The Gender Champion Club of VIPS organized an online live session through its Instagram handle (@genderchampion_vips) on 15th May 2020 at 7 PM. Ms.Asmii, member of All India Queer Association was the speaker of this insightful session on the topic "Gender inequality in the current scenario". Shambhavi Sharma, student co-ordinator Gender Champions Club, VIPS, moderated the session.

The Session commenced with the moderator introducing Gender Champions Club and the motivation behind conducting these sessions, and welcomed the guest of the session. Asmii first introduced herself and the discussion was taken forward with the topics of gender equity, gender equality and women empowerment as a lot of people get confused between these terminologies. The guest also addressed how notions of masculinity amongst adolescents contribute to sexual violence and also emphasized on the need for gender sensitization at home. She stressed the significance of eliminating many gender related stereotypes such as, "girls are not good at sports"

The session also addressed the concept of sexual violence and how it is intricately related to the notions of patriarchy. The speaker also explained how gender inequality pertains even in the LGBTQI+ community where gay cis men have more privileges over others and also hold a sense of superiority in the community and are more visual. The speaker mapped the history of feminism and explained the various waves of the movement that have shaped it. She explained that the idea of feminism is related to equality and it does not aim or demand for matriarchy nor is it a conspiracy against men as commonly misunderstood. Feminism is a call for equal rights, responsibilities and opportunities for all the genders.

The session further focused on the causes of gender inequality and how this issue can be resolved. It stressed the need of explaining and teaching the concept of consent and dissent to and its significance to people. The speaker concluded the session by saying that our country needs new laws to fight against this issue of gender inequality.

The session ended with moderator thanking the guest for an informative session, she also thanked the management of VIPS for proving the Club with the opportunity to hold these sessions to raise awareness and address these significant issues, she thanked Prof. Shilpa Khatri Babbar and teacher co-ordinators Dr. Anshu Gagal and Ms. Tahzeeb Fatma for their guidance and support. The session was well received by the audiences who kept responding through comments while the session was on.
