former PDP MLA, reports Saleem Pandit. Those arrested were allegedly involved in a recent grenade attack in Srinagar in which seven civilians and two CRPF men were injured. SSP (Srinagar) Haseeb Mughal said police busted the module that was involved in the February 2 attack in just five days. "We arrested one Shakeel Ahmed Bandh, who is the nephew of former PDP legislator Muhammad Khalil Bandh," he added. He said the trio had been watching provocative speeches of Jaish chief Azhar Masood on their mobile phones by using a virtual private network (VPN).

In a rare move, a word from PM's speech in RS is expunded

New Delhi: In a rare move, a word from PM Modi's speech in Rajya Sabha was expunged from the records. Rajya Sabha Chairman M Venkaiah Naidu expunged the word used by Modi on Thursday during his reply to the discussion on a motion thanking the President for his address to the joint sitting of both Houses of Parliament at the start of the Budget session. Chairman "The was pleased to direct expunction of a certain portion of the proceedings of Rajya Sabha dated February 6 at about 6.20 and 6.30pm," Rajya Sabha secretariat said. Modi had made the remark while launching a defence of the National Population Register saying it was being updated with demographic information for better targeting of government's welfare schemes. Naidu also expunged a word from leader of the opposition and Congress member Ghulam Nabi Azad's statement made after Modi's speech. Azad had stated that the Congress was in favour of giving citizenship to persecuted migrants from Pakistan but was against framing of a law based on religion.

New Delhi: Lok Sabha Speak er Om Birla on Friday chided Union minister Babul Suprivo for making certain objectionable remarks against Congress member Adhir Ranjan Chowdhury, saying it's wrong and no right has been given to the minister to speak like that with any member in the House.

Supriyo, minister of state for environment, made the remark while replying to a supplementary related to air pollution during Question Hour.

The Speaker, however, immediately expunged the remarks from records. Birla also told parliamentary affairs minister Pralhad Joshi to make Supriyo understand parliamentary proceedings. Congress members protested over the minister's remarks. Amid the protests, the minister said he was withdrawing the remarks.

Dehradun: A year after the constructed in 1923 - on Ganga at Rishikesh was closed after declared "unfit", the state authorities have now approved a site near the old bridge to build a new suspension bridge. The new bridge's design, officials said, would comprise a glass floor on both sides and an asphalt road in the middle. Public works department (PWD) officials said the floor made of toughened transparent glass would give pedestrians a sense of walking on the river.

According to the design

Only light motor vehicles would be allowed to ply on the new bridge, said a PWD official prepared by the PWD and finalised by the state government, the total width of the new bridge is 8 metres and the length is 132 metres. The glass floor would be of 1.5 metres in width on both sides while the road would be 2.5-metre wide. The toughened glass to be used as floor would be 3.5 inches thick.

The design for the bridge will now be sent to IIT-Mumbai for approval. PWD additional chief secretary Om Prakash said: "Efforts will be made to complete it before Kumbh 2021 but it is too early to predict a deadline."

He said no chances will be taken in the construction process as the aim is to come up with a bridge, which would last for the next 150 years. "Each pillar of this bridge would be 30-metre deep,' said Om Prakash. He added that only light motor vehicles such as cars would be allowed to ply on the new bridge.

AWAKEN YOUR SACRED FEMININE

he feminine aspect is deeply connected to life. Planet Earth is hospitable to life, and anything that is alive needs to be nurtured and cared for in order to survive and thrive. We call our planetary home 'Mother Earth' because nurture, care, empathy, love and compassion are inherent qualities of the feminine — and this feminine aspect is present in all genders, including male and female. What can be more sacred than that which has the power to make life possible? And what can be more gratifying than something that can promote peace, contentment and cooperation?

When we speak of the 'Sacred Feminine', we are speaking of the immense creative power and potential that is superactive in some of us, moderately active in others and perhaps dormant in most which is why we need to, collectively and individually, reclaim the feminine aspect in all of us, regardless of our gender.

To acknowledge and reawaken the Sacred Feminine is to reconnect to life and living, and this is with reference to not just human beings but all species, the planet and everything on it. By rousing the Feminine Principle to action, we could revive our relationship with the environment and bond with it lovingly, so that any abuse perpetrated on it can be arrested and we can start a new chapter of reparation and care.

The Sacred Feminine is not circumscribed by gender. It is the unfettered, creative potential inherently present in every one of us. Expressing it could make the difference between life and death. For, desecration of the Feminine Principle would be tantamount to destroying the creator and the created. But once this underpinning principle is acknowledged and respected in all, and its potential is brought to the fore in our daily actions, as it has been in the lives of the numerous ecological and creative individuals portrayed here, then we will all do Mother Earth proud. Reclaiming our Sacred Feminine will ensure that the Earth and its beings not only survive but thrive.

'Women and nature share a powerful moral connection'

Environment and ethics scholar Chris Cuomo is professor of philosophy and women's studies at the University of Georgia. Speaking to Srijana Mitra Das at Times Evoke, Cuomo discussed the moral link between women and nature, whether women envision 'wealth' differently from men — and ecofeminism today:

You write that women and nature are linked in 'morally significant ways'. What does that mean?

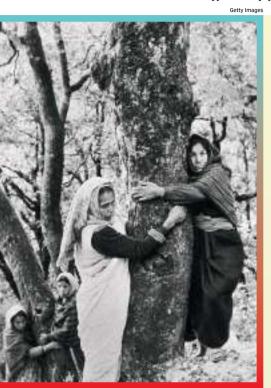

It means the oppressed are in solidarity with each other. It's often a cultural myth that women are somehow closer to nature than men. However, being relegated to the realm of nature and caretaking work does give them an understanding of the ways in which we are all connected to nature. Women understand our material dependence on nature and the power of nature. The work women are made to do creates sensitivities and empathy. As a result, there is a moral knowledge present for women, not because of being in a female body, but because of what female bodies are made to do.

Would women have treated the planet differently from men?

■ Well, the environmental problems we face now were manufactured pretty much in the last 200 years of colonialism and extractive capitalism. But even if we look at just these last 200 years, women's energies have gone towards improving schooling, creating movements for equality, creating the entire fields of public health, social work and so on.

So, while this industrial machine has been literally gaining steam over the last 200 years, women have put their energy into institutions that build social health, well-being and connections between people. That says to me that if women had wielded more power, they would have created different sorts of institutions and different sorts of wealth.

material factors like education

That sense of connection to nature must ground any ethic, because an ethic is not about one decision or one policy. An ethic is about the very forms of life that we cultivate and nurture. Without that connection, where is the energy, the caring, the inspiration? We simply have to foster that appreciation.

Or our own bodies.

'Patriarchy devalues women, nature and animals. Humanity must rise above gender divisions'

Lori Gruen teaches feminist and gender studies and animal ethics at Wesleyan University. Having worked on books like 'Ecofeminism: Feminist Intersections with Other Animals and the Earth' and 'Ethics and Animals', Gruen spoke to Times Evoke about what connects women and nature, why masculine culture suppresses kindness and how we can improve our own empathy:

You teach feminist philosophy and animal rights. What links these two spheres?

This is a great question. One of the central ideas in feminist philosophy is that the structures that undergird violence and oppression have been overlooked. We divide the world into 'us' vs 'them' categories and create institutions that reinforce this division. The binary division between men and women is one of these structures. Another is anthropocentrism - or human-suprem-

BEYOND MUM AND DAD: PARENTING IN NATURE

 Similarly, the male greater rhea, towering birds in South America, perform much of the care of chicks normally associated parent' or collectively care for the young In Africa, male chimpanzees adopt orphan chimps. Female elephants care for the young, find food and protect their group. They perform all the roles that human societies divide between 'men' and 'women'.

Gender divisions in human societies limit us all. Those in the 'man' category are taught to truncate their feelings. Those in the 'woman' category are taught to serve men. Those who don't conform pay a cost.

Can empathy be made more central, perhaps by changes in school education onwards?

■ I really hope so. In humans, we have a huge untapped capacity to do much better. Rather than being trained to turn off our concerns for others, early education can help to refine our empathy. If we can develop our sensibilities, where we can reflect with care on our initial emotional responses, we will all be better off.

Just not in exploitative, extractive ways. Economics has gotten away for centuries now by considering harm to people and moral concerns as 'externalities'! But now, the 'externalities' are saying, no, we are not externalities.

I think we need feminist economics today. And done by people of all genders.

Are there important ecofeminist movements making an impact now?

Yes. I'd name the work happening in the global climate justice movement. This includes all the work in the UN, at the grassroots, in affected communities, in science, right to the negotiating table. There are so many significant players here who will not let ecofeminist energy disappear from the room. This is extremely important because when women are not named, it is very easy for them to fade into the background.

Women are the worst affected by environmental degradation. When we deal with the challenges of water, pollution and waste, the issues of women must be taken into account - for me, that is ecofeminism

acy. Those who count as humans matter more than those who don't count as humans. We should challenge the division that allows such disrespect — we should rethink the value of the category 'human'.

Human supremacy is a philosophical base that increases violence on the planet.

How has patriarchy shaped our approach? Patriarchy — or human male dominance - reinforces such assumptions. One group is valued more than the other and it's thought the less valuable should be of service to the more valuable. So, women are to care for men, animals are to be used by humans, etc. Valuing women and valuing animals destabilises male supremacy. #### Has patriarchy suppressed empathy in men?

Well, empathy isn't gendered. We see kindness in non-human animals of all genders. The recent news from Australia about some animals helping other species survive the horrible bush fires is just one example.

HOW WOMEN CAN MANAGE CLIMATE CHANGE

Can you describe your work on the chimpanzees used in biomedical research in the US?

I've developed two websites. One introduces the first 100 chimpanzees used in research in a lab in the 1920s. Through archival research, I could identify them on http://first100chimps.wesleyan.edu/

I've also developed a website that tracks the last 1.000 chimpanzees to sanctuary. In 2015, the US, the last major country in the world to use chimpanzees in research, began to end that. There were about 1,000 chimpanzees in labs. I found the names of almost all those chimpanzees, that I turn green on https://last1000chimps.com/ when they move to sanctuaries where they will spend the rest of their lives being cared for.

An indigenous Mollo tribal in the island of Timor, Aleta was raised to respect nature as a sacred, life-giving shrine. In the 1980s, the local government gave mining companies permits to cut marble from the mountains in the Mollo areas. Aleta organised villagers - she started with just three - to oppose this ecological destruction. She eventually united hundreds to peacefully occupy mining sites. Despite facing attempts on her life, Aleta persevered, her 'weaving occupation', involving hundreds of women sitting on the marble rocks, weaving their traditional cloth, growing. By 2010, mining at these sites was stopped.

The 100-year-plus environmentalist Thimmakka was born to a deprived family in Gubbi taluk, Tumkur district, Karnataka. Married early, she worked as a coolie and then began planting banyan trees with her husband, both turning their sadness at not having children into care for nature instead. Thimmakka grew, nurtured and guarded over 8,000 trees. Thimmakka, now called 'Saalumarada' or 'rows of trees', was awarded the Padma Shri in 2019.

Jane Goodall is an iconic anthropologist who has studied chimpanzees and ecology for over six decades. Starting in the 1960s, inspired by the paleoanthropologist Louis Leakey, Jane began observing primates in the wild at the remote Gombe Stream near Lake Tanganyika. Her lack of formal anthropological training caused some academics to scoff at her astounding discoveries - including that chimpanzees make and use tools - but Jane persevered. In 1977, she founded the Jane Goodall Institute which works strenuously to protect threatened chimpanzee habitats. In 1995, she was made a Commander of the British Empire (CBE). She remains a profound voice speaking on the care of our planet today.

Mahesh Rangarajan, professor of history and environmental studies at Ashoka University, is an eminent scholar. Speaking to Times Evoke, Rangarajan discussed the crucial links between women, ecology and dignity:

What are the main factors driving the continuous environmental degradation we are seeing?

There are two large factors, both emerging in the post-WWII world - the transformation of the nature of the economy due to huge technological changes, and the enormous growth in human numbers. Neither has been an even process.

Currently, just within this last half-century, if you look at Japan. Western Europe, North America and South Korea, there's been significant regeneration. The air is cleaner, the water is better, many species have returned. large areas of forests have been regrown.

But this isn't the picture in the developing world. One reason is that several countries are still playing catch-up. And latecomers to industrialisation will always have a large constituency saying, growth first, environment later.

However, the costs of not acting on the environment are very hard on the poor and on a large section of the middle class. Every contaminated environment - air. water, soil or vegetables with high levels of cadmium or lead on them — will affect us all. Any serious attempt to address growth cannot proceed now without addressing the environment. We face pressing challenges today. How do you combine an economy of permanence with the ecology of life? How do you think of equality for future generations, for those beyond the human species or for those less privileged than you? These questions have been raised by philosophers. But what happens when you apply these to life?

Take highways constructed across India. Many need to negotiate centuries-old banyan trees rulers once planted on these routes. Now, how do you have a modern philosophy that includes the space and life cycle of a banyan tree? We need newer ways to recog nise, repair and rejuvenate life. What is the significance of ecofemi-

Therefore, they literally had to walk miles each day It took organised protests by women before many states rethought. Since none of these hospitals, which treat lakhs of patients free each year, can cut corners on fixed costs like salaries of employees, public health activists fear that they will have to either cut down services or start charging patients, either way impacting the poorest patients. Most of these centrally funded hospitals have shown more than 100% utilization of funds originally allocated for the current year, as is evident from a comparison of the budget estimates for 2019-20 and the revised estimates, a reassessment of what will actually be spent by the end of the year. Yet, most of them have faced budget cuts when this year's allocation is compared to the revised estimates.

Saran Chil-Kalawati dren's hospital in Delhi is the only case where the increase of almost 6% just about covers inflation if we assume that to be of about 5%. For all other hospitals, there's either a decrease or an increase of under 0.5%, which clearly doesn't cover inflation, meaning in real terms their budgets have been cut. Public health experts ex-

Top hospitals' budgets cut, Why India needs to define brain death

Kerala has allowed doctors to withdraw life support from brain dead patients without the family's approval. Now Maharashtra is mulling it. But guestions linger about both ethics and practice hen the family of 26-year old Privanka Patra — admitted to a hospital in Odisha after an accident on January 26 — was told she was brain dead, they faced a dilemma. "The term brain death meant nothing to us. But we were told the condition was irreversible. In the end, we decided to donate her organs," said Sachin Raju, Patra's brother-in-law. The patient was certified brain dead and her kidneys were donated.

But if Patra's family had denied permission to donate her organs, would doctors have discontinued life support? In Kerala, they could have. In the rest of India, though, things are complicated for medical practitioners.

How India defines brain death

In India, brain death has been defined only in connection with organ donation under the Transplantation of Human Organs (THO) Act, 1994, which has led to the certification being viewed mostly as a procedure only to aid organ donation. But what if a family says it doesn't want to donate organs? There is little clarity on what happens then. In most cases doctors refuse to switch off the ventilator and support systems fearing legal implications.

But the medical fraternity does agree that once a diagnosis of brain death has been made, treatment should not continue as it would be a "futile intervention". The family may hold false hopes for the patient's recovery while ICU facilities, limited in India, would continue to be engaged. New guidelines Kerala issued last month aim to address this by shifting the onus of decision-making from families to doctors who can discontinue life support without family approval. It has also laid out a 10-step procedure for certification.

dead, it means they are dead. But it is challenging for doctors and the patient's family to decide whether to continue life support," Dr Banambar Ray, senior critical care specialist at a hospital in Odisha, told TOI.

How brain death is diagnosed

In most states, only when a family ing, heartbeat and blood pressure).

To certify brain-stem death, a patient should be deeply comatose, on ventilator because of lack of spontaneous respiration and all brain-stem reflexes should be absent. All prescribed tests have to be repeated, after an interval of six hours. "The assessment is undertaken only after social workers in the hospital report willingness of a patient's family to donate organs. If the family backs out after the committee's assessment, a patient's treatment continues," said S N Shankhwar, chief medical superintendent, King George's criteria are met. all treatments must be discontinued. Family nod is not required

> Brain death is recognised as legal and medical death in many countries, but it can be hard for families to switch off support as the patient may still show signs of life. Kerala shifts burden of this decisionmaking from families to docs

> In India, brain death is defined only in connection with organ donation. This has caused brain death certification to be seen as a procedure only to aid organ donation

Medical University in Lucknow. Dr Rajesh Shetty, chief of clinical services at a hospital in Kar-nataka, added, "The gap between brain death and cardiac death may be days. This is a burden for the patient's family that faces an ethical dilemma — whether or not to discontinue life support. As per law, even in hospitals licenced for organ transplant, brain death is not sufficient to withdraw treatment if the family does not opt for organ donation." There are no guidelines on what standard of care should be followed when the family does not want to donate organs. But in Kerala, the process of brain death declaration has been delinked from organ donation. This came after the state constituted an expert committee to develop parameters for brain death certification "to remove the ambiguities in the minds of health care providers as well as the public.

Writing in a September 2018 edition of the peer-reviewed Indian Journal of Medical Ethics, authors Sunil Shroff and Sumana Navin had argued, "Delinking brain death from organ donation is essential and this requires inclusion of 'brain death' in the definition of death in the Registration of Births and Deaths Act, (RBDA) 1969, so that a uniform policy can be framed."

Dead or alive?

The RBDA defines death as "the permanent disappearance of all evidence of life at any time after livebirth has taken place" while the THO Act defines death as a "permanent disappearance of all evidence of life, by reason of brain-stem death or in a cardio-pulmonary sense at any time after live birth has taken place'

Since a brain dead person can still exhibit signs of life — such as breathing with ventilator support - it can be argued they are still alive as RBDA Act does not mention brain-stem death. Medical practitioners have long asked for inclusion of "brain death" on the death certificate but there is no provision for it and death in such cases is mentioned as cardiopulmonary death.

In Maharashtra, doctors are seek ing Kerala-like clarity. Dr Astrid Lobo Gajiwala, director of the Western Region cum Maharashtra State Organ and Tissue Transplant Organisation, has sought that critical care experts review the Kerala order. The committee's recommendations will be forwarded to the Maharashtra directorate of health services. "A directive would be useful as doctors are not sure how to interpret the law, since brain-stem death is defined only in a law that links it with organ donation," said Gajiwala.

Doctors' dilemma

With absence of well-defined protocol for brain death cases, doctors often find themselves on tricky terrain.

Dr Rajendra Kumar S, an intensivist in Karnataka, said that lack of guidelines makes it difficult for doctors to withdraw life support. "Family can sue the doctor saying that if treatment were continued, the patient may have survived." Dr Sadiq Sikora, director of gastrointestinal surgery in a Karnataka hospital, added, "By keeping a brain-dead person on ventilator, we burden the family with the decision making. What also has to be seen is our country's resource crunch with very few ventilator beds available in ICUs.

In Tamil Nadu, doctors said there was enough clarity that brain death meant death. Sunil Shroff on the advisory committee of the state transplant authority, Transtan, said, "After brain death ...ventilators can be turned off."

But not all agree that removing family from the equation is right. Dr Saroj Patnaik from the Odisha hospital that declared Patra brain dead, said doctors withdrawing life support without kin's nod would be akin to them playing God. "Instead, we should have a robust counselling system in hospitals for families of brain dead patients to help them make a decision.

When your musical dafli raises suspicion

n a bizarre case, an Uber driver in Mumbai took his passenger to the police because he believed him to be anti-national. The _passenger in question was 23-year-old Jaipur-based poet Bappaditya Sarkar, who was in the city for a poetry reading session at the Kala Ghoda Festival. Though the police let Sarkar off after routine questioning, they advised him to avoid carrying around his musical dafli and wearing a red scarf as times weren't good.

The incident clearly shows the high level of suspicion that is plaguing society. According to political philosopher Francis Fukuyama, poor societies are those where a high level of distrust prevails. Unfortunately, our politicians these days are not doing a great job of promoting trust as a social virtue. At a time when political rhetoric has become highly polarised, hate and anxiety are filtering down to people. In the Delhi election campaign, even chief minister Arvind Kejriwal was branded as a terrorist by political opponents, including a Union minister. Politicians may see such rhetoric as par for the course. But their words continue to have huge impact on ordinary people.

Take the example of "love jihad" rhetoric. Once upon a time even the NIA was deputed to chase this chimera, but junior home minister G Kishan Reddy said in Parliament this week that no central agency has reported any such case. In reality, conservative animus against interfaith marriages has been converted into a political tool that ends up stirring anxiety and hate. And it's not just ordinary people but the whole state machinery that gets affected, dispensing injustice instead of justice. This is precisely why politicians need to be extra careful, and not invoke imaginary enemies. In social media driven times whatever they say is multiplied manifold, leading to unintended consequences. Polarising political rhetoric presents a bigger threat to social harmony and trust than ever before.

Christina Koch's space adventures inspire

stronauts living and working aboard the International Space Station are helping NASA test technologies for improving life on Earth as well as for facilitating humanity's journey to Mars. This week astronaut Christina Koch has returned here after spending 328 days up there, the longest single spaceflight by a woman. Her research activities during this period involved putting on the hats of farmer, biologist, physicist, engineer, test subject and many more. Memorably.

she also took part in the first all-female spacewalk in October, with astronaut Jessica Meir.

Actually this feat would have taken place in March, when Anne McClain and Koch were all set to step out to install massive lithium-ion batteries to help power the research lab. Except there was only one suit available that would fit the women, so the mission was restaffed, with a man stepping in for McClain.

Of course NASA has come a long way from the Apolloera when it didn't fly any women. But the above episode underlines how gender bias can unconsciously continue to be replicated in design choices. As India embarks on its human spaceflight mission, this is something for Isro to think through too. A woman will walk on the Moon one day, with a space programme not built exclusively around male bodies. It will also need a serious uptick in the representation of women in STEM (science, technology, engineering, and mathematics). Here role models like Christina Koch will play an important role.

A Passage To Pakistan

Indians may have a distorted view of their neighbour, but Pakistanis don't quite get India either

Sadanand Dhume

you grew up in If northern India, a visit to Pakistan is always a somewhat surreal experience. It's like passing through a looking glass to a place that manages to feel both foreign and deeply familiar at the same time.

It's not just the obvious things - food and language - that make Lahore and Karachi feel almost like home. At the gym at the Sheraton in Lahore i encountered a hugely overweight man who spent a desultory half hour on the exercise bike while glued to his phone. Perhaps this is a familiar sight in other countries too, but the only other place where i've witnessed this check-the-box approach to a workout is India. Moral of the story: it's easier to redraw national borders than to change mental habits.

Needless to say, not everything is familiar. In privileged pockets of Pakistan, the availability of alcohol at a party creates a frisson of excitement absent in India, where the well-off take the availability of wine or vodka or Scotch for granted. And despite the shared language, there's always room for verbal miscues. "We don't say 'bina', we say 'baghair'", warns a friend as i order tea for us in Lahore. "You're outing yourself."

Not surprisingly, Pakistan feels much more religious than India. Pakistani liberals bemoan the gradual replacement of the Persian "khuda hafiz" for goodbye with the harder-edged "Allah hafiz". But on the street, at least in Lahore, the latter appears to have triumphed. The default greeting – even at a hotel that's part of an international chain-is not the secular "good morning" or its equivalent, but "assalam aleikum". Rooms come equipped with prayer mats. God is everywhere.

Cliches about the warmth of Pakistani hospitality are true. But you can also encounter kindness among ordinary Pakistanis that has nothing to do with a culture of looking after your guests. At the Pakistan International Airlines counter in Lahore, a young man helpfully suggests that i check my carry-on bag at the gate to avoid paying for excess baggage. In the Indian imagination, particularly on the Hindu Right, Pakistan brings to mind only fanaticism and violence. But a visitor can experience it instead as a land of many small kindnesses.

The Indian view of Pakistan is increasingly shaped by a kind of national hysteria, an inability to view the country dispassionately as a geographical space that happens to be inhabited by a kindred people whose ancestors were Indians. In general, educated Pakistanis are less ignorant about India than their Indian counterparts are about Pakistan. (They are alarmingly up-to-date on Bollywood gossip.) But here too distortions abound. For Pakistanis, India is north India. Indian politics is the politics of the Hindi heartland.

In Lahore the idea of an impending war looms large, even among sober people who

As things stand, Pakistan enjoys a strong relationship with China, has largely repaired its once strained relations with America, and is open to overtures from Russia

longing. The novelist Mohsin Hamid tells me this is because of proximity to the border. For a Lahori, a dip in India-Pakistan relations can mean more men in army fatigues on the streets. If you're in Delhi or Mumbai life goes on as usual. Geopolitics does not intersect with daily life in quite the same way.

Some of Pakistan's beleaguered liberals - brave but dwindling species look upon India's turn toward hardline Hindu nationalism more with sorrow than anger. They feel robbed of their best view it with trepidation rather than argument - that for all its flaws India showed that civil liberties and democratic norms could thrive even on the subcontinent. Under Modi, Indian visas have all but dried up for Pakistanis, even for known peaceniks who have visited India many times. In the past, the Pakistani army tried to discourage people from visiting "enemy territory". Now the Indian government does their job for them.

But it's not all just regret and longing for gentler times. There's schadenfreude too. The idea that the likes of the venomous Yogi Adityanath represent the true face of India is common in Pakistan. As the argument goes, Indian secularism was always a charade. The only difference is that the Modi government doesn't bother to dress up reality. This may strike an Indian as an absurd distortion of the truth, but in Pakistan it's widely believed.

The Narendra Modi government prides itself on restoring hard-bitten realism to Indian foreign policy - no more empty posturing of the Nehruvian variety. Judged by this yardstick, New Delhi's Pakistan policy is a disaster. It appears to be based on a combination of hubris and hatred that are the opposite of realism.

On television, Indians are fed a diet of jingoism that is detached from reality. For instance, while Pakistan's global influence may have declined precipitously-in large measure because of its sclerotic economy - the idea that India can isolate a nuclear armed nation with more than 200-million people is preposterous. As things stand, Pakistan enjoys a strong relationship with China, has largely repaired its once strained relations with America, and is open to overtures from Russia.

Perhaps one day the politicians who run India and the generals who run Pakistan will feel secure enough to allow Indians and Pakistanis to visit each other freely and experience each other's countries for themselves. Until such contact becomes commonplace, the odds of South Asia becoming more like Southeast Asia united by economics rather than divided by politics – remain vanishingly slim.

Regulatory independence shouldn't be diluted, government shouldn't be fixing the premium for third-party motor insurance

Sidhartha@timesgroup.com

For the past few months the amendments to the Motor Vehicles Act have been in for significantly the news raising penalties for traffic violations. Not surprisingly, several state governments have responded by siding with the violators and lowered the fines, triggering a debate on whether they have over-stepped their jurisdiction.

Hidden deep inside the amended law is a clause that can do far more damage but has probably skipped the attention savings bank deposits will earn. Unlike savings bank rate, which was de-regulated by RBI a few years ago, third party premiums are fixed by the insurance regulator to ensure that vehicle owners are not over-burdened with what is a mandatory insurance cover.

Your motor insurance has two components-"own damage" to deal with risk such as theft or damage to your vehicle, while third-party cover insures you against claims arising due to an injury or death of a "third party" (other than the vehicle owner or the insurance company) in an accident. Among all the segments, motor insurance sees the highest insurers lost Rs 8 on every Rs 100of premium they earned. For the system as a whole, there was a profit of a little under Rs 10, but that is excluding the operating costs Going forward, the premium will be decided by the transport obby and will either bleed the insurance companies or increase the burden on the own-damage component, unless the government decides to reverse the clock and regulate tariffs in that segment too. Beyond the insurance sector, the move sends wrong signals on the governance front and indicates that the government does not care about regulatory independence.

Over the years, a series premium, something that has of steps - from insisting on But that certainly does not make a case for the government

Faced by existential crisis, Party can earn loyalty of friends only by effective action against coronavirus

Nayan Chanda

As novel coronavirus infections are doubling every four days and the death toll is steadily mounting - over 600 at time of writing - China's latest health crisis has created the opportunity for a new loyalty test.

China has publicly chastised countries like New Zealand for "joining efforts to isolate the Chinese economy" under the guise of fighting the spread of virus. Although some of China's friends have sent messages of support, Beijing has complained about those that have not. Cambodian PM Hun Sen went a step further, offering to travel to Wuhan to show his solidarity (after being dissuaded by Chinese officials, he flew to Beijing instead). After meeting with President Xi Jinping, he expressed full confidence about China surmounting this challenge, signalling his bullishness by leaving Cambodian students in Wuhan "to share [Chinese people's] happiness and pain and to help them solve this situation"

Hun Sen also acknowledged that Cambodian students who depart Wuhan may not receive scholarships to continue their studies. In a veiled threat, a Chinese diplomat reminded a New Zealand newspaper that, as Wellington's largest trading partner, China does not take kindly to travel restrictions that contribute to its "international isolation". He warned of unspecified loss to the New Zealand economy in consequence. After Indonesia imposed a travel ban on Chinese nationals, Beijing's ambassador in Jakarta darkly warned about the "negative impact" on their relationship.

A Chinese foreign ministry spokesperson has accused the United States of "unceasingly" manufacturing and spreading panic, expressing regret that advanced countries have taken the lead in "imposing excessive restrictions contrary to WHO recommendations". The Chinese ambassador to the UK expressed his disappointment that PM Boris Johnson has taken a drastic measure to call all Britons to leave China globaleve and has not sent a personal message of support to Beijing over the virus. The fact that already 10 countries including the US, Australia, Japan, Pakistan, Indonesia, Singapore and Vietnam have barred entry to visitors who had recently been to China, and numerous countries have suspended flights from the mainland makes China's position tenuous. Veteran China watcher Bill Bishop called Xi's current troubles "as close to an existential crisis for Xi and the Party" since the 1989 Tiananmen Square massacre.

The virus crisis has come at a time when Xi has already been criticised for his handling of relations with the US and the Hong Kong protests causing economic harm to China. Emboldened by Xi's current difficulties, some domestic critics have called for the president's resignation, deriding him as "just someone who is not very smart". Such criticism must sting Chinese leadership as it comes under global criticism for its clumsy effort at a cover-up. The reported death of a whistleblower doctor Li Wenliang, who informed colleagues about the appearance of the new virus over a month ago, could deal a fresh reputational blow to Beijing. In a typical effort to protect political stability and Party prestige, his calls for action were suppressed. Li and eight of his colleagues were instead reprimanded by police for rumour mongering, thus leaving Wuhan's 11 million people exposed to the virus. Similar efforts to suppress news of SARS in 2003 led to a global emergency; that virus ended up killing 800 people.

Now struggling to control the virus's fast spread, the government has resorted to criticising foreign governments for hostile intent towards China in taking measures to protect their citizens. Chinese scientists have admirably sequenced the novel coronavirus genome in record time and Chinese engineers have - in the space of just ten days - built two large hospitals to treat the new patients. Chinese authorities have also mobilised their technological prowess, from apps to drones, to combat the virus. But in its bid to maintain the Party's infallibility and supremacy, the Party has squandered valuable time. The loyalty of its friends must be earned by effective action to protect the health of its own citizens and the world, not by bullying.

of most lawmakers, who backed the legislation in Parliament. The provision inserted by an officer sitting in Delhi's Transport Bhawan has taken over the powers of the Insurance Regulatory Development Authority (Irda) in fixing the premium for third-party motor insurance.

Overriding the provisions in all other laws, the transport ministry has now assumed powers to "prescribe" (read fix) the base premium and the insurer's liability "in consultation with" with Irda.

This is akin to the finance ministry taking over the Reserve Bank of India's powers to decide on the interest rate that your

Government was influenced by the powerful transport lobby, which has always resisted any increase in premium. despite rash driving by largely untrained bus and truck drivers

By all accounts, third-party insurance leaves a bigger hole on the balance sheet of insurers, especially given the long tail as cases are often decided almost a decade after a person is injured or killed in a road accident.

Given the claims, insurance companies always pitch for an increase in premium to cover the risk. And, they usually take the safer option of an acrossthe-board increase in premium instead of rewarding a vehicle owner with a clean record or disincentivising someone with a poor claims history. The regulator too hasn't moved on the plan to actually deregulate ago, Parliament in its wisdom decided to set up an independent agency and entrust the regulator with the task of managing the insurance business.

Today the government argument is that it is trying to ensure that consumer interest is protected and there is some check on the influence of insurance firms to increase the premium for mandatory thirdparty insurance. Quite to the contrary, the move shows how the government was influenced by the powerful transport lobby, which has always resisted any increase in premium, despite rash driving by largely untrained bus and truck drivers.

was carved out for regulators. Barring the financial sector regulators - RBI, Irda, Sebi and Pension Fund Regulatory & Development Authority - several of the new agencies such as those for the petroleum or the aviation sector were in any case bereft of sufficient teeth, allowing the ministries concerned to dictate terms.

The latest amendment can set a dangerous precedent. Instead of taking over the powers of the regulator, the government should provide subsidy through the budget in case the premium is genuinely excessive, much like what is done by states in the power sector.

The 'Mahatma' And The Maharishi

Ashok Vohra

Ahough MK Gandhi and Ramana Maharishi were contemporaries, they never met in person. Gandhi tried thrice to meet Ramana but each time, due to pressure of work, to his regret, he could not find time to go to Ramanashrama in Tiruvannamalai.

Despite the fact that the two never met, they appreciated each other's thought and work. Ramana advised his disciples to "follow the example of Gandhiji in the work of national cause." To all those who complained of depression, Gandhi advised "Go to Ramnashramam and come back after a month's time.'

About the two, Sarojini Naidu wrote, "We have two mahatmas in India today. One is Ramana Maharishi, who gives us peace. The other is Mahatma Gandhi, who will not let us rest one moment in peace. But each does what he is doing with the same end in view, namely the spiritual regeneration of India.

On seeing an eighteen inches high statue of Gandhi in one of the alcoves in Ramana Maharishi's ashrama room, one of his devotees was puzzled and asked him, "Who should be my ideal? Should it be ever active Gandhi, or ever reticent Ramana who sits quietly?

On hearing the question Ramana Maharishi smilingly looked at him and said, "Who told you that I am sitting quietly?" The devotee said that he had been seeing it with his own eyes. At this

THE SPEAKING TREE Ramana asked him "Why do you think that what you are seeing with physical eyes is the truth?"

Ramana explained to him that both he and Gandhi perform their actions with 'devotion and detachment' and ask everyone to do so. They have completely surrendered themselves to divine will. For both, the key word is 'surrender'. He said that if one has surrendered absolutely to God or to a guru then he does not have to "concern himself about the rectitude or otherwise of the course", he will be taken "on the right course" by the power to whom he has surrendered.

Gandhi, according to Ramana, was the exemplar of complete and unequivocal surrender to God. Ramana upheld that Gandhi had no interest in Indian independence if it were to be achieved by unspiritual or immoral means.

Gandhi too admitted several times that he was seeking his own salvation through all his actions.

Gandhi endorsed the doctrine of surrender' when he said, "And if God guides me, what should I think? Even thought may be an obstacle in the way of His guidance." Explaining this remark

Ramana said, "It is only after the rise of I-thought that all other thoughts arise.' Once the 'I-thought' vanishes and is replaced by 'divine will', all doubts regarding success or failure, right or wrong, disappear. Doubts arise "only because one has not surrendered to the divine".

Spiritualism was the cardinal principle underlying all their actions. By 'spiritualism' they meant 'education of the heart'. It represents the 'inner view of life'-"it is the life within expressing and governing the life without." Both Gandhi and Ramana agreed that "the more the soul is in tune with God, the more it realises its own inner bliss.

When Ramana heard of Gandhi's death, he cited the episode from Uttar Ramayana: Rama was reminded by devas that his work on earth was over after the death of Ravana. Ramana said, "Now that India's Independence is achieved, Gandhi's work was done and so he had been sent away.'

alling asleep at the wheel is a trucker's worst nightmare. Now, new technologies are becoming available to alert drowsy drivers, sometimes even before they feel tired. Such tech has been slow to enter big rigs' cabs, but that may be changing. The trucking industry, which employs 3.5 million people in the US, has been focused on a new law requiring the installation of electronic logging devices on most commercial trucks that is meant to help ensure drivers don't drive more than the legally allotted hours in a day. One of the first drowsydriving monitoring systems to appear in the truckers' cab was a driver-facing camera that alerted the driver when it registered eyelid and head droops. Privacy concerns kept this technology from going far.New wearable technology monitors the drivers but in a subtle way, and comes in a variety of forms like caps, vests, wristbands and eye wear. Glasses made by Optalert measure the driver's eye blinking with an LED light monitor. Eyelids that stay down too long might point to a sleepy driver. The real-time measurements are displayed on a dash-mounted device with alarms and notifications.

A headset made by Maven Machines detects if a driver is looking forward through the windshield, up, down or sideways, and measures mirror checks, which can decrease in frequency if a driver is getting tired. The headset detects head bobs and jerks, signs the driver is falling asleep.

This system also notices and can deliver notifications on "coachable" behaviours that can be improved, like hard braking, and delivers audible routing, weather and other messages as well.

Maven Machines' headset pulls data from accelerometers embedded inside, sensors in the truck's onboard computer and GPS data from nearby cellphone towers. The system can then discern whether a driver is driving at an unsafe speed, or perhaps just passing someone, going down a hill or crossing a highway overpass that runs above a surface street with a lower speed limit. The SmartCap device is a iToons headband that measures electronic brain waves and translates them to a measure of alertness or fatigue. It notifies the driver and a central monitoring system.

The alerts sent to drivers are meant to encourage them to find their own best way to get back into an alert state. The company says its case studies have shown that over time the number of drivers' alerts lessens, meaning they are changing schedules or learning to recognise their own drowsy warning signs. # Honey, he shrunk your mobile apps

Washington: A team led by an Indian-origin scientist has developed a new 'streaming' software that can reduce the space taken up by apps on a smartphone by at least 85%. The software "streams" data and code resources to an app from a cloud server when necessary, allowing the app to use only the space it needs on a phone at any given time.

"It's like how Netflix movies aren't actually stored on computer. They are streamed to you as you are watching them," said Saurabh Bagchi, a professor at Purdue University in the US. "Here the application components, like heavy video or graphics or code paths, are streaming instantly despite the errors and slowdowns that are possible on a cellular network," said Bagchi. The study shows how the software, called AppStreamer, cuts down storage requirements by at least 85% for popular gaming apps on an Android. It seamlessly shuffles data between an app and a cloud server without stalling the game, he said.

Most study participants didn't notice any differences in their gaming experience while the app used App-Streamer, they said.

Bagchi said since App-Streamer works for these storage-hungry gaming apps, it could work for other apps that usually take up far less space. The software also allows the app itself to download faster to a phone, he said. PTI

Pauline Billard, an author of the study published in 'Biology Letters', said it only took the fish a few days to learn whether or not they could expect shrimp later that day, depending on how they were being fed during the experiment. "It was surprising how quickly the cuttlefish adapted their eating behaviour," she said.

In further experiments, they found cuttlefish who were given shrimp every evening would eat fewer crabs during the day compared to another group fed their favourite meal at random, who instead became more Opportunistic. THE INDEPENDENT

With Lake Zell in the Austrian Alps failing to freeze, ice race is held on an airstrip iced over with a tractor and a water-tank

n an airstrip in the shadows of the Kitzsteinhorn glacier in the Austrian Alps, Ferdinand Porsche watches as some of the world's fastest cars whiz by on ice at almost 90 miles an hour, spraying spectators with snow during sharp turns.

For the second year running, the 26-year-old son of the Porsche supervisory board chairman has overseen the revival of a decades-old tradition of sports-car races on ice.

Over the weekend, he and a friend brought together world-class drivers for a race in near-zero temperatures before 16,000 car-crazy spectators. This year's GP Ice Race was not like those between 1937 and 1974, which took place on the frozen Lake  ${\it Zell. With the lake now failing to freeze}$ over, it was held on an airstrip iced over with a tractor and a water-tank.

For Ferdinand, restoring the race in an era of climate worries is about rekindling a family passion for testing the boundaries of wellengineered machines against the elements while also trying to be reand driving cleaner cars.

For the first time, the race's emissions are being balanced out with green actions that will reduce 144 tonnes of  $CO_2$ . While the race had cars from the 1950s, 60s and 70s, it also featured electric vehicles.

While holding the race again on the lake seems remote and electric cars mean the extreme growl of an engine and the smell of oil and gasoline are missing, the thrill of speeding down an ice track remains undiminished. BLOOMBERG

hey posted videos of the Les Miserables song, "Do You Hear the People Sing". They invoked article No.35 of China's Constitution, which stipulates freedom of speech. They tweeted a phrase from the poem "For Whom the Bell Tolls". The Chinese public have staged what amounts to an online revolt after the death of a doctor, Li Wenliang, who tried to warn of a mysterious virus that has since killed at least 637 people and infected about 31,211 others.

Since late Thursday, people from different backgrounds, including government officials, prominent business figures and ordinary online users, have posted numerous messages expressing their grief at the doctor's death. News of Li's death at age 34 became the top-read topic on China's microblogging site Weibo on Friday, with over 1.5 billion views, and was also heavily discussed in private WeChat messaging groups.

The government even see med to recognise the enormity of the country's emotion, dispatching a team to investigate what it called "issues related to Dr. Li Wenliang that were reported by the public", though without specifics.

Some users of Weibo, China's Twitter-like social media platform, are saying the doctor's death resonated because he was an ordinary person who

'Israel nearly shot down passenger plane in Syria<sup>3</sup>

Moscow: Russia's defence ministry said on Friday that Israeli air forces nearly shot down a passenger jetliner in Syria during a missile strike on the suburbs of Damascus a day earlier.

The allegation comes as tensions run high in Syria, where fighting has escalated in the northern province of Idlib.

A couple share a kiss in Hong Kong. On Friday, Hong Kong Airlines said it has been forced to lay off 400 employees as the coronavirus outbreak compounds problems at the already-struggling firm. The airlines said that strict entry and quarantine measures imposed by countries around the world have further impacted travel demand in the city and the firm had to take vigorous measures to mitigate the challenges was forced to admit to wrongdoing for doing the right thing. Li was reprimanded by the police after he shared concerns about the virus in a social messaging app with medical school classmates on December 30. Three days later, the police compelled him to sign a statement that his warning constituted "illegal behaviour."

Wang Gaofei, the chief executive of Weibo, which carries out many of the orders passed down from China's censors, pondered what lessons China should learn from Li's death. "We should be more tolerant of people who post 'untruthful information' that aren't malicious," he said in a post. "If we're only allowed to speak what we can guarantee is fact, we're going to pay prices." "RIP our hero," Fan Bao, a

iPhone maker is making masks

oxconn will start manufacturing surgical face masks alongside Apple products at its Shenzhen factory, the world's biggest contract electronics maker announced on Thursday. "Face masks are now the standard equipment in our fight against the (coronavirus) epidemic," Foxconn said in a statement. Foxconn assembles Apple's iPhones as well as gadgets for other international brands. The announcement came as WHO chief Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus said the demand for masks, gowns, gloves and other protective gear has risen up to 100-fold and prices have soared due to the China coronavirus, producing a "severe" disruption in global supply. ### Apple fined for iPhone-slowing software in France

Paris: France's consume watchdog said on Friday that Apple had agreed to pay €25 million for failing to tell iPhone users that software updates could slow down older devices. The scandal erupted in December 2017, when the firm admitted that its most recent iOS software was slowing the performance of older phones.

Critics accused the firm of surreptitiously forcing users to buy phones sooner than needed. The outcry forced Apple was forced to upgrade its software and offer discounts on battery replacements. Prosecutors opened an inquiry in January 2018. "IPhone owners were not informed that installing iOS updates could slow down their devices," the DGCCRF agency said. Apple said it welcomed the accord

US policy that restricted intl students' re-entry blocked Relief For 2L Desis Studying There As Court Sets Aside Memo That Barred Re-entry For 'Unlawful Presence'

Lubna.Kably@timesgroup.com

n a relief for international students, a US district court has held as invalid a revised (new) policy memo on 'unlawful presence' issued by the US government's immigration agency in August 2018.

The controversial memo had upset foreign students in the US as a retro-computation prescribed by it for computing 'unlawful presence' could result in barring several students from re-entering the US for three or 10 years.

Setting aside of this policy memo by judge Loretta C Biggs is being perceived as a major victory not just for Guilford College, The New School, Haverford College and other plaintiffs to the lawsuit, but for the 10.95 lakh international students. After the Chinese (3.69 lakh), Indians at 2.02 lakh constitute the second largest group of international students, according to the last Open Source data, issued in November. Under the new policy memo issued by the US Citizenship and Immigration Services that came into effect from August 9, 2018, the unlawful presence clock was turned back to the date on which the international student first fell 'out of status'.

The violation of student status could be inadvertent or owing to no fault of the international student. Even a simple failure to update the designated school officer of a change in address, an unauthorised job such as babysitting, a clerical error by the DSO in entering information into the SEVIS system (database for international students) such as additional hours of on-site campus work beyond those permissible could result in a student being regarded as 'out of status'.

New policy is now invalid. But Trump administration could appeal to a higher court

The repercussions were extreme. For instance, if an international student has unknowingly violated his or her student status, and this was discovered years later, it was likely that the 180 day or even 365-day period would have been crossed. An individual who accrues more than 180 days of unlawful presence before departing from the US can be barred from re-entry for three years. An individual unlawfully present in the US for more than a year is barred for 10 years.

Rajiv S Khanna, managing attorney at Immigration.com, told TOI, "This decision is laudable in three respects. First, the court correctly interpreted the law and held that the USCIS had implemented a policy against the plain language of the statute. Second, the court invalidated incorrect procedures. Syrian government forces, backed by the Russian military, have clashed with Turkish troops that support the opposition there after failing to observe a cease-fire. A spokesman for the Israeli PM did not respond to a request for comment.

The news of the alleged near-miss came amid jitters just a month after a Ukrainian passenger plane crashed shortly after take-off from Tehran, killing all 176 people on board. Iran said the plane was mistakenly shot down by its paramilitary Revolutionary Guard.

In a statement released on Friday, Russian defence ministry spokesperson Igor Konashenkov said the strike was car ried around 2 am local time on Thursday. He said four Israeli F-16 fighter jets hit the suburbs of Damascus with eight missiles without taking into account that a passenger plane with 172 civilians on board was preparing to land in the city's airport around the same time.

Konashenkov didn't name the airline or flight number, saying only that it was an Airbus-320 en route from Tehran that "came near to entering the zone of a deadly anti-aircraft missile and artillery fire". Saarah Yob, 23, of Florida was on a trip to New Orleans when she discovered someone had stolen her purse.

Later that day, James Elmes, 21, spotted the purse sitting on a curb with only her camera in it. He posted a photo Yob had taken of heronto Twitter on the remote chance someone would see it. Within 16 hours and 800 retweets later, he did find Yob, who was immensely grateful to get her purse back. AP

Musk takes a dig at WhatsApp's recent security scandals

Elon Musk on Thursday made a dig at WhatsApp's recent history with security vulnerabilities. Musk tweeted a picture of all the versions of the robot arm emoji from Apple, Google, Microsoft, Samsung and WhatsApp respectively and wrote, "Last one comes with a free phone hack." The last photo was Facebook-owned WhatsApp's version of the emoji, a dig at the messaging app's recent security problems. In January, an analysis of Amazon CEO Jeff Bezos' iPhone concluded it was compromised after he received a 4.4MB video file containing malware via WhatsApp.

WhatsApp may get to roll out payments service in phases

Regulators Look At Green Signal After Fresh Compliance Plan

Digbijay.Mishra @timesgroup.com

Bengaluru: WhatsApp will finally be able to roll out its payments services in a phased manner in India after it submitted a revised proposal regarding compliance in January, two sources aware of the matter said. The messaging application, owned by social networking giant Facebook, has over 400 million monthly active users in India The move could see WhatsApp enter the payments battlefield to take on Google Pay, Walmart-backed Phone-Pe and Alibaba & SoftBankbacked Paytm. This, after being stuck in trial phase for two years where it was restricted to just 1 million users.

The National Payments Corporation of India (NPCI), which manages the Unified Payments Interface (UPI) system that WhatsApp plans to develop its payments business on, had discussed the matter with the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) earlier this week.

The changes WhatsApp has made regarding compliance and details in its proposal could not be immediately ascertained. But the government has not given up its demand for traceability of messages, said a third source briefed on the matter. In the next week or so, there could be a final decision on the matter, he added. For almost two years, WhatsApp Pay has been testing its payments in beta mode with troubles around its data-localisation compliance along with the government's demand for traceability of messages on the platform. Then, the Israeli spyware Pegasus' hacking of WhatsApp users, including Indians, further delayed approval for the popular messaging platform last year.

From a base of 1 million in the first phase, WhatsApp could be allowed to take its payments service to about 10 million, according to current options the NPCI has considered with the RBI. Even a phased rollout will impact rivals like Paytm, PhonePe and Google Pay, who have so far dominated UPI transaction volumes as WhatsApp has the deepest penetration, ease of use and engagement in India among major social applications.

In November, following the Pegasus controversy, the RBI had told the SC that WhatsApp Pay is non-compliant with data-localisation and it will give permission only after full compliance. A WhatsApp India spokesperson said it did not have any new comment to offer on the matter. An emailed query sent to the NPCI did not elicit any response. Sources close to WhatsApp India said the company had not yet received any communication from the central bank or the NPCI.

Tata Steel reports ₹1,229cr net loss in Q3

New Delhi: Tata Steel on Friday reported a consolidated net loss of Rs 1,229 crore for the quarter ended on December 31, 2019, mainly due to lower sales and impairment provisions for its European operations. Tata Steel had posted a consolidated net profit of Rs 1,753 crore during the same quarter a year ago, the company said in a BSE filing. Its gross sales fell to Rs

34,774 crore in October-December 2019 from Rs 38,086 crore in the year-ago period. Its expenses were at Rs 35,849 crore as compared to Rs 35,930 crore in the preceding fiscal.

The company said consolidated financial results included a provision for impairment in respect of non-current assets and restructuring provisions within the European operations.

LOWER SALES

"During the quarter, Nat-Steel Holdings, a wholly owned indirect subsidiary of the company, disposed of its entire stake in Nat Steel Vina. The loss on disposal of the subsidiary is included within profit/ (loss) from discontinued operations," Tata Steel said.

The company said during the third quarter global economic growth further slowed down amid heightened concerns of US-China trade war and regional steel prices were down as steel demand was affected by weaker industrial output in key markets. In Europe, the overall slowdown was more pronounced due to seasonal weakness and elevated levels of unfairly priced imports.

Revenue from operations decreased to Rs 13,821 crore during the quarter under review primarily due to sharp decline in European steel prices, resulting in loss of Rs 956 crore at ebitda level. Agencies

SBI, 3 others cut deposit, loan rates Move Comes After RBI

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Mumbai: SBI and three other public sector banks have reduced interest rates on loans as well as deposits after the RBI reduced the cost of funds for banks in its monetary policy. Following the rate cut, the maximum return on SBI's fixed deposits stands at 6%.

India's largest bank on Friday reduced its marginal cost of lending rate (MCLR) by 5 basis posits (100bps = 1percentage point) across all tenors effective February 10, 2020. The one-year MCLR comes down to 7.85% per annum from 7.90% with effect from February 10. This is the ninth consecutive cut in MCLR in FY20.

The rate revision is on account of a reduction in the cost of funds before the policy."The impact of therecent RBI policy measures and reduction in deposit rates will be reflected in the next review of MCLR," the bank said in a statement. The one-year MCLR is the benchmark used by SBI for loans before October 2019 and non-retail loans. New borrowers get their loans at rates linked to the repo rate. The MCLR reduction would mean that older customers stand to benefit.

The bank also reduced its deposit rates by 10-50 bps citing surplus liquidity in the system. This lowered interest rate on retail term will deliver a first-ever quarterly profit by the end of the year, signalling that cost-cutting measures are exce-basis, by the fourth quarter of 2020, Dara Khosrowshahi, the chief executive officer, said on a conference call to discuss financial results on Thursday. A previous plan set this goal for 2021. The stock was up about 5% in extended trading.

The drive toward profitability is likely to take a toll on growth. Nelson Chai, the chief financial officer, said gross bookings will decline slightly in the first quarter from the previous period.

For the fourth quarter, Uber edged out Wall Street's expectations, with bookings up28% and a loss that was narrower than analysts' estimates. Gross bookings for the fourth quarter were $18 billion, showing demand for transportation and food delivery orders remains strong. The measure, which represents the total value of rides, food orders and other businesses, is closely watched by investors. Efforts to rein in spending are proving to be especially effective. The San Francisco-ba sed company reported an adjusted loss of $615 million, compared with a $713 million average of analysts' estimates compiled by Bloomberg. ## New India swings to Q3 net of ₹483cr

Bengaluru: Public sector insurer New India Assurance (NIA) swung to a third-quarter profit of Rs 483 crore from a loss of Rs 114 crore in the year-ago quarter, supported by investment income and reduced underwriting losses.

NIA's gross premium increased a modest 3% year-on-year to Rs 6,989 crore. Health insurance grew 19% to Rs 2,150 crore, while motor insurance increased 5% to Rs 2,587 crore. However, this was offset by a dip in crop insurance premium to Rs 14.7 crore from Rs 113.3 crore.

Profits came from investment income which grew 72% to Rs1,476 crore, pushing total income up 20% to Rs 7,620 crore. тли

Radio Mirchi posts ₹40cr ebitda in Q3

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Mumbai: Entertainment Net work (India) Ltd, the operator of India's no. 1 FM radio channel Radio Mirchi, on Friday announced results for the quarter ended December 31, 2019. The company posted a total revenue of Rs 145.7 crore during the quarter a de-growth of 15% on like basis (without concerts featuring international artists).

Underlying earnings before interest, tax, depreciation and amortisation (ebitda) de-grew 21.5% to Rs 31.7 crore, but reported ebitda - after impact of the Ind-AS 116 accounting standard -grew 0.2% to reach Rs 40.4 crore. Profit after tax, at Rs 10.6 crore, improved from last quarter, but was lower compared to the year-ago period.

Commenting on the results, ENILMD&CEOPrashantPanday said, "In possibly the worst quarter of the last 10 years, our radio revenues fell 19%, in line with the results of all major TV and radio companies. Our buzzing solutions business withstood adverse economic conditions and reported only a small revenue drop. Our revenue market share improved, our solutions margins improved, and our digital revenues soared."

Airtel's Rathor joins HDFC Bank

Mayur.Shetty@timesgroup.com

Mumbai: Airtel chief information officer (India operations) Anjani Rathor has joined HDFC Bank as chief digital officer (CDO). He joins in place of Nitin Chugh, who has moved to Ujjivan Small Finance Bank as its CEO.

HDFC Bank has not had a CDO since May 2019, when Chugh had moved out. The CDO at HDFC Bank has become an important post in the wake of the mobile application being the primary channel for customers to transact with the lender. According to the bank,  $92\,\%$  of customer transactions take place through its mobile app and internet banking.

Consumer Products' (GCPL's) aim to increase rural sales to 37% of revenue by 2020 has taken a hit due to the economic slowdown. The owner of brands like Good Knight and Cinthol will now take another two-three years to grow its rural business to 37% from 31%.

GCPL CEO Sunil Kataria told TOI, "We never anticipated GST disruptions and the slowdown that we have seen in the last 12 months. We are also seeing a large disruption in terms of multiple ecosystems coming into play — like e-commerce." Good Knight and Hit, which form the company's home insecticide business, account for nearly half of total sales. According to Kataria, the country's Rs 6,200-crore home insecticide market is growing at 7-8%, which reflects a bit of a slowdown. The company, which is a market leader, has seen growth slightly ahead of the industry. It has increased its market share this year to 49%.

New product launches by GCPL have driven category growth, Kataria said. The company launched insect repellent incense sticks under the Good Knight brand last year to take on unorganised suppliers that used "illegal" chemicals.

Bangladesh fold for 233 as Afridi claims four

Pakistan left-arm quick Shaheen Afridi claimed 4-53 as the hosts bowled out Bangladesh for 233 in their first innings on Day One of the opening Test in Rawalpindi on Friday. Bangladesh went in to bat on a green-tinged surface and got off to a terrible start. The first 10 deliveries yielded only three runs and cost both their openers, including Saif Hassan for a a duck on Test debut. Captain Mominul Hag (30) struggled against Pakistan's shortball barrage but he and Najmul Hossain (44) somewhat arrested the slide. They were separated just when the partnership was blooming. With the tourists reeling on 107-5, Mohammad Mithun (63) forged brief partnerships with Liton Das (33) and Taijul Islam (24) to take Bangladesh past 200. Scores: Bangladesh 233 (Mithun 63, Shanto 44, Afridi 4-53, Abbas 2-19) v Pak

India women lose to England by four wickets: The Indian women's team produced another listless batting performance to suffer a second successive loss in the T20 tri-series here in Melbourne, going down to England by four wickets on Friday. Sent in to bat, Indian batters failed to capitalise on their starts as they struggled to 123/6 in 20 overs with opener Smriti Mandhana emerging as the top-scorer with a 40-ball 45. Chasing the total, Natalie Sciver smashed a strokeful fifty as England romped home comfortably, scoring 124/6 with seven balls to spare. # SECOND ODI WANTED: NZ VS IND OUICK REMEDIES

Jolted India Aim To Save Series Against Resurgent Kiwis

IME TO HAVE A GO: Navdeep Saini bowls during India's training session at Eden Park in Auckland on Friday

Auckland: With some of their bowling and fielding frailties having been exposed in the series opener, India will aim for a course correction when they take on a resurgent New Zealand in the second ODI here on Saturday. Flying high after the 5-0 whitewash of New Zealand in the T20 series. India were brought to the ground after the hosts took a 1-0 lead in the three-match series with a four-wicket win in the first ODI.

The Black Caps chased down their highest-ever total in ODI cricket at Seddon Park and the toss will be crucial once again at the even shorter Eden Park where the side batting second will have a clear advantage.

New Zealand opted to bat here in both the T20Is. but India chased well in both instances albeit in different circumstances. India find themselves in a familiar situa tion after the loss in Hamilton. But the visitors have come from behind against the West Indies and Australia to win their last two ODI series and Virat Kohli's men will look to do the same here.

Like in Chennai against the West Indies.

or in Mumbai against Australia, India's loss at Hamilton was down to their lack of ability to take wickets in the middle overs. The opposition batsmen took advantage to hit big and the Indian attack didn't have any answers. In the first ODI, skipper Virat Kohli turned to Jasprit Bumrah every time he went searching for a wicket. This overdependency is something India would want to address in their composition.

India's fielding too will be under the scanner. In each of those losses in Chennai. Mumbai and Hamilton, it was poor despite flashes of individual brilliance. The general fielding standards have gone down since the Bangladesh series and there is a need for a collective all-round effort from the visitors to bounce back.

Generally, high catches are tougher in the windy conditions in New Zealand, and the odd lights at Eden Park won't help either. At the nets, the Men in Blue on Friday had an optional training session. Navdeep Saini and Shardul Thakur both didn't just bowl, but also batted in the nets. Thakur

TOWERING JAMIESON TO MAKE DEBUT

Auckland: Fast bowler Kyle Jamieson, the tallest New Zealand cricketer. will make his international debut against India on Saturday. The 6-feet, 8-inch tall Jamieson was called into the national squad for the final two Tests against Australia but did not play and was not in the side for the opening ODI.

Bowling coach Shane Jurgensen, who is temporarily in charge of the team with Gary Stead taking a week off, said on Friday that Scott Kuggeleijn would not be considered due to flu-like symptoms. Legspinner Ish Sodhi's release to play for New Zealand 'A' had also meant Jamieson would make his debut at Eden Park. "He's obviously a huge man, at six-foot-eight he's quite an imposing sight. Let's see what he can do." Jurgensen said, REUTERS was expensive in his outings at Eden Park during the T20Is, and he didn't impress in the first ODI either and India could think of replacing him with Saini.

The other contemplation will be about Kedar Jadhav's role in the side. Selected primarily to bring balance to the playing eleven with his part-time spin, Kohli didn't give him a single over in Hamilton.

Perhaps it was due to the short boundaries. In that light, bowling Jadhav at Eden Park makes even less sense. It could merit giving Shivam Dube a go here, or even playing a fulltime batsman in Manish Pandey. The rest of the batting lineup picks itself, with the new opening pair of Agarwal and Prithvi Shaw settling in well in their first outing and the team management will hope the duo can add a few more runs than last time

For New Zealand, a change in personnel has worked wonders after their T20 whitewash. Stand-in skipper Tom Latham's batting in the middle worked for them, and Henry Nicholls confirmed he will continue to open the innings with Guptill. PTI women's game, says Harmanpreet: The upcoming women's T20 World Cup has the potential to revolutionise the game, India skipper Harmanpreet Kaur said. In a column for the ICC, Harmanpreet wrote, "It wasn't so long ago that a par score in T20 cricket was 120 or 130. Now, that's not enough. Teams are looking much more confident and trying to get bigger scores. It's that change in the mindset that leads to better performances and the Women's T20 World Cup has the potential to revolutionise the game. If I look back two years, India's 50-over side was doing well and our T20 was struggling. But in the past two vears, we have changed as a T20 team."

Fielding woes: Lack of training time, fatigue to blame? Copy Virat Template To Improve, Says Coach

Match-winning knock played by

Virender Sehwag off 139 balls on

Jan 11, 2003 — the only ton by an Indian batsman against New Zealand at Eden Park in ODIs.

Auckland: India's fielding hasn't the entire T20 schedule. There is not ing series against New Zealand and fielding coach R Sridhar said on Sridhar pointed out. Friday the "downward curve" was a direct result of the hectic travelling and playing, which was affecting the side's practice plans. He, however, said scheduling woes were not an excuse for lapses in the field.

Sridhar said India's fielding has "at best been average" in the last four months. He said fatigue could be a contributing factor to losses during this time period.

There was only one full session before the T20 International series whereas the other three sessions have all been optional. "It is a tight schedule but it is not a complaint and it is not an excuse at all. We need to be better. That's the nature of the current schedule, we have to been particularly good in the ongo- much we can put in in terms of technical work on the ground,"

> "Apart from that, we do have a look at the videos and see what led to an error. It need not always be a technical error every time there is a fumble or a dropped catch. We need to know whether it could be a tactical position error or the mind not being in the right place.

"The West Indies series at home was where we really dropped. We were average, to say the least. But definitely we have not lived to the standards as we did in the World Cup or even in the build-up to the World Cup," said Sridhar.

Despite the downturn in fielding form, there have been moments of individual brilliance in every match or series. Virat Kohli has aftake it. We have to play around it fected two stupendous run outs, one but we hardly had a session during with a nearly blind throw at Wel-

We do monitor their workloads. We will be lying to ourselves if we say no, they are fresh as a daisy every time they go on to the park. They are not, because they are travelling and playing games. But the current fitness levels of this team is really good, so that in turn helps to recover from the workload and fatigue quickly and be fit on the park." —R Sridhar | FIELDING COACH -R Sridhar | FIELDING COACH

lington (Colin Munro), and then at Hamilton (Henry Nicholls). "The kind of intensity he brings to the field, I always say to the younger boys who come, he is a ready-made template for you to copy. Watch him, see what he does," Sridhar said.

Sridhar said they have accounted for the downturn in fielding standard by a grading system privy to the support staff. He said the team management keeps a sharp eye on the workloads and practice schedules of all players. PTI

REMINDS ME OF MYSELF: SACHIN

Sydney: Sachin Tendulkar on Friday picked Australian Marnus Labuschagne as the player who most reminds him of himself, calling the fast-rising batsman a special talent with impeccable footwork. Here to coach a side at Sunday's charity fundraiser for the devastating bushfires in Australia, Tendulkar was asked to name the player who comes closest to resembling him. "I happened to be watching the second Test at Lord's between England and Australia. When Smith got injured, I saw Labuschagne's second innings," Tendulkar responded. "I was sitting with my father-in-law. I saw Marnus get hit off the second ball from Jofra Archer and, post that, the 15 minutes he batted, I said, 'This player looks special.' "There is something about him. His footwork was precise. Footwork is not physical, it's mental. If you're not thinking positively in your mind, then your feet don't move," he added. The 25-year-old Labuschagne became Test cricket's leading scorer last year with 1,104 runs. He broke into the scene after coming in as a concussion substitute for Steve Smith during the Ashes last August. Labuschagne made four consecutive half-centuries to notch up with 353 runs at 50.42 in the Ashes. Tendulkar said Labuschagne's fine footwork is also a sign that he is a mentally strong player. "If you're not (mentally strong), your feet will not move. His footwork was incredible," he said.

Labuschagne has amassed 896 runs this Test summer, notching up four centuries. Tendulkar is in Australia to coach Ponting XI for the Bushfire Cricket Bash. PTI

How Kartik returned from a nasty 'football' injury

From suffering a fractured leg during a Ranji warm-up session two years ago to winning back financial security for his family, U-19 pacer Kartik Tyagi has seen it all. Now, he wants the Cup...

Arani.Basu@timesgroup.com

New Delhi: A lean, happy-looking Kartik Tyagi has been sending down swinging deliveries consistently over 140 kmph at the ongoing U-19 World Cup. He is living a dream and there is no trace of the agony he went through not long ago.

Tyagi could have become an established name in Indian cricket earlier but for a freak injury he sustained while warming up for his second Ranji Trophy match for Uttar Pradesh two years ago.

"I fractured my leg while playing football during warm-up on match day. Then I developed an injury in my pelvic bone," Tyagi told TOI from Potchefstroom, where India will take on Bangladesh in the final on Sunday.

The injury not only pegged his career back but also cost his father all of his 2.5 acres of farming land in village Dhanora, West UP. He even picked up a side strain before the World Cup which, according to him, 'miraculously' healed in time.

"We ran pillar to post for my treatment. We started running out of money. After five months, I asked the UPCA to recommend me to the NCA. It took me another six months to start cricket and by then my father had to sell off all his land," he recalled before promptly adding: "I don't play football anymore. I stay out of any other sport that our team plays during warm-ups."

There is purpose in his stride when he charges towards the bowling crease. One part of that comes from the determination to give better days to his family, the other from modeling himself on Brett ON THE UPSWING: Kartik Tyagi

Lee. "I was in awe of Bhuvneshwar Kumar's ability to swing it right during his dream spell on debut against Pakistan in 2012. But I love watching Brett Lee's videos. He had finished playing when I took up cricket but everything is online. I like the way he bowled consistently at that pace and swung it too. I still watch his videos whenever I am free," Tyagi said.

And that is the reason he travelled to Meerut to learn the art of swing bowling from Bhuvneshwar's coach Vipin Vats.

Then the conversation shifted back to his days of injury and rehab, and the 19-year-old made it clear he has put his past behind. "Abhi maine sochna hi bandh kar diya (I have stopped thinking about my injuries.) It would stop me from bowling with a free mind," Tyagi asserted. "Aur parents ke liye socha toh bahut kuchh hai (I have thought of doing a lot of things for my parents). As for my earnings, I have left everything to my dad," he said, referring to a deal worth Rs 1.3 crore with Rajasthan Royals which is likely to set a lot of things right.

Now that he has found his rhythm and the world is talking about him, he revealed how he got lucky to have made the Ranji team at 17. "When I did well at the U-16 level, I was sent for a Ranji camp. There, Suresh Raina and PK (Praveen Kumar) bhaiya liked my bowling and decided to play me straight away," Tyagi recalled. "PK bhaiya was not supposed to play in that match but he decided to play so that he could guide me. I am so grateful that both Raina bhai and PK bhaiya fielded at mid-off and mid-on to mentor me through the match.'

One can make out Tyagi is in a good head space. Having inherited the art of swing bowling from his state stalwarts, he believes he can move the ball at will. 'I don't think about movement. Like Brett Lee, I focus on bowling quick. And then PK bhaiya always talked about using your brains to earn a wicket. That's what I do now — keep thinking about getting the batsman out.

It was time for Kartik to head back to the hotel after training. As he hung up, he said about the final on Sunday: "I love the feeling of winning a trophy. I tasted it when we won the Cooch Behar Trophy for UP. I want that feeling again.'

Mirabai best woman lifter at senior Nationals

Kolkata: Chandrakant Mali of Services smashed three records to take the concluding day honours even as Railways reigned supreme, grabbing both the men's and women's trophies at the Senior National Weightlifting Championships here on Friday. Former world champion Mirabai Chanu, who had shattered three records to win women's 49kg title, was adjudged the Best Senior Women's Lifter with 865.796 'Robi points'. Youth Olympic champion Jeremy Lalrinnunga, who created a record in clean and jerk on way to winning the men's 67kg for Services, became the Best Senior Men's Lifter with 658.962 points.

Westbrook shines in Rockets' win Los Angeles: The Houston Rockets, fueled by 41 points from Russell Westbrook, surged late to shock the NBA's Western Conference-leading Los Angeles Lakers 121-111 on Thursday. Anthony Davis shook off a sprained right index finger to lead the Lakers with 32 points. LeBron James added 18 for Los Angeles, who trailed much of the night but took a 108-105 lead on Avery Bradley's pull up jumper with 4:57 remaining.

Biles wows fans with video of daring vault ahead of Olympics Los Angeles: Simone Biles, the most decorated American gymnast with 30 Olympic and world championship medals, has excited fans with a four-second video clip of a training vault no woman has performed in competition. The 22-year-old reigning world and Olympic all-around champion showed off a Yurchenko double pike vault and landed in a pit of red foamlike bricks with the Twitter caption "2020?" and three sets of eveballs.

Osaka endures Fed Cup loss

Madrid: A tearful Naomi Osaka followed up her Australian Open disappointment with another surprise defeat on Friday when she was beaten 6-0, 6-3 by world number 78 Sara Sorribes Tormo in the Fed Cup. Spain took an unexpected 1-0 lead over Japan in the tie in Cartagena after Sorribes Tormo capitalised on a careless performance from Osaka, who made 50 unforced errors in the 15 games. Sorribes Tormo enjoyed the backing of a sizeable home crowd at La Manga Club and her consistency proved too much for Osaka, who has never played her best on clay.

Improved fitness in last three years behind team's success, says Rani

New Delhi: Skipper Rani Rampal feels the improved level of fitness has played a key role in the Indian women's hockey team's recent success. Last year marked an eventful season for the Indian women's team as it booked its ticket to 2020 Olympics, where for the first time in the history of the game it will make back-to-back appearances. The team also scripted creditable victories against quality sides like Spain, Ireland, Japan, China, Korea among other countries last year, while defeating higher ranked teams like New Zealand and Great Britain in 2020. "The starting of the Olympic year has been good. Specially, because last year we managed to qualify for Tokyo. Since then women's hockey's graph is going well. In the last three years the team has done quite well," Rani said.

Dingko Singh awaits cancer test results, financial relief Fearing Relapse, Boxing Legend Says Cashless Hospital Treatment Would Take Huge Burden Off Him

Sabi.Hussain@timesgroup.com

New Delhi: Sitting in a two-bed hospital ward, Dingko Singh smiled when discussing his favourite subject – boxing. The celebrated 42-year-old pugilist from Manipur, once hailed as Indian boxing's golden boy, had a lot of anecdotes to share, but that's not where his mind is focused presently.

Dingko has a more immediate matter to worry about – arranging finances to fund his treatment as doctors test him for a possible relapse of liver cancer, for which he had first been successfully treated three years ago. The third floor of the Institute of Liver and Biliary Sciences (ILBS) here is where the Arjuna and Padma Shri awardee has been undergoing tests since January 28, when he was admitted after suffering jaundice in his hometown of Sekta, near Imphal. Though there's a blockage in his bile duct, the relapse has yet not been confirmed by doctors with some

advanced tests still pending. "We had come to the ILBS for a check-up after I contracted jaundice at home. So far, the tests haven't shown anything suspicious, but the doctors didn't want to take any chances. On Tuesday, they will conduct another biopsy, endoscopy and ultrasound to assess if there are new traces in other areas. Looks like, I am here for a long haul," Dingko told TOI. It's this long stay in the hospital that has caused premature wrinkles on his forehead. Dingko has only been worrying about arranging funds from his friends and relatives. When he left Imphal, the Sports Authority of India's (SAI) regional director at the SAG centre, where he's currently posted as a senior coach, had provided him Rs 50,000 as advance to meet his medical expenses.

"That amount was spent on booking flight tickets and paying an upfront admission fee of Rs 25,000 to the hospital. Since then, it's been a struggle as our savings are drying up. We didn't know that I would be admitted this time and the treatment since January 28 has cost us around Rs1.5 lakh. We are paying it from our own pocket," Dingko's wife Babai said. The room charges itself are Rs 3000 per day. Dingko, however, isn't complaining. His only plea is to make the medication and treatment cashless. "It would a huge burden off if SAI can link its bank account with the hospital's so that payments can made directly."

Alternately, there's another option of the concerned department in SAI collecting all the bills related to his treatment and reimbursing them directly to the hospital. "This will help me to focus entirely on my treatment and not to worry about arranging money," Dingko said. Dingko's financial state – as of most middle and lower class former sportsmen in India -- and his urgent need for money only highlight the loopholes in the current sporting system.

His present situation brings out the helplessness former athletes face in absence of a robust health care policy. The system doesn't provide for a cashless health insurance cover to athletes and coaches working under the SAI's umbrella and they have to get the amount reimbursed under the Central Government Health Scheme (CGHS) only after submitting actual bills, which itself is lengthy process. These bills don't cover sundry charges, like amount spent on an attendant(s) stay and food and other expenses. Also, a patient, as in Dingko's case, has to first make the payments himself and then get them

reimbursed from SAI or their re spective departments like Services Sports Control Board (SSCB) or Railways. Often, athletes don't have enough money to spend on costly treatment. This is where the cashless health policy and a fixed insurance cover would help. It's well-documented that when Dingko, whose remarkable gold medal run at the 1998 Bangkok Asian Games had ended Indi a's 16-year wait for an Asiad medal glory in boxin, had to sell his three-bedroom house in Imphal to raise money for treatment when detected first with liver cancer in October-November 2016. Since then, after undergoing surgery on January 6, 2017 where 70 percent of his liver was removed, Dingko's family has spent more than Rs 10 lakh on his treatment, with little help from central and state governments. In February 2017, then sports minister Vijay Goel, had made assurances about providing full financial support to the boxer. But no help has arrived at their doorstep till date.

Barcelona, Real Madrid crash out of Copa on the same day

Madrid: Barcelona and Real Madrid both crashed out of the Copa del Rey as Athletic Bilbao and Real Sociedad pulled off a shock Basque double to reach the semi-finals. Barca were beaten 1-0 by Bilbao at San Mames, where Inaki Williams headed in a dramatic 93rd-minute winner, after La Real had seen off Madrid 4-3 in a seven-goal thriller at the Santiago Bernabeu on Thursday.

Two sensational upsets added another layer of excitement to a competition that has been full of surprises this season, with Bilbao and Real Sociedad joining Granada and second division Mirandes in an unfamiliar line-up for the draw on Friday. "There have been some surprise results," said Williams. "Sometimes you just have to have faith and heart."

For Barca, defeat was particularly painful, coming at the end of a turbulent week that saw Lionel Messi engage in a public spat with the club's sporting director Eric Abidal and Ousmane Dembele ruled out, probably for the rest of the season, with another hamstring tear. To make matters worse, Gerard Pique hobbled off with his own injury problem in the second half against Bilbao and looks doubtful to face Real Betis in La Liga on Sunday.

Messi's riposte that "everyone should take responsibility for their own decisions" after Abidal suggested Ernesto Valverde was sacked last month because of the players, means Barcelona are in political turmoil off the pitch. And the fear is Messi could even leave in the summer by activating a clause in his contract that allows him to walk away from the club for free.

For a rotated Madrid side, the loss against Real Sociedad was perhaps less damaging, even if they conceded as many goals in 69 minutes as they had in their last 11 matches put together. Martin Odegaard found the opener before the superb Alexander Isak hit two to give Real Sociedad a remarkable 3-0 lead. Marcelo and Rodrygo both scored late in the second half and while Mikel Merino added a fourth , a Nacho Fernandez header set up a wild final three minutes, in which Andoni Gorosabel was also sent off. ### Zlatan return adds spice to Milan derby

Milan: Zlatan Ibrahimovic's return to AC Milan will add spice to the city derby against Inter Milan on Sunday with the Swede looking to thwart Antonio Conte's side from keeping pace with Serie A leaders Juventus. Ibrahimovic played his first Milan derby as an Inter player 13 years ago, while his last was for rivals AC Milan in May 2012, when he scored a double in a 4-2 defeat. Ibrahimovic was the top scorer that season with 28 goals but Milan lost the Serie A title to Conte's Juventus, the first in the Turin giants' current run of eight league crowns. The 38-year-old's return to Milan -- whom he helped to their last Serie A title in 2011 -- has proved a boost with his side now eighth, seven points adrift of the Champions League berths. Milan were on a three-match winning run with Ibrahimovic on the pitch but were held 1-1 by Hellas Verona last weekend when the Swede was sidelined by the flu. AC Milan director Zvonimir Boban praised Ibrahimovic's impact, insisting the Swede was pushing to be ready for "a unique derby". AFP

Departure of Lobera was unexpected

Bhaichung Bhutia

here has been a lot of positive news during the ongoing Hero Indian Super League, but the departure of FC Goa coach Sergio Lobera was totally unexpected. From a layman's point of view, it has come at a time when the playoffs are around the corner, and FC Goa stands as the first team to have already qualified for it. The risk of team morale of the squad being affected remains the biggest risk. FC Goa has been sublime on the field, and they cannot at any time afford to let that self-doubt and confusion creep in. That can destroy all the hard work. Footballing theories will always point out that a happy dressing room is the bed-rock of all successful football teams.

Having said that, I would like to laud Clifford Miranda and Derrick Pereira for the manner in which they handled the team in their last match against Hyderabad FC. The biggest challenge was not to stumble, and full marks to the duo and the players for the way they kept it easy on the pitch. The last phases are when the mental aptitude of teams is tested to the limits, and only the toughest will survive, and move to semis. GAMEPLAN

Warriors in final

Manne.Ratnakar @timesgroup.com

Hyderabad: North Eastern Warriors made it to their maidenfinal in the Premier Badminton League (PBL) with a 3-(-1) victory against Chennai Superstarz at the Gachibowli Indoor Stadium here on Friday. The men's doubles pair of Bodin Isara and Krishna Prasad Garaga broke the trump of their rivals Sumeeth Reddy and Dhruv Kapila 15-13, 14-15, 15-10 to seal the issue for Warriors. That was after their mixed doubles pair of Lee Yong Dae-Kim Ha Na and Lee Cheuk Yiu gave them a winning start.

While the mixed doubles team defeated Sumeeth and Jessica Pugh 15-12, 9-15, 15-14, Lee put it across Tommy Sugiarto in men's singles. The pull out of doubles specialist

Satwiksairaj Rankireddy hit Superstarz hard in team events. Incidentally, Satwik had injured his right ankle during the league tie against Warriors on February. Though he donned the role of the coach on Friday his absence cost his team dear here. The decider in mixed doubles became inevitable after both the teams won a game each. Both fought hard till the 14th point, before Lee Yong Dae came up with a smash winner from the back of the court to win the first point for Warriors, World No.18 Lee Cheuk Yiu won an important point for Warriors when he ended the unbeaten run of Tommy Sugiarto with a 15-12, 15-12 victory in the first men's singles. In the first game, Lee was three points ahead by the break (8-5). Though Tommy came close and reduced the gap to 12-13, Lee won two big points to take the first game.

Corona: Indian women pull out of Asian meet

Ratnakar.Manne@timesgroup.com

Hyderabad: The coronavirus outbreak has forced the withdrawal of Indian women's team from the upcoming Badminton Asia Championships to be held in Manila from February 11 to 16. However, the men's team, led by Kidambi Srikanth, will travel to Manila for this event.

Srikanth and HS Prannoy have probably opted to play in the tournament as they could earn crucial points to qualify for Tokyo Olympics. However, one wonders if the men are taking a risk by traveling to a country which has witnessed a confirmed death due to  $the {\it deadly virus}. As per the {\it Indian}$ government's directive, a person returning from a corona-affected country will be quarantined for two weeks.

Srikanth, whose Olympic qualification is hanging by a thread, is desperate to travel possible before the Olympic qualification ends by April. After the Asian meet, the former world No.1 will be travelling to Barcelona for the Spain Masters to be held between February 18 and 23. Thereafter, he would be featuring in the next month's German Open and All England Championship. It's not clear if Srikanth would be allowed to enter Spain as he will be travelling from Manila.

Interestingly, Srikanth is unaware of these rules and said that he will check about this on Saturday. Srikanth's elder brother Kidambi Nandagopal said, 'We are not aware of the situation. He is booked to travel on Sunday night." Meanwhile, the Badminton Association of India (BAI) general secretary Ajay Kumar Singhania said that the women's team had withdrawn due to concerns of the parents of the players.

Spirited Vesely overcomes Ivashka, to meet Berankis

Kumaraswamy.K@timesgroup.com

Pune: Jiri Vesely came through an emotional roller-coaster to beat Belarusian Ilva Ivashka 2-6, 6-1, 7-6 (11) to book a semifinal berth in the $610,000 Tata Open Maharashtra here on Friday. It was an error-prone match but made absorbing by the way the two players fought their inner demons. The pendulum kept swinging as neither of them could gain the upper hand.

"I was definitely lucky today because he deserved more in the end than I did," Vesely, ranked 107th, said after the two-hour and 29-minute contest at the MSLTA Complex in Mhalunge-Balewadi. "I made easy mistakes on match points. It gets tough against the big guys if you don't take your chances. They are going to use it to their advantage." The 26year-old Czech, a former world No. 35, converted his fifth match point while Ivashka, world No. 152, had

Second seed Ricardas Berankis needed two hours and 16 minutes to overcome Japan's Yuichi Sugita 4-6, 7-6 (4), 6-2 and move into the semifinals against Vesely. Berankis, the world No. 73 from Lithuania, overcame an early break to level the opening set at 4-4 but got broken again by Sugita. The 29-year-old was more solid in the second, in which he won 83 percent of his first serve points. But with the Japanese also managing a break of serve, Berankis, a former world No.1 and US Open champion in his junior days, had to dig deep to prevail in the tiebreaker. Berankis, whose father Genadijus drives taxi back home in Vilnius, then sped away with two breaks of serve in the third. In another quarterfinal, James Duckworth beat Roberto Marcora 6-3, 7-6 (4) to move into the semifinals.

Gujarat progress; Delhi all but out

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

New Delhi: Delhi's woeful season seems to be over. Bhargav Merai and Manprit Juneja batted 17 overs to take Gujarat to 128/2 from 41/2 ending Delhi's hopes of eking out a win after setting a target of 292 on the final day of their Ranji Trophy match at the Ferozeshah Kotla on Friday

Delhi needed at least three points by virtue of a first innings lead to stay in contention for a quarterfinal berth. They were left chasing the game for two days after conceding a lead of 42 runs.

Comeback man Himmat Singh struck an elegant 69 in the morning to give Delhi bowlers 69 overs to bowl out Gujarat. But Delhi's bowling attack lacked a quality spinner who could exploit the wearing fourth-day pitch. Left-arm pacer Siddhant Sharma did strike twice to send back the openers Priyank Panchal and Samit Gohil, but all hopes fizzled out at tea.

The draw ensured a quarterfinal berth for Gujarat. The teams decided to end the match once the umpires called tea with Juneja and Merai unbeaten 51 and 42 respectively. Young Delhi legspinner Tejas Baroka looked ordinary in second innings, like in the first, as the batsmen seemed to be having a knocking session in the middle.

Delhi skipper Dhruv Shorey and his boys will have to bag all seven points in their final match against Rajasthan next week and hope for a miraculous turn of events in other matches to have a chance of qualifying.

The defenders did well, too, especially in the first match as the Dutch were able to score only once. They did score thrice in the second game but India, despite playing with a man short for almost ten minutes, did not allow them to run away with the game. In the end the hosts drew level and won the game in shootouts. The drag-flickers were al-

BIRTHDAY TODAY You have strong control over your own life. You

Tip: Your lucky colours are red and blue. Your lucky gems are turquoise and moonstone.

ARIES March 20 - April 18 You seem to have no problems solving others' problems. You know that there is always a solution. A loved one could be over serious and you might attempt to lighten up the con versation. Friends will drop by, so let spontaneity rule

TAURUS April 19 - May 19 Knowing what you want and going after it is the opportunity of the day, and what you fall into now may be just the chance you have been waiting for. Sharing goals and deciding to mutually go for it will be the best of all possible worlds

GEMINI May 20 - June 20 You are probably reluctant to set aside unrealistic dreams, even if obligations are keeping you on a short leash. Stay true to your highest ideals by doing the most responsible

CANCER June 21 - July 21 There is nothing wrong with entertaining your fantasies as long as you don't use them to escape from a conflict in the real world.

Nevertheless, avoiding unnecessary drama allows your generous spirit to shine while still leaving time

LEO July 22 - August 21 Making others feel guilty will only waste your time and energy. Be thankful that

LOOP THE LOOP

Connect adjacent dots with vertical or hori zontal lines, creating a single loop (Fig A).

Crossovers or branches are not allowed (As

Numbers in the puzzle indicate the number of lines that should surround it, while empty cells may be surrounded by any number of

You can't draw lines around zeroes.

Each puzzle has just one unique solution. How to begin: Example (Fig A) - Begin with drawn around zero, mark crosses around it, as around 3. So we know the three lines of 3 can only be drawn in the remaining three spaces

Next, these lines can only be extended in one

Hints: Keep eliminating possibilities by marking crosses in spaces between dots where a line isn't possible, i.e., if you have already completed required lines or where a line extension may create a branch or cause a dead-direction each. Continue, using the same logic.

you know the truth about what's really going on, for what you don't know can hurt you more than you

VIRGO August 22 - September 21 You have more time to figure out how to improve your cash flow, yet vou still might believe that you have to make a decision right away. Hasty actions won't be productive today, so consider all your options before you shift into gear and start working.

LIBRA September 22 - October 22 Allowing yourself to be talked into any activities that scatter your energy is not a good idea today. Creating healthy boundaries gives others the opportunity to respect your limits

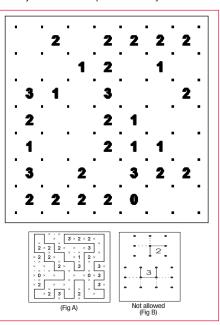

SCORPIO October 23 - November 20 Others may not understand your interest in subjects that seem irrelevant to them, but don't worry about what they think. If it seems significant to you, then take the time to check it out.

SAGITTARIUS November 21-December 20 Keeping in touch with friends and relatives is important iust now. Your timing should be perfect for whatever needs discussing. This can become a lucky period. You need to be needed and you have an intuitive way about you in knowing when your loved ones are in need and require your assistance.

CAPRICORN December 21 - January 19 Avoid lingering in discouragement, even if you discover something you don't like. This is a wonderful opportunity to refine your strategy and improve your chances for success.

AQUARIUS January 20 - February 18 Your instincts will help you grasp a problem and read between the lines. You have a lot to get done. Make a call to a loved one who often feels left out or lonely. A discussion could help lift this person's spirits

PISCES February 19 - March 19 Although there are signs that you can slow down ahead, you won't be let off the hook just yet. You might be able to amaze others with how much you accomplish, but burning yourself out in the process is surely not worth it.

MINDBENDER

I am a giant, an ancient king With many a jewel by my neck are hanging Then a monster comes, a heartless thief The bite so bitter brings me grief.

It takes my treasure, my riches untold. My rubies, my emeralds, my silver, my gold.

Why each sign fails to save money

you need help from the stars on how to get rich, read on to know what your zodiac's failings are when it comes to saving. ARIES: You simply cannot save for the future, and spend on "living in the moment'

TAURUS: You justify bulk-buying and discount shopping as "saving". The thrill from saving in a sale will go if you realise you didn't need to spend at all.

GEMINI: To save money, you need to value it, and you simply don't care or think of it enough to accumulate it. You spend on whims. CANCER: You accumulate things for material security and think you "need" everything. LEO: You need to spend on acting like a king to make everyone believe you deserve a place in society by being fancy and flashy.

VIRGO: You're too fussy about quality to settle for cheaper things. For you, everything has to be top shelf. LIBRA: You feel being thrifty is tacky. But Venus can come back to bite you when you have 10 Gucci coats and zero money. SCORPIO: You switch between stinginess and overspending. Find a balance. SAGITTARIUS: You value spending on experiences more than you value money CAPRICORN: You spend on social climbing, be it fancy parties, designer clothes, or artwork which becomes a conversation-starter. AQUARIUS: You literally think money is just paper. Aquarians live life thinking they can borrow from their family and friends. PISCES: You keep lending or spending on others. That is generous but unwise. iDiva ver the past six months, life has become a nightmare for Poonam Pandey. The actress alleges that she has been inundated with calls-at odd hours-from across India and even Karachi, requesting her to strip. It all began in June last year, says Poonam, when her number along with the tagline, 'Call me, I will strip for you', was leaked on her app. According to the actress, her app was managed by Raj Kundra's company, as she had entered in an agreement with them in March 2019. However; she terminated it a month later. She has now accused them of continuing with the app, in spite of her terminating the contract, and also releasing her personal number on it, which has resulted in her being hounded with numerous calls. Poonam has now moved the Bombay High Court to file a criminal case against Kundra and his associates, who collaborated with her for the app. However, Kundra told us that he had exited the company (which managed the app) in December 2019.

same thing for a long time. I just needed a break from what I was doing. My eyes were tired of watching the same thing over and over again. Also, I wasn't coming across anything fresh or new. I am extremely excited to be back after eight years because I really want to see what millennials have to offer and how much has dance evolved."

WANT PERFORMANCES TO BE BEYOND JUST ENTERTAINING'

Terence adds that he was also looking to make a comeback with a show that focuses on dance and not entertainment. "I am very clear that this time I am looking forward to seeing dance forms and not acrobatics. There are formats (and shows) that look for a performer, but I think in a dance reality show, I should get to see beyond just purely entertaining performances, I need to see dancing talent as well. Even eight years ago this is what I was focused on. I am so happy to see that contestants who came from dance reality shows are doing such great work. Kruti Mahesh, who won the National Award for Ghoomar, got a platform from dance reality shows. There are so many other successful names like Raghav Juyal, Punit Pathak. It is so good to see the kind of work they are doing and how they didn't just earn a name and fame, but also created their identities after being part of reality shows," he says proudly.

'DON'T WANT ANY MORE SOB STORIES ON DANCE REALITY SHOWS'

One change that he really hopes to see in dance reality shows? "I do not want to hear any more sob stories. I really don't want to have more stories about 'maa ka sapna', and 'main kitni gareebi se aaya hu'. I am definitely sensitive and can listen to their stories and cry with them, but if someone thinks that he/she would be rated above a genuinely talented person on the basis of their background, that's not going to happen. If one happens to come from a certain background and is also talented as a dancer, works hard to improve his skills, that person should definitely not be judged as a lesser deserving contestant than others on the show."

promising singer also needs to be a good storyteller: Benny

enny Dayal, who has multiple chartbusters in different languages to his credit, says that the music industry in India is evolving and welcoming more unconventional voices. In a chat with us, the singer spoke about his absence from the the country's booming indie music scene, the unconventional voices coming up in the industry and his current favourite artistes from the Indian music industry. Excerpts:

Of late, a lot of indie artistes are finding prominence in India's music industry. What do you think has led to this trend? Right now, a lot of things are going on in the music sector, enabling a lot more artistes to explore their talent. That way, audiences also have more options to choose from. Often, it's seen that the unfamiliar and unconventional compositions stand out among these.

So, what's the secret behind these unconventional voices?

Well, it's not just about being a singer, but also about being a storyteller. A song's lyrics are put together to tell a story. What matters is how you are able to convey that story, regardless of whether it's been composed by someone else or yourself. It's not about the tag of filmi music or indie music. What matters is whether or not people are being able to connect with your music.

Among the current lot of singers, whose work do you think stands out the most? Sid Sriram, Arijit Singh, Prateek Kuhad and Papon are some of my favourites. My ultimate idol, however, is Vishal Dadlani. He's not only a great singer, but a composer and a writer too.

As someone who's been in the public eye, do you feel the pressure to be politically correct all the time?

Saying the right thing at the right time is a skill that comes from knowledge and experience. The older you grow, the wiser you become. What I feel is that one should not be over-opinionated, and should use discretion while making a statement.

Chilly treats for Delhi: Ice cream sales go up by 40% this winter increase in sale in December-January as compared to last winter'

Abhimanyu.Mathur@timesgroup.com

n a chilly, foggy winter morning, one would assume that Delhiites would prefer a piping hot cup of tea or coffee. But, believe it or not, ice cream seems to be quite popular too. While traditionally seen as a summer favourite, ice creams have always sold moderately well during the Delhi winters. This winter, however, as the mercury plummeted to Kuch din toh raat hone se pehle hi stocks khatm record lows - giving the capital its coldest winter in decades - the sales of ice cream across vendors and shops in Delhi reached record highs.

*According to ice cream vendors at India Gate

At India Gate, over two dozen ice cream vendors set up shop every day. Mukesh, who parks his cart near the Rajpath crossing, tells us, 'Usually our sales are lowest during peak winters in December and January. But this year, they were higher than the months before them.

Mehrama is about eing lonely in a crowd

he soundtrack of Imtiaz Ali's upcoming romantic film, Love Aaj Kal, has been appreciated by music lovers. The film has him reuniting with composer Pritam and lyricist Irshad Kamil to celebrate the different facets of love. From the track Shayad, which celebrates the innocence of first love, to the party number Haan Main Galat, there's something for everyone in the album.

The film's latest song, Mehrama, is a soulful melody about feeling lonely in a crowd. The song is relevant in today's world, where everyone is constantly communicating with others over different media and devices, and yet, there's an inexplicable loneliness that they feel. In its simplicity, the song taps into emotions that people can relate to.

Talking about the track, Imtiaz, who is both the producer and director of the film, says, "Veer and Zoe (Kartik Aaryan and Sara Ali Khan) are modern-day youngsters who find it difficult to mindlessly surrender to love despite feeling very strongly for each other. The fear of making compromises, which they could regret later, makes them insecure. But moving away from each other brings more meaninglessness in their lives. Their minds are crowded by ambition, many thoughts and ideas, yet they feel lonely.'

Producer Dinesh Vijan adds, "We wanted to create something that is relatable and soothing for the heart. Mehrama is a song that speaks to your soul. People today are constantly communicating, yet they hear nothing. This song makes you pause for a moment and think; it makes you question, helps you lament and becomes your companion in loneliness.

Jio Studios, Dinesh Vijan and Reliance Entertainment present a Window Seat Films and Maddock Films production, Love Aaj Kal. A Jio Studios worldwide release, it hits theatres on February 14.

This Pawan and Pooja are caught in a web of love

Watch their changing equation in the new web series Pawan & Pooja, which will launch on Valentine's Day his Valentine's Day, one of India's leading OTT platforms MX Player is bringing viewers a relationship drama that highlights the grey shade of love with its MX Original Series – Pawan & Pooja. It explores the lives of three couples - all coincidently named Pawan and Pooja, who at different stages of their lives discover that their love is indeed conditional, breakable and questionable. Here's a duo-Pawan Srivastav and Pooja Maheshwari, played by Taaruk Raina and Natasha Bharadwaj – that seems to be caught in a web of love. And who better to explain their predicament than Pawan himself? Read on ...

I'm Pawan Srivastav – naam toh suna hi hoga... digital prankster and online influencer? Well, that's me. And the biggest problem in my life is Ms Pooja Maheshwari, a social media fashionista and an A grade snob! I played one prank on her, which cost her a few followers who she considers 'her friends' and we've been going at each other ever since.

Life changed for us when a powerful talent management firm reached out to us with an unbelievable proposition. But somewhere along the way, I've gotten tired of living my life online. I know that's our bread and butter, but sometimes, enjoying the moment offline wouldn't harm us either.

Actually, the trouble is that I've fallen in love with Pooja. But I'm not sure if she feels the same. In this digitally challenged equation, the reality of a real human connection seems to be too much for us.

But on February 14, you please go ahead and stream this complicated love story for free, only on MX Player. Pawan Srivastav nkit Siwach, who was last seen in Manmohini, tied the knot with his longtime girlfriend, Nupur Bhatia, in Uttarakhand on February 4. Ankit said, "Marrying Nupur is a dream come true. I thank god for keeping us together through all the ups and downs of life. As cheesy as it may sound, bachpan ki dosti has turned into budhaape ka sahara." Ankit trusted Nupur's choice when it came to selecting their ensembles. He said, "All the clothes were decided by Nupur, including the colours and styling. I was completely dependent on her.' The couple will soon leave for Italy for their honeymoon.

TAKE A LIBRARY MEMBERSHIP

While the good ol' library visits may seem like a thing of the past, a book lover can be sustainable by joining their local library. However, not all residential areas have libraries, and in such cases, residents have started their own library to provide people with books. Says Gurgaon resident Rachna Gupta, a homemaker, "I started my library, Kitaabon Se Rishta, in 2018. I began with my childrens' old books, and soon. friends and people from my condominium donated their old books. My library caters to children of upto 16 years."

Noida resident Neha Gupta, a doctor, runs an online library portal from where people can rent and return children's storybooks. "Through the portal, you can rent a book and it will be delivered at your doorstep. After you are done, it can be returned through the same channel," she says. Social worker Radhika Gulati is a member of the Delhi Gymkhana Club and often borrows books from the library there. "I love books, but also make sure to practice sustainability. I avoid buying new books and go to the library instead. The books can be re-issued online, so the process is hassle-free," says Radhika, who lives in Noida.

ith global average of paper consumption reaching 55kg of paper per person per year, it is high time we start asking each other 'How are you reading?' instead of 'What are you reading?'. Be it sharing your books with a friend or switching to e-books, there are a number of ways how you can practice sustainability even in your reading habits.

BORROW OR SHARE YOUR BOOKS

An avid reader can boast of an overstuffed bookshelf, in which many books may not have been read. However, if you aim to be a sustainable reader, don't shy away from borrowing a book that you want to read or share the ones you have already read. "I avoid

HAND BOOKS From Daryaganj's Sunday book market to a local book stall, secondhand books are readily available in the city, for a reader to read while being sustainable. "I always buy second-hand books. After reading, we can give the book back and buy a new one. The bookseller charges ₹150 for the book for the first time. If we return it and get a new one, he only charges ₹100, encouraging people to use and return the book," says Vasvi Sateja, a 22-year-old resident of Sector 14, Gurgaon.

GO ONLINE TO READ

Did you know that an e-book can displace the purchase of 22.5 physical books? This could help avoid deforestation, as according to a report, 30 million trees are cut down annually for books sold in the US. "Since the past five years, I have stopped buying newspapers. I access news online as newspapers are only usable for a day and then end up in the trash," says Upasna Sahney, who lives in Noida.

Noida resident Supriya Sardana shares, "I avoid buying physical books, and it has been years since I switched to e-books as it was more sustainable. My daughter, too, refers to an online platform to read books where one can browse different genres of unpublished books as well."

Reading a book that has already been read by someone else brings a sense of comfort to many book enthusiasts, and adding on to this is Mayur Vihar resident Shruti Sharma, who founded Books On The Delhi Metro three years ago. "We leave books at various stations of the Delhi Metro and post about it. People are free to pick up these books and take them home. Some people return these books, while some keep them. This way, our books, which are either second-hand or received through donations, are read many times," she tells us. You could also barter and exchange a book in return for a book you want to read. Gurgaon resident Upasna Mahtani Luthra, who runs the Gurgaon Moms Book Club which has 4,500 members, says, "All members meet once a month to discuss their latest reads. During this time, many members also exchange their books with others so as to promote sustainable reading."

Another way to swap or exchange books is by forming a group or chain of readers, using one book for many readers. "I am part of this chain of 11 people, where we all buy just one book, which we all share in turns. Each person has to complete the book within seven days and pass it on to the next person in the chain," says Abhinav Malhotra, a Preet Vihar resident.

THE RE-RISE OF THE LOW-RISE JEANS

Low-rise jeans are coming back in 2020, say fashion pundits. In anticipation of the return of one of denim's darkest phases, here's a throwback to an era of 'muffin tops', 'bum cleavages' and total pelvic access

LATE 90S - 2000S

MARIAH IN HEARTBREAKER TO MEGHNA IN KALIYON KA CHAMAN

Sure, it would take seven years for the fashion world to catch on - seven years until Britney Spears, Keira Knightley and Christina Aquilera would get on the crack-flashing train.

In fact, Mariah Carey, who put 'em on for her Heartbreaker video in 1999, recently took the entire credit for the trend. She said in an interview, "The jeans that people were wearing (in the 90s) were highwaisted, and I was like, 'Why? Why are we doing high-waisted jeans? That's not flattering.' I didn't understand it." She spoke about how she chose to rip off the waistline of her jeans for the video, rendering them low-waist. "I noticed that really soon after, all these designers were doing the same cut of jeans," she gloated. Closer home. in the early 2000s, Meghna Naidu rocked a pair in the music video for Kalivon Ka Chaman, while actors like Bipasha Basu and Deepika Padukone were even rocking low-rise saris and lehengas for a while.

The artiste flashed her thong in low-rise jeans in the Kaanta Laga remix video in 2002

THE DEMISE

However, the fashion industry seemingly came to its senses by the mid-2000s. In the spring of 2002, Tom Ford showcased a higher waist trouser collection on the runway, and by the spring after that, several other designers followed suit. There was a moment there – when Keira Knightley almost threatened to expose her entire pelvis to the world in 2003 - that made one wonder if the trend would die at all. However, by 2008, the very antithesis of the low rise jeans, boyfriend jeans high-waisted, baggy, and well-overthe-belly button - came into fashion. Jeggings and skinny jeans weren't too far behind.

2008

2005 THE WORD MUFFIN TOP COINED

The term muffin top has close links with low-rise jeans, and owes its very origin to them. Several prominent US publications dedicated articles to it in 2005 - calling it the fashion faux pas of the year. Used to describe the roll of fat that spills out over tight and low-fitting jeans, 'muffin top' was named Australia's Macquarie Dictionary's word of the

Based on all previous evidence, a publication quoted denim trend forecaster Sam Trotman as saving that low-rise jeans will be a "key trend" in 2020, in an "ironic" sort of way. The trend, he said, will be Gen Z's way of capturing "the trashy Y2K mood".

SATURDAY 8 FEBRUARY 2020

"Trends are always cyclical and consumers and thought leaders are always in pursuit of the new must-have denim. Of course that means going against the grain, so that could mean the return of the low-rise," he concluded.

Already on-board is actress Olivia Wilde, who recently proclaimed, "My most comfortable state is when I'm wearing low-rise jeans, sneakers, and a sweatshirt. In that, I am unstoppable." Was that them sounding the death knell? It may be too soon - or too late - to tell at this point.

BUTT-LESS JEANS, DETACHABLE THONGS: A PREOUEL?

There have been whispers in the fashion community since the past three years that the low rise won't remain in their grave for long. They've already being spotted on runways, and on supermodels like Bella Hadid.

In November 2017, for example, Jennifer Lopez was photographed in a pair of pants with built-in thongs - a style abomination that hasn't been witnessed since Christina Aguilera's Dirrty phase, circa 2002. The year 2017 also saw denim thongs, detachable jorts, and butt-less jeans on the ramp which trendspotters feel is a build-up to the inevitable.

Many feel this outfit the diva sported in 2017 is a sign that low-rise jeans are set to return

MY RIGHT TO LIVE AND PRIVACY HAS BEEN AFFECTED: POONAM PANDEY

Sharing the background of the case, Poonam says, "I collaborated with the company for an app named after me in March 2019. We had agreed upon a certain percentage of the revenue generated by the app to be given to me. However, I realised certain discrepancies in revenue sharing and hence, decided to terminate the contract. I also informed them about the same via an email. But they continue to post my pictures and videos on the app. To my horror, they also leaked my personal mobile number along with messages like 'Call me now as I am free to talk' and 'Call me now. Let us talk and I will strip for you' on the app. After that, I started receiving calls from all over, not in dozens but thousands, at odd hours, asking me for explicit services. People started sending me pornographic images and videos. I even left the country for three months hoping that the situation will become normal. However, as soon as I landed back. I started receiving calls and obscene messages again. Sometimes, I would get calls where I could only hear heavy breathing from the other side. These callers claim to know my address, too. I changed my number, but after I messaged Saurabh Kushwah (one of the associates of the app company, who is one of the accused) from my new number, asking him to refrain from uploading my pictures and videos on the app, I started receiving calls and messages on that number. too.'

The actress says that she approached the police in December 2019. "My statement was recorded on December 7, 2019, at Bandra police station. Since they refused to lodge an FIR against Raj Kundra and his team, I had no option, but to move the Bombay High Court. I have filed a writ petition - a criminal case - against Raj Kundra, his associate Saurabh Kushwah and my former manager Sonu Lakhwani. I will approach the cyber crime cell, too. I am going through this nightmare just because I refused to work with them. I am living under constant threats of abduction, rape, murder and acid attack. My right to live and privacy has been affected. Just because I am Poonam Pandey, you can't subject me to this treatment. I am what I am in my world. People can call me controversy's favourite. I don't have a problem with that, but you can't disrespect me and threaten my existence," she says.

Poonam's lawyer Anand S Jondhale says, "The police didn't cooperate with her. So, around a month ago, we moved court and filed a petition for registration of an FIR against them and for due compensation for the mental agony caused. We have also served the notice to the accused through the court."

'POONAM'S ALLEGATIONS ARE FALSE AND BASELESS'

Meanwhile, Saurabh Kushwah has filed a statement at Bandra police station, stating that the breach was in fact from Poonam's side and the company wasn't too pleased with the content uploaded by her on the app, as they were obscene, erotic and objectionable. They have also claimed that it was their decision to terminate the contract. They have denied all allegations levelled against them by Poonam, including that of leaking her number on the app. Saurabh says, "These allegations are false and baseless. We have not yet received any legal notice or petition from the court, so we will not be able to comment on it. We have cooperated with the authorities concerned and Raj Kundra said, "I had invested in a company called Armsprime Media last year, which makes apps for celebrities. I am not aware of the petition as I exited the venture in December 2019 with a sale to the current shareholders.<sup>3</sup>

Lawyer Thakur Arjun Singh, who represents Armsprime Media, stated, "We have just learnt that Poonam has filed a petition in Bombay High Court. We haven't been served a copy of it, yet. The matter has neither been listed nor heard. We will deal with it once we receive a copy of the petition. As far as her allegations are concerned, there is no substance in them. She has been paid in excess – an amount of ₹60 lakh – as per the agreement in accordance of the revenue share. Just because Raj is an investor in Armsprine, she is trying to extort money by misusing criminal law. She has a civil remedy available if she feels there is a discrepancy in payments but dragging everyone in a criminal case is malicious and mischievous.

'death threats' from Tarantino

opular American host David Letterman once got into a serious beef with Hollywood maverick Quentin Tarantino, to the point that the filmmaker threatened to kill him. The late-night talk show great shared his "great fight" with the Kill Bill helmer when asked on a show if he ever had "any famous beefs", reports a Hollywood portal.

"I got into a great fight with Quentin Tarantino. This was really good." The 72-year-old funnyman said that it all stemmed from his reaction to a guest's revelation that Tarantino was dating a famous star, whom he described as "so famous that I can't recall the name.

Thinking that the Pulp Fiction director was not attractive or cool enough for the actress, Letterman jokingly protested the relationship."Tm thinking the idea is Quentin Tarantino is this movie-store nerd. Now I'm pretending that I'm stunned this glorious movie star is dating this little squirrelly guy," he said.

Two days later, he got a call from Tarantino who berated him on the phone.

"He starts screaming at me, 'I'm gonna beat you to death, I'm gonna kill you, I'm coming to New York, and I'm gonna beat the cr** out of you. How can you say that about me?' And I said, Quentin, hang on a second.'

Letterman then asked his producer to pick up the other line, so no one could accuse him of making the story up. He said Tarantino went "on, and on and on - like the guy is full-blown clinically goofy.

Letterman said he asked the director, "Bat or fist," to which the latter responded, "Bat.'

The host said that they picked dates and flights, but the Once Upon a Time in Hollywood director ghosted him on the day of the supposed duel. They, however, have made peace as the filmmaker apologised for the outburst years later, according to Letterman

AIN'T THIS COOL? Artists say that they have organised this exhibition to encourage people across NCR to upcycle their old cars

#UpcycleYourVehicle: A moving exhibition in Greater Noida

Niharika.Lal@timesgroup.com

he ongoing Auto Expo in Greater Noida is attracting not just automobile lovers, but eco-conscious Delhiites and art connoisseurs, too, who are going gaga over painted cars and items created from upcycled car parts. The exhibition titled 'It Used To Be My Car' is organised by Cartist, a group of artists who give makeover to vehicles. The artists say that they've organised this exhibition to encourage people across NCR to upcycle their old cars.

While the concept of creating furniture with old car parts isn't new, it's the first time when artists have put up this exhibition at the Auto Expo. Himanshu Jangid from Cartist told us, "We have been promoting art through automobiles for years, but this is the first time when we have put up our exhibition on the sustainable theme. We want to tell Delhiites that change starts with you. All they need is some sense of design, and they can do it at home, plus we're here to help. Most of the furniture and decor items are created with seats, tyres and shocker springs of old cars. For lamps, wheel disc and connecting rod of a car engine have been used. Sneha Sivakumar, a visitor at the expo, said, "I would love to paint my father's old car, but restoration is burdensome and maintenance becomes an issue. After discussing with artists, I realised that it's a better idea to turn your car into a pool table or office desk than just dumping it someday."

The ongoing exhibition at the Auto Expo is focussing on sustainability. For more pictures, follow us on Facebook

Coronavirus scares B-wood away

Ronnie Screwvala film, starring Sobhita Dhulipala, was to roll in Kerala from February 12 delayed; team considering plan B

ith novel coronavirus claiming many lives in China, the Indian government is taking strict measures to avoid an epidemic here, airlifting citizens from Wuhan in batches and putting them in quarantine upon landing. In an attempt to avoid the virus, Bollywood, too, is making changes in its shooting schedules. We have learnt that Ronnie Screwvala's film, Sitara, was to roll in Kerala from February 12. But the plan now stands cancelled after the Kerala government declared the outbreak as a 'state calamity'. Director Vandana Kataria confirmed the news, stating, "Health comes first, so the schedule has been slightly delayed for now. We had been in and out of Kerala for our technical recce and were supposed to return in two days. My art from January 30 but flew back on Wednesday. Thankfully, everyone is fine.'

She adds that they are now waiting to see how things pan out. 'Meanwhile, we have a plan B in place and are working towards that," Vandana informs. The film features Sobhita Dhulipala as Tara, a feisty, independent girl who recognises a flaw and sets out to redeem herself. In this process she pushes her family into confronting their own dedesign crew was already there mons and forgiving each other.

The RBI's bouquet of developmental and regulatory steps is a positive surprise to the financial ecosystem. Experts and developers have widely welcomed the latest monetary policy of the RBI, saying it would be the long-awaited catalyst to revive the real estate sector ith the RBI's monetary policy announced on February 6, interest rates of bank loans are likely to decline. This is despite the central bank not cutting its policy rates like reporate — the rate at which banks can borrow short-term funds from the RBI.

In its monetary policy on Thursday, the RBI has taken a slew of measures to allow banks' lending rates to fall. In the last one year — from February 2019 to January 2020 — the RBI cut its policy repo rates cumulatively by 135 basis points (1.35 percentage points) in several tranches, to 5.15%, but banks could cut their funds-based lending rates (MCLR). Home loan is also linked to MCLR by 55 basis points.

This was mainly due to the persisting high deposits rates which banks had to pay to raise funds. This limited the banks' capability to pass on the decline in policy repo rates to loan rates like home loan interest rates.

In the latest monetary policy, the central bank decided to infuse Rs 1 lakh crore of "1 year to 3 years" funds at repo rate in the banking system. This will help the banks lend at attractive rates to growth-oriented sectors like real estate and the Micro, Small Medium and Enterprises (MSMEs). Rajnish Kumar, chairman of the SBI. said. "The RBI policy is a statement of intent, carefully using a repository of policy novelties to address the current delicate balance of growth and inflation."

He said that while the decision to keep policy rates on hold was universally anticipated, the RBI bouquet of developmental and regulatory steps is a positive surprise to the financial ecosystem.

The decision to allow long-term repo operations for 1 year and 3 years for Rs 1 lakh crore at policy repo rate will bring down cost of funds for banks and will facilitate better transmission within the current constraints of downward rigidity of deposit rates, Kumar said.

Jaxay Shah, chairman of Credai National, said, "The policy announcement by RBI is thoughtful and encouraging, as it will further boost credit flow to the stressed residential realty sector.'

Apart from this, to promote real estate and other important sectors, the RBI has allowed commercial banks to deduct the equivalent of incremental credit disbursed by them as retail loans for residential housing, auto sector, and loans to MSMEs from their total deposits for maintenance of cash reserve ratio (CRR).

Banks are supposed to keep 4% of their total deposits with the RBI at zero interest. This increases the cost of funds and force banks to lend at higher rates. Now, as banks are not supposed to maintain CRR for loans that they would give to specific sectors like housing, auto, and MSMEs, the rates are likely to come down.

BUDGET a steady course!

Union Budget 2020-21 has continued its focus on affordable housing. Its mega outlay for big infrastructural projects will help the real estate sector indirectly, as this would spur the construction of residential and commercial spaces hough real estate has not got much, directly, from Union Budget 2020, there are certainly some announcements that will help revive the real estate sector. There are three key takeaways from Budget 2020 for the real estate sector.

Affordable housing, for instance, continues to be the Budget's focal point in the sector and reinforces the Modi government's mission to provide "Housing for all by 2022". The earlier tax exemptions for both homebuyers and developers have been extended for another one year.

The government proposed measures to improve liquidity for NBFCs and HFCs. This is welcome for the sector. which has been struggling with liquidity crisis. Boost to growth of infrastructure and transport are positive steps to ease living in suburban parts of the cities.

The additional deduction of up to Rs 1.50 lakh under Section 80EEE against interest paid on loans taken for purchase of an affordable house, set to lapse on March 31 this year, has been extended till March 31. 2021. The current rule also incentivizes developers of affordable housing who can avail 100% deduction of the profits and gains derived from such projects. The benefits under Section 80IBA are available till March 31, 2020, which has been extended by another year.

"With the real estate sector witnessing a shift in consumer behaviour that favours the growth of affordable and mid-income housing.

this measure will immensely benefit market,' the Ankush Kaul, president (sales and marketing) of Ambience Group, said.

Apart from this, to facilitate transactions in the currently subdued markets where property prices have fallen below the value calculated on the circle rate of the area, the finance minister has given some relief. Currently, while taxing capital gains and business profits for developers in respect of transactions in real estate, if the consideration value is less than circle rate-based value of the property by more than 5%, the difference is counted as income in the hands of both the purchaser and the seller. Continued on page 4

Besides, it is a clear indication that the RBI and the government want these sectors should be given favourable treatment.

Anurag Mathur, CEO of Savills India, said exempting the real estate sector from maintaining CRR would aid the flow of bank credit to the housing sector and support residential sales.

The RBI has also allowed the extension of the date of commencement of project loans for commercial real estate, delayed for reasons beyond the control of promoters, by another year without downgrading the asset classification.

Abheek Barua, chief economist of HDFC Bank, said this could help improve last-mile funding for real estate projects.

If a developer defaults in servicing a bank loan, even for no faults of theirs, no other banks gives them any loan. This affects the entire business cycle. But this measure of the RBI will give developers time to redeem their position.

Ramesh Nair, CEO and country head of JLL, India, said, "The RBI's measure to ease rules for projects delayed for reasons beyond the control of promoters by one year will provide the much-needed elbow room to developers."

Rajnish Kumar of SBI said extension of the date of commencement of commercial operations (DCCO) of project loans for commercial real estate by another one year without downgrading the asset classification will allow the real estate sector to focus on project completion.

RBI's decision to permit extension of date for commercial projects stuck for reasons beyond control of the developers under institutional debt will be instrumental in bringing the much-needed relief to developers, Jaxay Shah said.

GCR offers uber luxury FOR DEEP-POCKETED

Sectors along the Golf Course Road promise luxury condominiums. Properties in the region command a premium, as the development of a well-established retail space and offices makes the location sought after. Available options on GCR are for buyers, who can shell good money on their purchase onnectivity has given several regions of Gurgaon their strategic importance. This, in addition to improved quality of projects and growth of the retail space along these micromarkets, has made residential properties remarkably suited for living and investment.

One such micromarket is Golf Course Road (GCR), which is now connected to DLF Cyber City through an underpass. The underpass connects DLF Building 5 and takes commuters to Sector 56 directly. Several pockets like Sectors 42, 54, 55, and 56 are along GCR.

The region has well-established social infrastructure including schools and commercial buildings. This gives it an optimal mix of development along with the residential projects and makes the region ideal for those looking to live in a place which is amply supplied with amenities.

Data corroborates the trend. Anarock Property Consultants rank GCR 9th among the Top 10 most expensive residential markets in the country.

"Luxury real estate market in Gurugram has successfully bucked the market trend of slowdown over the last few years. Gurugram has emerged as a preferred location for highend luxury and ultraluxury residential properties. Golf Course Road, undoubtedly, is the most sought-after destination for investors and buyers,' Sushrat Gupta, a Gurugram-based realtor, says.

SECTOR 150, NOIDA: A REALTY HOTSPOT

oida has emerged as one of the most promising and competitively affordable regions in the NCR. Over the past few years, the region has attracted a lot of attention from investors, developers, and consumers (end users) alike. This is due to its high-quality physical infrastructure, a progressive social environment, and support institutional infrastructure, among others.

One of the most promising locations in Noida is Sector 150.

"Sector 150, located at the intersection of two rivers, Yamuna and Hindon, and close to Noida-Greater Noida Expressway, is a prime market which is a favourite among discerning urban buyers. The sector ticks right on several parameters, like location, connectivity, support infrastructure. The sector is over 600 acres, out of which 80% has been dedicated to a green zone. Looking at the USPs of this sector, many prominent developers like Godrej Properties, ATS, and Tata Realty are coming up with promising projects here," Amit Chawla, director (valuation and advisory services) of Colliers International India, says.

Notwithstanding the current sluggish market, Sector 150 Noida has shown a reasonably good performance, in terms of positive absorptions and upward price movement. "In my opinion, Sector 150 is the black horse of the region and it's advisable to invest in this locality for a promising long-term outlook," Chawla says.

DEVELOPERS' TAKE

Like industry experts, developers too are very optimistic on the growth prospects of Sector 150, Noida.

Ashish Sarin, CEO of AlphaCorp, says: "One of the most promising cities of the NCR, Noida has a blend of both residential and commercial projects. In the Noida-Greater Noida market, Sector 150 is among the most preferred realty hotspots. Spread over 600 acres, the sector has tremendous potential to become an investment hub. Apart from having the highest green cover, around 80%, the sector has the lowest density of development."

Deepak Kapoor, director of Gulshan Homz, is also of the view that sectors around Noida-Greater Noida Expressway like Sectors 143, 144, and 150 are getting high attention from buyers, mostly because of the presence of reputed developers in these areas and the promise of good connectivity, including proximity to the airport and the Metro link.

"In the last 6 months, Sector 150 saw an appreciation of around 7%. Year 2020 could be a year of turnaround for this sector, as projects are taking shape fast and we expect registered projects will be completed within the committed timelines. I see an appreciation of 12-16% in the next 6 months," Vijay Verma, CEO of Sunworld Group, said. — Mamta Sinha

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 2020

As per market estimates, sales momentum has picked up since 2019 across categories including affordable, midincome, and premium housing. With the continued momentum, rates are bound to increase. However, prices will remain range bound, experts say. This favours buyers looking to invest now.

BUDGET 2020 HOLDS a steady course for sector

Suppose that in an area a house-owner sell it for Rs 1.2 crore but the value of the property based on the circle rate of that area is Rs 1.3 crore, the difference in the price of Rs 10 lakh, is more than the 5% of the price based on circle rate and, hence, will be treated as the income for both the buver and seller and accordingly taxed.

Because the difference is more than 5% of the value based on the circle rate of the property, this penal provision will be applicable under the current tax law. This has become a big problem for developers, as this affects the transaction

To redress this problem, the government has allowed this differential to 10% of the value calculated based on the circle rate, up from 5%. Thus, if the transaction value is up to 10% lower than the value based on the circle rate, the difference will not be treated as income in the buyer's and seller's hand. In the present example, the difference of Rs 10 lakh is within the 10% of the value based on the circle rate.

This will address the problem in areas like Friends Colony, Noida, and other micromarkets where the market rates are more than 10% lower than the circle rates. Manoi Gaur. MD of Gaurs Group, said: The Union Budget seems to be a mixed bag from the sector's (real estate) perspective. Simplification of I-T regime with reduced rates and no exemptions, extension of measures announced for affordable housing by one more year are some of the positives for the sector. At the same time, the long-pending demand of the real estate sector has not been met. We have been asking for industry status for the whole sector and single-window clearance for smooth operations0020- the government did not comment on these requirements.

RK Arora, CMD of Supertech Ltd, said: "After many years, we have seen a budget that is as welcome as this one is. The government has extended Rs.1.5 lakh tax benefit on interest paid on affordable housing loan to March 2021, which is good for real estate sector. Reduction in income tax for individuals will also boost real estate sector, as more people will buy property."

'Extension of additional tax deduction of Rs 1.5 lakh on affordable housing worth up to Rs 45 lakh by 1 year is a step in the right direction. Similarly, an extension of capital gains on affordable housing by 1 year is also welcome," Pradeep Aggarwal, founder and chairman of Signature Global, said.

'Considering that most homebuyers fall in the lower and mid-income segments, this tax benefit will boost demand substantially." Ramesh Nair. CEO and country head of JLL India, said.

'The Budget's announcement of Rs 100 lakh crore for infrastructural development will boost real estate in Tier II and Tier III cities," Abhishek Bansal, execu-tive director of Pacific Group, said.

Rakesh Yadav, chairman of Antriksh India, says: "There are many measures in the Budget that are going to help the sector grow. Focus on infrastructure and economic growth in this Budget will lead to more activity in the commercial segment, as the demand for offices will grow.

Pankaj Bansal, director of M3M Group, says: "Abolishing dividend distribution tax (DDT) was necessary to protect shareholder's interest, and it was announced. It provides a level playing field to Indian companies as dividends will now be taxed at the hand of shareholders, a taxation norm common in many countries across the world. The measure will further attract FDI and boost commercial realty.

"The extension of benefit under Section 80 EEA to avail additional Rs 1,50,000 interest deduction on housing loans for first-time buyers is a good step made by the finance minister. Along with tax incentives, the FM has also enhanced the spending capacity of homebuyers. These measures will encourage buyers to go for their own home, Rahul Singla, director of Mapsko Group, said.

Parveen Jain, VC of Naredco and CMD of Tulip Infratech, said: 'This is a progressive Budget and gives positive impetus to affordable housing, tax relief for lowerand middle-income groups, and development of infrastructure. Demand in the sector is expected to increase with the announcement of more hospitals, educational institutions, among others.'

Ankur Gupta, joint MD of Ashiana Housing Ltd, said: "The middle-income and affordable-housing segment will see a continuous boost with the finance ministry's announcement for the sector. Other factors like liquidity crunch, funds at lower rates, additional foreign investments, single-window clearance, etc. should also have been a focal point in the finance minister's agenda, as these drive a steady, speedy growth of the sector.'

-AK Tiwary (With inputs from Devesh Chandra Srivastava, Mamta Sinha)

Affordable, midincome housing seaments remain the favourite and continue to drive sales for majority. However, with improving sales, there is a possibility of a price rise

MARKET HEADING FOR STABILITY

he share of affordable and midincome housing has risen considerably in the market over the past few years.

The real estate market is going to be shaped on the supply and demand dynamics of these two segment. With rates already rationalised and real demand being in these segments, the market is favouring serious buyers, experts say, and it is gradually moving towards stability.

"Affordable and mid-income homes will continue to drive demand in Indian residential real estate in the times to come. By actively tweaking policies and introducing sops like interest subsidies, infrastructure status and additional tax-benefits to both developers and homebuyers from time to time, the government has in a way made affordable segment more respectable," Anuj Puri, chairman of Anarock Property Consultants, said.

There has been a gradual increase in the supply of these units. Anarock data shows that of the estimated 2.3 lakh new unit launches in 2019 in the Top 7 cities, nearly 40%, or approximately 92,000 units, were in the affordable segment, followed by midsegment with a 33% share. The luxury and ultraluxury segments accounted for the least share with 10% (around 23,000 new units).

Data from other consultants show similar trend. "As per estimates for the second half of 2019, majority of the launches in the Top 8 cities of India were under the price of Rs 50 lakh, with maximum launches (39%) in the range of Rs 25 lakh to Rs 50 lakh. This trend has stayed strong for several years and, since the announcements of incentives to houses in the affordable housing category, many development companies have tried to work towards creating houses in the requisite sizes," Rajani Sinha, chief economist and national director (research) of Knight Frank India, said.

Commenting on reasons for the rise in the share of affordable and mid-income housing, Praveen Jain, vice-chairman of Naredco, said: "Firstly, the demand for affordable and mid-income housing is increasing as these are coming within the reach of larger percentage of the masses due to affordable prices. Secondly, these days, most of the buyers have nuclear families, who prefer 1-, 2-, 3-, or 4BHK apartments and rental apartments." Thus, smaller apartments with low rates are being absorbed.

THE IMPACT

The trend has made developers change their business strategy. "A few listed developers are increasingly venturing into the affordable and mid-segment categories. For instance, the average price realization for Kolte Patil developers dropped from Rs 5,836 per sq ft in financial year 2017 to Rs 5,372 per sq ft in financial year 2019. Likewise, Prestige Estates also saw their average price realization drop from Rs 6,441 per sq ft in financial year 2017 to Rs 6,218 per sq ft in financial year 2019," Puri of Anarock savs
