

Championing a Pedagogical Mindset:

Building a confident research-led team of leaders

Touchpoints:

1. Become more evidence-informed and build a teaching and learning community in your school through coaching.
2. Successfully create and embed the best conditions for learning based on the latest UK and international research and development into educational best practice — from organisations such as the Sutton Trust, John Hattie Visible Learning and the Education Endowment Foundation.
3. Implement a detailed step-by-step CPD programme that you can quickly and effectively roll out throughout your school.
4. Bridge the gap between research and practice.
5. Identify outstanding teaching and learning as well as determine if you are actually helping students learn better.
6. Innovative models, practices and principles that are proven to support great teaching and deep collaborative learning.
7. Use the most up-to-date research in neuroscience to more effectively design your curriculum, balancing acquisition of knowledge and skills.
8. New ways to evaluate the quality of CPD by using our online toolkit.
9. Enhance techniques for successful modelling and explanation, confident questioning, feedback and metacognition.
10. Make better research-backed decisions about how to best improve outcomes of all learners by choosing the most appropriate tools and strategies.

Who is it for?

- Key Stage and Curriculum Area Leaders
- Pastoral and Subject Leaders
- Head of Departments
- CPD or Pedagogical Leads

What will it do?

Championing a Pedagogical Mindset provides the ongoing support needed to build a powerful teaching and learning hub within your school as teachers reflect and grow as classroom practitioners. It can be personalised to your school's individual needs. However, we suggest the following structure:

- 3-5 full days (throughout the course of the year)
- 4 online webinars
- 6 hours of coaching with a Veema Teaching & Learning consultant
- Optional external school visits
- Around 40 hours of practical learning
- Face-to-face peer and facilitated learning
- Reading and reflection
- Online learning
