About me

Anna Isaeva Dalabajan (also known as Isha) is a freelance filmmaker with 9 years of extensive experience across various areas of film production, including production design, production management, and script supervision. Since 2016, she has collaborated with numerous production houses on films, television series, TV Commercials and digital advertisements. Isha specializes in production design, where she plays a key role in shaping the overall visual identity of a project. Her work reflects a strong attention to detail and a deep understanding of visual storytelling.

Beyond her film work, Isha is actively involved in organizing community events such as creative workshops, art and flea markets, and film screenings. She also manages a small, curated online thrift shop. In her free time, she does 1:6 scale diorama and pursues competitive open water swimming.
