Vivekananda School of English Studies (VSES)

William Shakespeare's Twelfth Night, A VSES Production, Lit Fest'22

One of the things that makes being part of VSES attractive for its students is its dramatic society. The Vivekananda School of English Studies at VIPS provides students a perfect platform to experience the exhilarating feeling of performing on stage. By hosting regular theatrical performances, VSES ignites a lifelong love of theatre among its students.

The intra-departmental theatrical production creates plays which revolve around political and social themes as well as adaptations of works by a myriad of literary artists.

On 13th April 2022 the students of VSES performed William Shakespeare's iconic comedy Twelfth Night as part of the Lit Fest'22: A Confluence of Art and Literature. The production was directed and assisted by Saloni Gupta and Naman Puri respectively. The play is a tale of unrequited love - both hilarious and heart-breaking - where the twins Viola and Sebastian are separated at sea and have to fend for themselves in a strange new environment. This performance was interspersed with song and dance, which made it even more captivating.

Here are some glimpses from the performance:
