Report of the Event:

The Placement and Guidance Cell of VSE hosted an engaging seminar on ‘ Why Data Science Is The Backbone Of Today's Industry: Skills, Jobs and Future’. With guidance from faculty conveners Dr. Divya

Sharma and our placement officer, Ms Vijayta Peters, the Core Team ensured the session was both insightful and interactive, spotlighting how data science and analytical skills help students develop the competencies needed for future opportunities.

The speakers conducted the seminar in an interactive way with main focus on understanding the usage of data in real life. Students actively engaged in how they could improve their analytical skills and excel in the future job market. Tips and tricks to improve one's resume were also shared by the speakers. The seminar also gave the students a pick on how real problems are solved by just using data and analytics. Case studies were discussed, making the students more interested in the discussion and giving them a real life perception towards projects. The seminar ended with suggestions by the speakers on how students can start initiating towards building a strong profile and grab opportunities in the future job market.
