I'm a dedicated computer science undergraduate with a strong passion for coding and problem-solving. As a competitive programmer, I thrive on tackling complex challenges and continuously improving my skills in data structures and algorithms. My journey is marked by achievements in coding competitions and a commitment to personal growth.

I have a solid foundation in full-stack development, creating dynamic web applications and robust APIs that offer exceptional user experiences. Recently, I've begun exploring Artificial Intelligence and Machine Learning, eager to leverage AI's potential for impactful innovations. My academic studies provide a strong base, and I'm seeking opportunities to apply my skills in real-world scenarios.

My projects, such as developing e-commerce platforms and recommendation systems, have been valuable learning experiences. I'm excited about new challenges and opportunities in the tech industry. I'm always open to connecting with like-minded individuals and potential collaborators. Let's push the boundaries of technology together and code our way to new horizons!
